Rec facility at landfill Okd by panel

A master plan calling for the development of a year-round recreation facility at the Arlington Heights landfill was approved Tuesday by the Citizens' Action Committee Against Flooding.

The plan, prepared by Stanley Consultants, includes provisions for ski and sledding slopes, skating ponds, picnic areas and a skeet and trap shooting range at the 57-acre landfill site at Nichols and Schaefer roads.

Howver, the committee will require Stanley Consultants to refine the report with additional information on the operation and maintenance costs of the recreational facility and ways to increase the amount of dirt to be stored on the site before the recommendation is presented to the village board.

The master plan, as presented Tuesday, estimates the development cost at $487,200, including a clubhouse, snow-making equipment and a shelter house.

While Stanley Consultants project gross revenues of $285,000 to $315,000 annually from the facility, it did not submit estimates of maintenance and operational costs.

The landfill is included in the village's flood-control plans as the site for dumping dirt from other flood-control project excavations. The master plan was drafted showing a capacity of 75,000 to 80,000 cubic yards of "fill." Committee-members said the capacity would have to be increased to meet the requirements of the other projects.

About 12.5 acres of the site would be set aside for the village public works department. Allen Sander, village engineer, said the site might be used in the future as a "satellite" public works as the village grows.

The actual development of the site as a recreational area will be the responsibility of the Arlington Heights Park District.

It had been proposed earlier that the skeet and trap range be operated by a private company, which would run it on a long-term lease basis from the park district. Under a proposal discussed previously, the park district, as the landlord, would take a percentage of the gross revenue as its rent.

Dist. 21 to hear free busing bid from 'Cove' area

A group of parents from the Frenchman's Cove subdivision in Arlington Heights will appear before the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education Thursday to appeal the board's decision to discontinue school bus service from that area to Irving School.

Dist. 21 last year offered free busing to about 10 students on Carriage Way Drive in Frenchman's Cove to the school, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove, because sidewalks in the area were not completed.

The board decided last month, however, to discontinue the bus service because sidewalks connecting the subdivision to the students' main route to school have been finished and it is no longer considered dangerous.

MRS. MARILYN PERRY, 3239 N. Carriage Way Dr., Arlington Heights, said several parents in the subdivision are unhappy with the board's decision because they believe the children's route to the school still is hazardous.

Mrs. Perry said the subdivision's developer constructed a concrete walkway on Daniels Court, opposite Carriage Way Drive, connecting the subdivision to Old Post Road, which leads to the school.

The parents said they believe that no safe route exists between Carriage Way Drive and the walkway, because condominium units and vacant lots are between the two streets, Mrs. Perry said.

Mrs. Perry said the traffic from the condominium units and the construction of new homes in the subdivision create a hazard for children walking through the area. She said snow removal from the area in the winter also might create problems.

An alternate route to the school, connecting Carriage Way Drive to Carriage Way Place in Buffalo Grove, is no longer accessible because homeowners in the Buffalo Grove portion of the road have constructed fences WORKERS MOVE display cases, desks and shelves to the Countryside Art Center's new quarters at 408 N. Vail Ave., Arlington Heights. The art center was forced to move Tuesday because the building at 414 N. Vail Ave. will soon be demolished to make way for a parking lot. Both buildings are owned by the village. New classes will begin at the center next month.

Oct. arguments in housing case

The U.S. Supreme Court will hear oral arguments in mid-October on the Lincoln Green low-income housing project, bringing to a close the five-year legal battle between the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Hosuing Development Corp.

A high court spokesman Tuesday said the case probably will be heard Oct. 13.

The final arguments on the 190-unit townhouse development, proposed by the housing group for a 15-acre site south of St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights, originally were to be heard in March, but the case was postponed twice.

THE SUPREME Court agreed last December to hear the case after the village appealed a ruling by the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, which held the village's refusal to rezone the site for the low-and moderate-income housing project was racially discriminatory.

Village officials contend that the case is a zoning issue, not a racial or economic issue.

The village's position that the Lincoln Green project would require spot zoning and that it would be incompatible with the master plan for the village was upheld in its first court test by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen in February 1974.

That decision was overturned by the appellate court in June 1975 by a 2-1 vote.

THE APPELLATE court agreed that village trustees were not motivated by racial discrimination, but said that the village's failure to ap-

Legislators pessimistic on special session

by STEVE BROWN

Leaders of the Illinois General Assembly made more gloomy predictions Tuesday on the chances of success for the special legislative session on education, which begins today.

Illinois House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, ruled out flat predictions during an interview with The Herald, but suggested the chances for passage of Gov. Daniel Walker's accelerated tax collection plan "unlikely." Republican leaders met Tuesday and were equally pessimistic about the fate of the plan.

The tax collection speed-up plan, which will give the state an extra $95 million during the current fiscal year, is the key to a number of education funding matters which will confront both houses of the legislature when the lawmakers begin a rare pre-election session at 2 p.m. in Springfield.

IF THE LEGISLATURE approves the tax plan and agrees with several Walker vetoes, most school districts throughout the state will benefit from changes in the school-aid funding formula immediately. If the legislature fails to reach agreement, the formula changes will not go into effect until July 1, 1977.

The formula changes most sought after by suburban school officials would alter the method used to calculate attendance for the purpose of obtaining state aid. The change will benefit school districts with declining enrollments. Another change will allow districts to halt the practice of rolling back the real estate tax rate as the amount of state aid increases and ask local voters for permission to boost taxes.

Redmond said he expects the Illinois House to be in session Thursday.

Democratic Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter is expected to address a rally on the steps of the state Capitol at noon before flying to Chicago..

Redmond said the legislature would have trouble passing the controversial tax plan because Republican support would be needed. The legislature failed in two attempts last spring to pass the bill, which would accelerate the collection of some sales and income tax receipts from merchants and businesses.

"I have seen no indication this will happen. The chamber of commerce is still opposed and this will carry some weight," Redmond explained. Legislation approved by the lawmakers during the special session needs 107 votes in the House and 36 votes in the Senate.

Even if the often-fragmented 101-member Democratic bloc votes in unison, six Republican votes are needed in the House and three Republican votes are needed in the Senate for passage.

State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, an assistant minority leader, said a key test for the special session may come as early as today if votes are taken to act on legislation without sending the bills to committee.

If the committee bypass effort is successful, the lawmakers could approve new bills in both houses in five days.

A point of controversy in passing the school-aid formula changes will be a provision that allows Chicago public schools to avoid paying a portion of the $55 million penalty levied because the schools closed 16 days early last spring.

Several lawmakers suggested that Walker and Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley may have struck an agreement over the passage of the accelerated tax collection plan because Daley needs the extra revenue to help operate the financially crippled school system.

STATE REP. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, a minority whip in the Illinois House, predicted few Republicans would support the Democrats during the special session.

Duff said the meeting produced no strong indications that there was enough Democratic or Republican support to pass the tax speed-up legislation.

He said the governor's office has not sent the legislative leaders bills for consideration.

"Everyone is playing with their cards close to their chest," Duff noted. He said the GOP leadership believes the state can get through the current fiscal year without the extra revenue that would be generated by the speed-up.

Death toll tops 300 in South Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Thousands of colored rioters screaming "we want blood!" Tuesday battled police in white areas and in ghettoes. Police opened fire on the mobs, killing five persons to push past 303 the death toll in nearly three months of racial strife.

Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, in charge of riot control, said four men were killed in the Cape Town area and one at the all-black township of Soweto near Johannesburg, 1,000 miles north of this port city.

He said a "considerable" number were injured. Police fired buckshot, revolvers and teargas and streets boomed with the explosions of thunderflashes — huge firecrackers used to ward off crowds. Police said one man was shot and killed in the Tiervlei district on the city's outskirts.

Blacks and coloreds, the official South African designation for persons of mixed race, formed human waves to attack police with stones and bottles in all-white areas of Cape Town and segregated enclaves near Cape Town and Johannesburg.

In one incident police turned on whites who booed when they clubbed colored rioters.

Police fired volley after volley of tear gas, sending huge clouds of the burning gas over the city, and blasted the mobs with buckshot. Then, when the rioters regrouped and charged again, opened fire.

One colored man, in his mid-twenties, keeled over and died within

Teachers OK 7% pay hike in Dist. 25

The Arlington Heights Dist. 25 teachers Tuesday approved a contract calling for an average 7.27 per cent salary increase this year.

James Modec, teachers' union president, said the vote was running 4 to 1 in favor of the settlement, although official totals were not tabulated.

"The teachers seemed very pleased with it," he said. "I think we did the best we could considering the financial conditions of the district."

SALARY INCREASES will range from 2.5 per cent to 10 per cent. Base pay increased from $9,300 to $9,550 for a teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience. The highest paid teachers in the district will receive $20,420, up from $19,600, for a teacher with at least 32 credits beyond a master's degree and 17 years of experience.

Modec said the other major item of negotiation — a reduction-in-force policy for releasing tenured teachers — was settled through a compromise. Board negotiators agreed to establish a board policy for the procedure, although the teachers had asked for it to be outlined in the contract.

"The reduction-in-force clause, although it is not in the contract, will be a very workable thing with the cooperation of the board and teachers' association," Modec said.

The pact also increases playground duty pay to $725 from $550 for junior high teachers and $660 for elementary teachers.

The board of education will vote on the contract at its Sept. 16 meeting. Joan Klussman, board president, said the board negotiators are satisifed with the settlement.

Columbo, beau ask OK to marry

A Cook County circuit court judge says Patricia Columbo and Frank DeLuca, both in jail on charges of murdering Miss Columbo's parents and 13-year-old brother in their Elk Grove Village home, want to get married. Judge Richard Fitzgerald Tuesday said he received a letter from DeLuca asking for permission to marry Miss Columbo. Fitzgerald said the letter from DeLuca, dated Sept. 1, read: "My woman is locked up in Division 3 (the Cook County Jail's women's center) and we would like very much to be married. I have contacted a social worker for her help and she told me I would have to obtain your permission before we could be married." Fitzgerald said he would not make a decision until after consulting with the county state's attorney.

Lincoln Green court date nears

The U.S. Supreme Court will hear oral arguments next month on the Lincoln Green low-income housing project, which has been the topic of a five-year legal battle between the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. A high court spokesman said Tuesday the case probably will be heard the morning of Oct. 13. The Supreme Court agreed last December to hear the case after the village appealed a ruling by the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, which held that the village's refusal to rezone the 15-acre site for the low-and moderate-income housing project was racially discriminatory. Village officials contend the case is a zoning issue, not a racial or economic issue.

Track asks 150 racing dates

Arlington Park Race Track is seeking 150 racing dates for each of the next three racing seasons from the Illinois Racing Board. The racing board will hold three days of public hearings Sept. 20-22 on the request. The approval of three years of dates in one action is allowed under new Illinois racing regulations. Arlington Park requested a 1977 season beginning April 25 and ending Oct. 15; a 1978 season starting April 24 and ending Oct. 14 and a 1979 season starting April 25 and ending Oct. 13.

Village fails to extend suspension

Schaumburg's attempt to reinstate a 20-day liquor license suspension for a village nightclub was rejected Tuesday by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunne. The 20-day suspension for B'Ginnings Ltd., 1227 E. Golf Rd., was ordered by Village Pres. and Liquor Comr. Raymond Kessell after six persons testified last March that they had been beaten by doormen at the club. Kessell said two minors privately testified they had been "sexually approached" by club employes. The Illinois Liquor Control Commission ruled last May that evidence from the village hearings could not support Kessell's ruling and the suspension was reduced to three days. In making his ruling, however, Dunne said he agreed with Kessell's suspension, but added he did not have the legal authority to rule in the village's favor.

Band sought in missing girl case

Mount Prospect police are searching for members of a rock band known as "Bloody Mary" in connection with the disappearance of 14-year-old Barbara Glueckert. Sgt. Patrick Hallihan said Tuesday the musicians, who played at the Aug. 21 rock concert in Huntley where Barbara was last seen, are wanted for questioning to find out if one of them has any information on the missing girl. So far police have not been able to locate the group, which isn't registered with any musicians' union or association. Members of a band called "Blind Belly Nelson and the Cold Wind Blues," which also played at the concert, came voluntarily to the police Tuesday night to provide information.

Wives, coeds in call girl ring

by United Press International

Housewives and college girls were part of a $100-a-date call girl ring operating out of a phony construction company office on Chicago's South Side, police said Tuesday.

The Illinois Bureau of Investigation said 16 women were involved and three had been arrested.

FBI Director Robert R. Bullock said the housewives used their earnings to supplement their family's income and the coeds used them to pay college expenses.

"Some of the married women went off to work as call girls after their husbands had gone off to work on their jobs," he said.

An investigator said: "These girls were very good looking and shapely. They were just not in the same class with streetwalkers."

Investigators said the ring's headquarters were at the bogus construction company and clients were taken to an adjoining six-bedroom complex. Customers who had to wait were invited to drink all the liquor they wished, watch pornographic movies or browse through sex magazines.

Columbo, beau ask OK to marry

A Cook County circuit court judge says Patricia Columbo and Frank DeLuca, both in jail on charges of murdering Miss Columbo's parents and 13-year-old brother in their Elk Grove Village home, want to get married. Judge Richard Fitzgerald Tuesday said he received a letter from DeLuca asking for permission to marry Miss Columbo. Fitzgerald said the letter from DeLuca, dated Sept. 1, read: "My woman is locked up in Division 3 (the Cook County Jail's women's center) and we would like very much to be married. I have contacted a social worker for her help and she told me I would have to obtain your permission before we could be married." Fitzgerald said he would not make a decision until after consulting with the county state's attorney.

Lincoln Green court date nears

The U.S. Supreme Court will hear oral arguments next month on the Lincoln Green low-income housing project, which has been the topic of a five-year legal battle between the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. A high court spokesman said Tuesday the case probably will be heard the morning of Oct. 13. The Supreme Court agreed last December to hear the case after the village appealed a ruling by the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, which held that the village's refusal to rezone the 15-acre site for the low-and moderate-income housing project was racially discriminatory. Village officials contend the case is a zoning issue, not a racial or economic issue.

Track asks 150 racing dates

Arlington Park Race Track is seeking 150 racing dates for each of the next three racing seasons from the Illinois Racing Board. The racing board will hold three days of public hearings Sept. 20-22 on the request. The approval of three years of dates in one action is allowed under new Illinois racing regulations. Arlington Park requested a 1977 season beginning April 25 and ending Oct. 15; a 1978 season starting April 24 and ending Oct. 14 and a 1979 season starting April 25 and ending Oct. 13.

Village fails to extend suspension

Schaumburg's attempt to reinstate a 20-day liquor license suspension for a village nightclub was rejected Tuesday by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunne. The 20-day suspension for B'Ginnings Ltd., 1227 E. Golf Rd., was ordered by Village Pres. and Liquor Comr. Raymond Kessell after six persons testified last March that they had been beaten by doormen at the club. Kessell said two minors privately testified they had been "sexually approached" by club employes. The Illinois Liquor Control Commission ruled last May that evidence from the village hearings could not support Kessell's ruling and the suspension was reduced to three days. In making his ruling, however, Dunne said he agreed with Kessell's suspension, but added he did not have the legal authority to rule in the village's favor.

Band sought in missing girl case

Mount Prospect police are searching for members of a rock band known as "Bloody Mary" in connection with the disappearance of 14-year-old Barbara Glueckert. Sgt. Patrick Hallihan said Tuesday the musicians, who played at the Aug. 21 rock concert in Huntley where Barbara was last seen, are wanted for questioning to find out if one of them has any information on the missing girl. So far police have not been able to locate the group, which isn't registered with any musicians' union or association. Members of a band called "Blind Belly Nelson and the Cold Wind Blues," which also played at the concert, came voluntarily to the police Tuesday night to provide information.

Wives, coeds in call girl ring

by United Press International

Housewives and college girls were part of a $100-a-date call girl ring operating out of a phony construction company office on Chicago's South Side, police said Tuesday.

The Illinois Bureau of Investigation said 16 women were involved and three had been arrested.

FBI Director Robert R. Bullock said the housewives used their earnings to supplement their family's income and the coeds used them to pay college expenses.

"Some of the married women went off to work as call girls after their husbands had gone off to work on their jobs," he said.

An investigator said: "These girls were very good looking and shapely. They were just not in the same class with streetwalkers."

Investigators said the ring's headquarters were at the bogus construction company and clients were taken to an adjoining six-bedroom complex. Customers who had to wait were invited to drink all the liquor they wished, watch pornographic movies or browse through sex magazines.

U.S. judge orders Ehrlichman to prison

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday revoked John E. Ehrlichman's bond and ordered him to report Sept. 17 to begin serving his sentence of 20 months to five years for his role in the burglary of a psychiatrist's office.

Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ordered Ehrlichman to report either to the U.S. marshal in Washington or to the warden of the Federal Prison Camp at Safford, Ariz., where the Bueau of Prisons has ordered Ehrlichman confinded.

Ehrlichman was found guilty July 12, 1974 on four counts of conspiring to violate a citizen's rights and making false statements in connection with the break-in at the office of Lewis Fielding, psychiatrist for Pentagon Papers figure Daniel Ellsberg.

Ehrlichman, once the No. 2 man in the Nixon White House, also was convicted on Jan. 1, 1975 of one count of conspiracy, one count of obstruction of justice, and two counts of making false declarations to a grand jury when he denied being able to remember various facts in the Wateragte break-in and cover-up.

Ehrlichman has been appealing both decisions. He has served no time in jail.

Gesell signed the confinement order and entered it in Ehrlichman's file and ordered copies mailed to Ehrlichman's attorney. No court session was called for an announcement of the order.

Ehrlichman appealed the conviction to the Circuit Court of Appeals and was turned down last May. He appealed for a rehearing by the full court but was again turned down.

He has a pending appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, which is now in its summer recess, but returns Oct. 4.

In his order Gesell said he was taking the action because Ehrlichman's conviction has "been unanimously approved on appeal and rehearing en banc denied. . ."

Ehrlichma'ns bond, he said, "is hereby revoked and defendant is directed to report on or before nooon, Sept. 17" to the marshal or to the prison warden.

The break-in at Fielding's office in 1971 was part of the White House Plumbers operation. Convicted with Ehrlichman were G. Gordon Liddy, a mastermind of the Watergate break-in; Eugenio Martinez and Bernard L. Barker, two of the original Watergate burglars.

The Watergate special prosecutors' office probed to the satisfaction of the Federal jury that Erhlichman had been involved in the planning of the break-in at Fielding's office in an attempt to discredit Ellsberg; and that in two meetings in 1973 with David Young, Co-director of the Plumbers, Ehrlichman had reacknowledged his role in the operation.

Ehrlichman's defense was that he had not authorized an illegal break-in, but merely "a legal covert operation."

But out of hearing of the jury, Gesell said Ehrlichman's "defense has been one of guarding and dodging around various issues of the case."

And in his charge to the jury, Gesell said: "An individual cannot escape criminal liability simply because he sincerely but incorrectly believes that his acts are justified in the name of patriotism, of national security or that his superiors had the authority to suspend without a warrant the protections of the Fourth Amendment" against unreasonable searches.

In the Watergate cover-up conviction, Ehrlichman was sentenced to 2½ to eight years in prison by Judge John J. Sirica. Ehrlichman could have recieved up to 20 years in jail and a $35,000 fine.

Since then, Ehlrichman moved to New Mexico to provide legal advise to Indians. He had previously been a land-use attorney in Seattle.

Colored S. Africa rioters scream 'we want blood!'

The man was trying to take cover from the police fire behind an ambulance parked on the street. He suddenly lurched from behind it, staggering. He had been struck in the chest by a police bullet.

The man coughed once and fell backwards on the street behind the ambulance, his eyes gaping. Blood seeped from a yellow silk scarf he had knotted loosely around his neck and trickled down the side of his mouth.

Minutes later, streets which were filled with swarming, yelling demonstrators cleared and thin wisps of tear gas smoke drifted through the silence.

In Soweto, a black township near Johannesburg, 1,000 miles north, police killed a black man when they shot at a gang discovered tearing up railroad tracks for weapons.

Police said the blacks hurled stones at their patrol car.

The new violence shattered a three-day lull and coincided with the return to work and reopening of businesses following a long holiday weekend marking Settlers' Day. It also coincided with the return of Prime Minister John Vorster from Switzerland where he held three days of talks with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Businesses quickly closed again and iron bars clanged across the doors of shops as police moved in to disperse mobs in the exclusive all-white area of Cape Town.

At one point, a colored mob attacked a white couple in a car who wandered into the battle area. The attackers begain to shake the car, trying to overturn it. Two plainclothes policemen came to the couple's rescue and began dragging away two of the rioters.

In Hamburg, W. Germany meantime, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said he is ready to conduct a shuttle diplomacy mission to try to avert a bloodbath in southern Africa pending an invitation from black leaders.

But a senior U.S. official said Kissinger had already received such an invitation from Tanzania's foreign minister and "it looks as if we are going."

The U.S. official told reporters it was all but certain Kissinger would consult with President Ford and leave for Africa no later than Monday.

For his part, Kissingr told a news conference, "I cannot at this point make it definite." He said he awaits a formal invitation from African leaders who completed a summit meeting in Dar es Salaam, Tanzania earlier Tuesday.

Ford demands full Viet MIA accounting

President Ford demanded Tuesday that North Vietnam provide a full accounting of Americans missing in action in Southeast Asia, saying release of only a partial list was "callous and cruel." The President said there is no chance of the two countries achieving diplomatic relations until there is a full report on the missing men.

Appearing in the White House press room, Ford announced that the American Embassy in Paris has contacted North Vietnamese representatives, at his direction, and informed them "that we expect that the U.S. will be provided with a full accounting without further delay of all the Americans missing in Vietnam." On Monday, the Vietnamese turned over to the American Embassy a list of 12 pilots killed during the Vietnam War. "None of us can be satisfied by this limited action by the Vietnamese," the President said.

Senate OKs Congress pay hike freeze

The Senate, charged with lacking political "guts" in an election year, Monday approved a one-year freeze on pay raises for members of Congress. The Senate, following the lead of the House, voted 46 to 25 to ban any pay raise for senators and congressmen during fiscal 1977 which begins Oct. 1 — about a month before the elections. But the Senate, first by voice vote and reaffirmed on a 55-19 roll call, agreed to exempt top-level employes of the government's judicial and executive branches from the proposed wage freeze. The dispute over pay raises for top-echelon officials in the federal and executive branches will have to be resolved in a Senate-House conference.

Health strategy built on flu program

President Ford's unprecedented campaign to avert a swine flu epidemic will help identify children needing immunization against other diseases, according to a five-year government health plan released Tuesday. The Public Health Service said its preventive health care strategy through 1982 will include "building on the National Influenza Immunization Program to assess and undertake major prevention efforts for the benefit of the American people." This will include identification of children lacking immunization against diseases like polio and measles, said the third annual edition of the service's Forward Plan for Health. Necessary immunizations will be provided later, it said.

Day-care center aid bill signed

President Ford Tuesday signed into law a bill carrying additional aid to states for child day-care programs, and delaying for a year the imposition of federal standards for staffing the centers. The President said in a statement that his veto of an earlier measure, sustained by Congress, produced a compromise he welcomed because "ensuring adequate day care for children is an important social service." The legislation, for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, adds $240 million to the roughly $600 million states were getting to operate day care centers. The vetoed version called for a $375 million increase. The bill satisfied Ford's chief objection to the earlier measure by supending until Oct. 1, 1977, federal guidelines on the number of persons needed to staff day-care centers.

Fighting stills Lebanon peace talks

Escalated fighting in Beirut and the Lebanese countryside brought Arab League peace efforts to a standstill Tuesday and Christian leaders said only further Syrian intervention could end the war. Escalating artillery duels in the rugged mountains northeast of Beirut threatened to explode into a long-feared "battle of the mountains." A leftist newspaper said both Moslem and Christian militias had thrown "more sophisticated and more deadly" weapons, including missiles, into the spreading fight for the peaks that mark the eastern frontier of Christian-held territory.

U.S. OKs asylum for Soviet pilot

TOKYO (UPI) — A Soviet MIG25 pilot who planned his defection from the Communist regime for two years will leave Wednesday for the United States and promised political asylum, Japan's Foreign Ministry said Tuesday.

The White House said President Ford would grant asylum to Lt. Viktor Ivanovich Belenko, who said he fled the Soviet Union because it had become like a czarist regime.

Apparently trying not to further strain relations with the Kremlin, Japan has turned down requests from Western nations to examine the MIG25 jet, government sources said Wednesday.

Belenko's MIG25 jet, one of the fastest planes in the world, will remain in Japan at present despite Soviet demands that it must be returned at once. The twin-engine fighter-reconnaissance plane, which flies at more than three times the speed of sound, was a rich prize for Western intelligence, which reportedly has never before had a chance to inspect one closely.

"Life in the Soviet Union today is like that of the czarist regime, and there is no freedom," police quoted Belenko as saying. He told Japanese interpreters he wants to live in the United States, where he hopes to get an "aviation related" job.

A Japanese Foreign Ministry spokesman said Belenko, who speaks a few words of English, would be turned over to American officials early Wednesday. He was expected to leave Japan the same day.

Belenko, 29, flew from his base in Siberia Monday, crossed the Sea of Japan and slipped his plane under Japan's radar defense screen for a surprise landing at Hakodate City, 500 miles north of Tokyo. After questioning he spent his first night — police guards said he was nervous and did not sleep well — in a $27.58 room at Hokodate's Grand Hotel. He ate a ham sandwich and retired at 10 p.m.

The Soviet aviator told police he has planned to defect to the United States for two years. He said he finally made the flight Monday because he had a full tank of fuel.

Holiday traffic deaths soar to 526

by United Press International

The traffic death toll during the Labor Day weekend soared to 526, the highest since 1973, before the Arab oil embargo forced speed limit reductions, a final count showed Tuesday.

The National Safety Council blamed a basic increase in travel, fair weather which enticed more vacationers onto the roads, and possibly speeding on the highways.

The toll was 119 above last year's Labor Day holiday death count of 407 and 66 above the highest preholiday estimate of the Safety Council.

The council had estimated that between 360 and 460 persons would die in traffic between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday.

"It is tragic that the total of traffic fatalities has gone so high for this holiday weekend," said Vincent L. Tofany, president of the Safety Council.

"There was increased travel this Labor Day compared to last, and perhaps an unfortunate increase in the speeds being traveled on the highways. In addition, we had clear, warm weather across the nation which drew more people to the roads."

California, which often has the highest death toll, led again this year with 56, 13 more than in the same period last year. A highway department spokesman said good weather brought out heavy traffic throughout the state.

North Dakota, which usually has few traffic deaths during holiday periods, recorded nine during the weekend.

Texas finished with 47 traffic fatalities, Ohio 25, Illinois and New York 23 each, and Michigan and Pennsylvania 22 apiece.

Four persons were killed in a three-car collision in South Sioux City, Neb., Monday night, four died in the head-on collision of two cars near Royal City, Wash., Saturday night and four died in a head-on crash near Sedan, Kan., early Saturday. Police said one of the cars involved in the Sedan collision had been traveling the wrong way for several miles.

Forty-one persons drowned during the holiday weekend and 16 died in plane crashes, including four in the crash Monday of a single-engine private plane at North Amityville, N.Y.

In all, there were 583 accidental deaths.

BUSING TO ACHIEVE first stage integration of Milwaukee schools began Tuesday with only first-day problems. About 6,600 students boarded buses to ride to new schools as part of a voluntary desegregation plan. Peaceful busing also took place in Louisville, Omaha, and Dayton, Ohio. Boston hopes to continue the peaceful pattern Wednesday.

U.S. judge orders Ehrlichman to prison

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday revoked John E. Ehrlichman's bond and ordered him to report Sept. 17 to begin serving his sentence of 20 months to five years for his role in the burglary of a psychiatrist's office.

Senate OKs Congress pay hike freeze

The Senate, charged with lacking political "guts" in an election year, Monday approved a one-year freeze on pay raises for members of Congress. The Senate, following the lead of the House, voted 46 to 25 to ban any pay raise for senators and congressmen during fiscal 1977 which begins Oct. 1 — about a month before the elections. But the Senate, first by voice vote and reaffirmed on a 55-19 roll call, agreed to exempt top-level employes of the government's judicial and executive branches from the proposed wage freeze. The dispute over pay raises for top-echelon officials in the federal and executive branches will have to be resolved in a Senate-House conference.

Health strategy built on flu program

President Ford's unprecedented campaign to avert a swine flu epidemic will help identify children needing immunization against other diseases, according to a five-year government health plan released Tuesday. The Public Health Service said its preventive health care strategy through 1982 will include "building on the National Influenza Immunization Program to assess and undertake major prevention efforts for the benefit of the American people." This will include identification of children lacking immunization against diseases like polio and measles, said the third annual edition of the service's Forward Plan for Health. Necessary immunizations will be provided later, it said.

Day-care center aid bill signed

President Ford Tuesday signed into law a bill carrying additional aid to states for child day-care programs, and delaying for a year the imposition of federal standards for staffing the centers. The President said in a statement that his veto of an earlier measure, sustained by Congress, produced a compromise he welcomed because "ensuring adequate day care for children is an important social service." The legislation, for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, adds $240 million to the roughly $600 million states were getting to operate day care centers. The vetoed version called for a $375 million increase. The bill satisfied Ford's chief objection to the earlier measure by supending until Oct. 1, 1977, federal guidelines on the number of persons needed to staff day-care centers.

Fighting stills Lebanon peace talks

Escalated fighting in Beirut and the Lebanese countryside brought Arab League peace efforts to a standstill Tuesday and Christian leaders said only further Syrian intervention could end the war. Escalating artillery duels in the rugged mountains northeast of Beirut threatened to explode into a long-feared "battle of the mountains." A leftist newspaper said both Moslem and Christian militias had thrown "more sophisticated and more deadly" weapons, including missiles, into the spreading fight for the peaks that mark the eastern frontier of Christian-held territory.

U.S. OKs asylum for Soviet pilot

TOKYO (UPI) — A Soviet MIG25 pilot who planned his defection from the Communist regime for two years will leave Wednesday for the United States and promised political asylum, Japan's Foreign Ministry said Tuesday.

The White House said President Ford would grant asylum to Lt. Viktor Ivanovich Belenko, who said he fled the Soviet Union because it had become like a czarist regime.

Apparently trying not to further strain relations with the Kremlin, Japan has turned down requests from Western nations to examine the MIG25 jet, government sources said Wednesday.

Belenko's MIG25 jet, one of the fastest planes in the world, will remain in Japan at present despite Soviet demands that it must be returned at once. The twin-engine fighter-reconnaissance plane, which flies at more than three times the speed of sound, was a rich prize for Western intelligence, which reportedly has never before had a chance to inspect one closely.

"Life in the Soviet Union today is like that of the czarist regime, and there is no freedom," police quoted Belenko as saying. He told Japanese interpreters he wants to live in the United States, where he hopes to get an "aviation related" job.

A Japanese Foreign Ministry spokesman said Belenko, who speaks a few words of English, would be turned over to American officials early Wednesday. He was expected to leave Japan the same day.

Belenko, 29, flew from his base in Siberia Monday, crossed the Sea of Japan and slipped his plane under Japan's radar defense screen for a surprise landing at Hakodate City, 500 miles north of Tokyo. After questioning he spent his first night — police guards said he was nervous and did not sleep well — in a $27.58 room at Hokodate's Grand Hotel. He ate a ham sandwich and retired at 10 p.m.

The Soviet aviator told police he has planned to defect to the United States for two years. He said he finally made the flight Monday because he had a full tank of fuel.

Holiday traffic deaths soar to 526

by United Press International

The traffic death toll during the Labor Day weekend soared to 526, the highest since 1973, before the Arab oil embargo forced speed limit reductions, a final count showed Tuesday.

The National Safety Council blamed a basic increase in travel, fair weather which enticed more vacationers onto the roads, and possibly speeding on the highways.

The toll was 119 above last year's Labor Day holiday death count of 407 and 66 above the highest preholiday estimate of the Safety Council.

The council had estimated that between 360 and 460 persons would die in traffic between 6 p.m. local time Friday and midnight Monday.

"It is tragic that the total of traffic fatalities has gone so high for this holiday weekend," said Vincent L. Tofany, president of the Safety Council.

"There was increased travel this Labor Day compared to last, and perhaps an unfortunate increase in the speeds being traveled on the highways. In addition, we had clear, warm weather across the nation which drew more people to the roads."

California, which often has the highest death toll, led again this year with 56, 13 more than in the same period last year. A highway department spokesman said good weather brought out heavy traffic throughout the state.

North Dakota, which usually has few traffic deaths during holiday periods, recorded nine during the weekend.

Texas finished with 47 traffic fatalities, Ohio 25, Illinois and New York 23 each, and Michigan and Pennsylvania 22 apiece.

Four persons were killed in a three-car collision in South Sioux City, Neb., Monday night, four died in the head-on collision of two cars near Royal City, Wash., Saturday night and four died in a head-on crash near Sedan, Kan., early Saturday. Police said one of the cars involved in the Sedan collision had been traveling the wrong way for several miles.

Forty-one persons drowned during the holiday weekend and 16 died in plane crashes, including four in the crash Monday of a single-engine private plane at North Amityville, N.Y.

In all, there were 583 accidental deaths.

BUSING TO ACHIEVE first stage integration of Milwaukee schools began Tuesday with only first-day problems. About 6,600 students boarded buses to ride to new schools as part of a voluntary desegregation plan. Peaceful busing also took place in Louisville, Omaha, and Dayton, Ohio. Boston hopes to continue the peaceful pattern Wednesday.

Ali sued for divorce on cruelty, desertion charges

Thompson a key in school-aid snarl

James Thompson, the GOP candidate for governor, has become a key figure in the school funding snarl that prompted Gov. Daniel Walker to call a special legislative session on the subject. If Thompson changes his mind and decides to back Walker's $95 million tax colection speed-up plan, the legislature is likely to approve it — and passage of the plan is crucial because Walker has tied it to school funding.

Walker says if he gets the tax plan, he will OK immediately sweeping changes in the school-aid formula because there will be enough money to pay for them. But if he doesn't get the tax plan, Walker says the changes can't take effect until the 1977-78 school year.

Until Thompson said he might back the tax plan, it appeared doomed even though Walker, Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Michael Howlett and state school chief Joseph Cronin all are for it. This is because Democrats, who control both houses of the legislature, don't have enough votes by themselves to go along with Walker's suggestion. They need help from the GOP minority — unlikely unless Thompson changes his mind.

Walker changes 2 banking bills

Gov. Daniel Walker Tuesday used his amendatory veto power on two bills designed to protect the confidentiality of bank and savings and loan accounts. Walker said his suggested changes will give depositors more protection against improper release of details about their accounts.

The bills are designed to define legally cases in which financial data about specific accounts may be disclosed. "Unfortunately," Walker said, "this bill, in its present form, does not define the circumstances of permissible disclosure with sufficient precision or narrowness. Consequently, it may have the effect of expanding the areas of permissible disclosure beyond those customarily followed today."

Walker said that, as passed by the legislature, the bills permit disclosure in response to a subpoena only if the subpoena is served on the depositor — except if a court waives the service requirement for undefined "good cause."

Police suspensions to be fought

Troopers Lodge 41, representing most state policemen, said Tuesday it will go to court to fight suspensions against nine troopers who issued warnings instead of speeding tickets. The lodge said Illinois State Police Supt. Dwight Pitman suspended the troopers on the basis of a special order it says conflicts with state law and is therefore invalid.

According to the Lodge press release, Pitman has ordered speeding tickets be issued in cases in which troopers feel a warning is more appropriate. "Where a violation occurs," the release said, "the Lodge strongly feels the policeman on the scene is in a much better position and is more qualified to make an enforcement decision than someone sitting in a plush office." Pitman said the suspensions, against three Effingham district and six Pontiac district trooprs, result from their failure to ticket motorists clocked in some cases "going 70 miles an hour."

$15 million bridge program OKd

Gov. Daniel Walker Tuesday signed into law a $15 million bridge repair program. Walker said the bond money will cover the cost of fixing "well over 100 bridges on township, municipal and county roads." Precisely which bridges the Illinois Dept. of Transportation will repair was not disclosed, a point which drew some criticism when the bill was before the legislature this spring. Lawmakers wanted some assurance the bridge money would be used on the most dilapidated spans. Walker did say any bridge repaired under the program will be able to carry school buses filled with children.

Cop hiring quotas lifted by judge

U.S. District Court Judge Prentice H. Marshall Tuesday suspended his order that the Chicago Police Dept. hire recruits under racial and sexual quotas and told the city to immediately employ 200 policemen. Marshall earlier had ordered the department to hire 42 per cent white men, 42 per cent black or Latino men and 16 per cent women.

In suspending the quota system Tuesday, Marshall noted the racial and sexual composition of those passing the police test was similar to the makeup of those taking the test. Of the 15,418 persons who took the test, 45.4 per cent were white men, 28.6 per cent were black or Latino men and 25.9 per cent were women. Those who passed the test composed a group of 50.2 per cent white men, 25.8 per cent black or Latino men and 23.9 per cent women. Marshall said the racial composition of the 200 officers to be hired should reflect how the groups fared on the test.

ERA lobby order sustained

The U.S. Appeals Court in Chicago has stayed an injunction issued by a judge in Peoria last month prohibiting a federally funded national women's commission from lobbying for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment, it was learned Tuesday. Appeals Court Judges Walter J. Cummings and Wilbur Pell entered the stay order Sept. 1, but the decision was not publicized and even the federal attorney defending the commission did not become aware of it until Tuesday.

U.S. Atty. Donald Mackay of Springfield said he learned of the decision when he received a copy of a motion filed Tuesday by anti-ERA forces asking the appeals court to reconsider its stay order. The motion asking for reconsideration was filed by J. S. Schlafly of Alton, Ill., husband of anti-ERA activist Phyllis Schlafly. Mrs. Schlafly and others involved in the court fight are trying to stop the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year from spending federal monies to promote ERA.

Driver sought in 4-death crash

Police issued an arrest warrant Tuesday for the owner of a car involved in a Maywood traffic accident that killed four members of one family. The crash was the worst in Illinois during the three-day Labor Day weekend and the number of traffic deaths in the state during the holiday was the highest since 1973. According to a UPI count, 23 persons died in Illinois highway accidents this year compared with 16 during Labor Day in 1975, 19 in 1974 and 30 in 1973.

Working women happier: poll

A study of women in a working class community near Boston indicates that married women holding jobs — even mundane ones — are happier and more satisfied than full-time housewives. The study, in the September issue of Psychology Today published in Chicago, indicated that almost twice as many housewives as employed wives said they were dissatisfied with their lives — 26 per cent to 14 per cent. And 41 per cent of the housewives compared with 22 per cent of the working wives believed their husbands' work was more interesting than theirs.

RTA, C&NW to consider pact

Officials from the Regional Transportation Authority and the Chicago and North Western Ry. will meet in a closed-door session Thursday to discuss a possible purchase-of-service agreement.

Negotiations for a contract have been stalled since April 16 when the North Western proposed an agreement that would have cost the RTA $44 million for the railroad's equipment, $6.3 million for 1976 commuter service and $1.7 million for 1977 commuter service.

The RTA has offered subsidies instead of an outright equipment purchase. It has proposed a $5.7 million subsidy for 1977.

Citing the breakdown in negotiations with the RTA, the North Western in July revived a request for a 15 per cent fare increase with the Illinois Commerce Commission.

WITHOUT A PURCHASE-of-service agreement, the railroad is not eligible for subsidy payments from the RTA.

Northwest suburban officials objecting to the proposed fare hike have told the ICC that area residents are paying twice for their rail service. They are paying taxes to the RTA and also are being asked to pay higher fares to erase the North Western's annual $4 million deficit.

The RTA agreed Tuesday to offer the bankrupt Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Co. $1.6 million cash grant via a proposed purchase-of-service agreement for the railroad's 1976 deficit.

The proposal also calls for a 1976-77 subsidy of $5.9 million for the Rock Island. The RTA Board stipulated that if the railroad accepts the offer, $540,000 must be spent to improve passenger safety and comfort.

THE ROCK ISLAND, which serves south suburbs, has filed a bankruptcy petition currently before U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr.

The proposed purchase-of-service contract will have to be reviewed by the court as well as Rock Island officials.

Rock Island trustee William Gibbons said he may recommend that McGarr reject the RTA offer because some of the money is earmarked for repairs that he thinks the RTA should pay for itself.

From the grant, $1.08 million would be used for repairs on the Rock Island's track and equipment, and Gibbons said the railraod would never see that repair money.

"WHAT THEY'RE doing is giving it to us and taking it away right away," he said. "We're not getting compensated for the equipment or the use of the road bed for commuter services the RTA is using."

UNDER PURCHASE-of-service agreements the Illinois Central Gulf and Milwaukee Road signed with the RTA, both railroads give use of their equipment and road beds at no cost to the RTA in return for subsidies.

RTA Board chairman Milton Pikarsky announced last week that there had been significant progress in negotiations with the Rock Island and also a crystalizing of positions in talks with the North Western.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan last week urged the ICC to delay any fare increase for the North Western so that talks on a purchase of service agreement could resume.

Reverend, rabbi share faiths through church

by PAUL GORES

The Rev. Stephen Dahl, pastor of Kingswood Methodist Church, believes Jesus Christ is the son of God and Savior of the world. Rabbi Floyd L. Herman, spiritual leader of Temple Chai Congregation, does not.

But the two clergymen have not let their theological differences prevent them from sharing facilities and working together for nearly three years. It is a relationship that both the Christian and the Jewish spiritual leaders have termed "enlightening" and "exciting."

Temple Chai began renting and sharing facilities and equipment with Kingswood Methodist Church in January 1974, after another Jewish congregation, Temple Beth Judea, left Buffalo Grove and moved to Long Grove. Temple Chai uses the Kingswood Church for its Friday night services and rents a portable trailer for Hebrew school classes.

"WE SHARE EVERYTHING," said the Rev. Dahl. And Rabb Herman agreed.

"We've shared and even exchanged pulpits a couple of times," Rabbi Herman said.

The two congregations share office equipment at the church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., along with facilities.

"The whole concept has been receptive so far to both congregations," said Jerry Smoller, chairman of the Temple Chai board. "There are problems but they are not insurmountable."

A basic problem was what to do during Jewish services with the large cross that hangs above the pulpit in the Christian church. Smoller said the cross is covered with a banner and the Torah (the first five books of the Bible) is brought in for the Jewish worship service. Smoller said that Kingswood's "Fireside Room" often is used as a synagog instead of the Christian sanctuary.

Smoller said there will be a time conflict this year because Christmas falls on a Saturday, and both congregations will need a place for Friday night worship. But there are usually very few time conflicts with Christian and Jewish holydays, Smoller said.

The two congregations held a joint worship service last Thanksgiving. The ceremony was well attended.

"I THINK THERE'S a better awareness of each other's religion," Rabbi Herman said.

"Our congregation certainly has become more aware of the Hebrew calendar as a result of sharing," the Rev. Dahl added.

Temple Chai and Kingswood Methodist Church have sponsored several other events together. Last spring the congregations co-sponsored two concerts, one by a jazz band and the other by bells and harps musicians. They watched a performance of "Hansel and Gretel" together, had a paper drive, played a church vs. synagog basketball game and jointly arranged to have Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson speak to the congregations.

Though they have held social and even a religious event together, the congregations have managed to avoid theological conflicts.

"I think there's a healthy respect to maintain each congregation's identity," the Rev. Dahl said.

Growth for the two congregations has been rapid since they began sharing facilities, and soon both will need a larger place of worship. Smoller said Temple Chai has about a 240-family membership drawn from several Northwest suburbs. The Rev. Dahl said the membership of Kingswood Methodist Church is about 700 persons, counting all those 13 years of age and older.

THE CONGREGATIONS are considering building a joint facility, with a separate synagog in addition to the Christian church, and classroom and kitchen facilities that would be shared. But Smoller said there may be a conflict in the building timetables of the congregations, and each eventually may build its own facility.

Regardless of future plans, the rabbi and the reverend say the sharing experience has been worthwhile.

"The future is open," the Rev. Dahl said. "We've covered the same ground for three years together, and now we have a lot of our own homework to do to see if it will continue."

Rabbi Herman seemed confident that the congregations will not grow too far apart, even if they end up in separate facilities.

"I expect to continue our friendship with the Methodist church no matter what the future is," he said.

Oct. arguments in housing case

prove the low-and moderate-income housing project would have the effect of continuing housing segregation in the Chicago area.

The housing group's argument, in general, was that the absence of low-and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights penalized minorities who make up a disproportionate part of the low-income population.

"We have no doubt that if Lincoln Green were built, it, unlike the rest of the village, would be an integrated community," Judge Luther M. Swygert wrote in the majority opinion of the appellate court.

"Though the building of this project might have only minimal effects in terms of alleviating the segretative housing problems for the entire Chicago area, it might well result in increasing Arlington Heights' minority population by over 1,000 per cent.

"What is even more crucial is that the suburb has not sponsored nor participated in any low-income housing developments, nor does the record reflect any such plans for the future," Swygert's ruling says.

SINCE THAT RULING, the village board has adopted a housing assistance plan calling for 125 units of low-and moderate-income housing to be provided in each of the next three years.

The housing plan was required of the village when the board decided in January to apply for $134,000 in community development funds from the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

Opponents of the Lincoln Green project were encouraged when the Arlington Heights-housing group case was mentioned in a Supreme Court ruling in June as one of 16 appellate court decisions with which the high court disagreed.

Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan objected to the inclusion of the Arlington Heights-housing group case, saying it "effectively reversed" the appellate court's decision.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel will present the Village of Arlington Heights' arguments before the Supreme Court. Willis Caruso is the attorney for the housing group.

blocking the path, Mrs. Perry said.

Mrs. Perry said the problem involves 11 children from the four homes now completed on Carriage Way Drive, and more families will be moving into the area when another 16 houses are completed this fall.

THE PARENTS will ask the board to continue bus service from Frenchman's Cove, Mrs. Perry said. She also said they will ask the board members to visit the area.

Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill said he was contacted by John Perry, Mrs. Perry's husband, about the situation. "I told him it was as safe as any place around," Gill said.

John Barger, associate superintendent, said the village of Arlington Heights has conducted a traffic study in the Frenchman's Cove area and "they found no reason for concern."

Arlington Heights Police Sgt. Jack Weber, who headed the traffic study, was not available for comment Tuesday.

Man collapses, dies at race track station

A 74-year-old Dolton man died Tuesday afternoon after collapsing on the platform of the Arlington Park Race Track commuter station.

Police said Arthur N. Nelson collapsed shortly after 3 p.m. Tuesday at the Chicago and North Western Ry. station. Despite efforts by Arlington Heights Patrolman Charles Pedersen and village fire paramedics to revive Nelson, he was declared dead at 4:50 p.m. at Northwest Community Hospital, police said.

Reverend, rabbi share faiths through church

by PAUL GORES

The Rev. Stephen Dahl, pastor of Kingswood Methodist Church, believes Jesus Christ is the son of God and Savior of the world. Rabbi Floyd L. Herman, spiritual leader of Temple Chai Congregation, does not.

But the two clergymen have not let their theological differences prevent them from sharing facilities and working together for nearly three years. It is a relationship that both the Christian and the Jewish spiritual leaders have termed "enlightening" and "exciting."

Temple Chai began renting and sharing facilities and equipment with Kingswood Methodist Church in January 1974, after another Jewish congregation, Temple Beth Judea, left Buffalo Grove and moved to Long Grove. Temple Chai uses the Kingswood Church for its Friday night services and rents a portable trailer for Hebrew school classes.

"WE SHARE EVERYTHING," said the Rev. Dahl. And Rabb Herman agreed.

"We've shared and even exchanged pulpits a couple of times," Rabbi Herman said.

The two congregations share office equipment at the church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., along with facilities.

"The whole concept has been receptive so far to both congregations," said Jerry Smoller, chairman of the Temple Chai board. "There are problems but they are not insurmountable."

A basic problem was what to do during Jewish services with the large cross that hangs above the pulpit in the Christian church. Smoller said the cross is covered with a banner and the Torah (the first five books of the Bible) is brought in for the Jewish worship service. Smoller said that Kingswood's "Fireside Room" often is used as a synagog instead of the Christian sanctuary.

Smoller said there will be a time conflict this year because Christmas falls on a Saturday, and both congregations will need a place for Friday night worship. But there are usually very few time conflicts with Christian and Jewish holydays, Smoller said.

The two congregations held a joint worship service last Thanksgiving. The ceremony was well attended.

"I THINK THERE'S a better awareness of each other's religion," Rabbi Herman said.

"Our congregation certainly has become more aware of the Hebrew calendar as a result of sharing," the Rev. Dahl added.

Temple Chai and Kingswood Methodist Church have sponsored several other events together. Last spring the congregations co-sponsored two concerts, one by a jazz band and the other by bells and harps musicians. They watched a performance of "Hansel and Gretel" together, had a paper drive, played a church vs. synagog basketball game and jointly arranged to have Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson speak to the congregations.

Though they have held social and even a religious event together, the congregations have managed to avoid theological conflicts.

"I think there's a healthy respect to maintain each congregation's identity," the Rev. Dahl said.

Growth for the two congregations has been rapid since they began sharing facilities, and soon both will need a larger place of worship. Smoller said Temple Chai has about a 240-family membership drawn from several Northwest suburbs. The Rev. Dahl said the membership of Kingswood Methodist Church is about 700 persons, counting all those 13 years of age and older.

THE CONGREGATIONS are considering building a joint facility, with a separate synagog in addition to the Christian church, and classroom and kitchen facilities that would be shared. But Smoller said there may be a conflict in the building timetables of the congregations, and each eventually may build its own facility.

Regardless of future plans, the rabbi and the reverend say the sharing experience has been worthwhile.

"The future is open," the Rev. Dahl said. "We've covered the same ground for three years together, and now we have a lot of our own homework to do to see if it will continue."

Rabbi Herman seemed confident that the congregations will not grow too far apart, even if they end up in separate facilities.

"I expect to continue our friendship with the Methodist church no matter what the future is," he said.

Oct. arguments in housing case

prove the low-and moderate-income housing project would have the effect of continuing housing segregation in the Chicago area.

The housing group's argument, in general, was that the absence of low-and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights penalized minorities who make up a disproportionate part of the low-income population.

"We have no doubt that if Lincoln Green were built, it, unlike the rest of the village, would be an integrated community," Judge Luther M. Swygert wrote in the majority opinion of the appellate court.

"Though the building of this project might have only minimal effects in terms of alleviating the segretative housing problems for the entire Chicago area, it might well result in increasing Arlington Heights' minority population by over 1,000 per cent.

"What is even more crucial is that the suburb has not sponsored nor participated in any low-income housing developments, nor does the record reflect any such plans for the future," Swygert's ruling says.

At least 1,000 extra needed: Kusper

Computer vote units 'insufficient'

by TONI GINNETTI

At least 1,000 additional computerized voting machines will be needed to accommodate suburban Cook County in the Nov. 2 general election, County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper Jr., said Tuesday.

Kusper, in a report to the county board, said the 9,200 "Votomatic" units already purchased by the county for the new punchcard voting system will provide only two units per voting precinct, which he termed insufficient.

However, Kusper made no formal request for additional purchases of the $204 machines, saying that decision should rest with the board.

"I JUST WANT to bring to your attention the situation," Kusper told the board. He added he would submit a written report on the matter to the board within two days.

The new machines are part of the computer punchcard voting system that will be used for the first time in suburban Cook County Nov. 2.

The system will eliminate the lever operated voting machines and is designed to cut election costs and provide for faster tallying.

County Comr. Carl Hansen after the meeting predicted that the additional purchases would be considered in either a special finance committee or special board meeting before the next regular board meeting Sept. 20. Kusper said if additional machines are to be purchased, the action must come "posthaste" to allow enough time to prepare for election day use.

"I'm concerned that now that we don't have the lever machines we must have enough Votomatics," Hansen said.

OFFICIALS ORIGINALLY believed the 9,200 units coupled with 400 lever voting machines would be sufficient for the suburban area. However, Kusper said it would be "suicidal" to attempt to operate the systems together.

Thomas P. Beck, county comptroller, said the 9,200 machines will provide one unit for every 122 registered voters.

That compares with ratios of one unit for 100 voters in Los Angeles, Calif., Cincinnati, Ohio, and McHenry County, where punch card voting systems also are used.

"I really don't know what the great sweat is," Board Pres. George Dunne said. He predicted an 80 per cent voter turnout and said the number of machines already available probably could accommodate voters in the 12 hours the polls will be open.

Kusper also proposed a plan to publish and distribute to every registered suburban voter a sample ballot booklet explaining the new system. He did not estimate how much the plan would cost but said funds were available in the clerk's budget for the project.

KUSPER SAID the plan is needed to help acquaint voters with the new system before the general election.

"It will not be the (county) commissioners who will be getting the calls on election day saying 'What are you trying to do to me. I've never seen this before. It's another dirty plot,' " he said.

The plan would supplement a program to place punch card demonstration units in 900 grocery stores, banks, savings and loan associations and municipal and township offices countywide.

Kusper said agreements between the county and Dominick's, Jewel and National food stores and a number of savings insititutions have been made to accommodate the program.

Flu-shot plan query sparks Dunne's ire

Cook County Comr. Carl R. Hansen thought he was asking a question about the county's swine flue inoculation program.

But Board Pres. George Dunne figured Hansen was trying to hog the floor.

And that's when the tongue-lashing started at the close of Tuesday's county board meeting.

Hansen asked Dunne why his August request for a report on the county's swine flue inoculation program had not been included on the board agenda. Dunne said he did not think it belonged there and that a report from the county board of health had been prepared on the subject.

Hansen then asked Dunne what the procedure should be to place the subject on the county's meeting agenda.

"This is the epitome of the political egos that we're dealing with," Dunne told Hansen in disgust.

"You commissioners are not the administrators," Dunne then told the rest of the board.

Area Dems in torchlight parade

Area Democratic township organizations and Democratic clubs are planning to send contingents to march Thursday in the torchlight parade honoring Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

Most township leaders indicated that groups of 30 to 50 persons will be marching in the parade and attending the state Democratic convention at the Medinah Temple.

Carter is expected to join the parade, a Chicago political tradition, at about 8 p.m. His Illinois schedule includes a noontime rally on the steps of the state capitol in Springfield, an apperance in Peoria and a 5 p.m. rally at the Evergreen Plaza Shopping Mall, 95th Street and Western Avenue, Evergreen Park.

THE PARADE, which is sponsored by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, is expected to draw an estimated 60,000 marchers. The parade will step off from Wacker Drive and Michigan Avenue at 7 p.m., travel north on Michigan Avenue to Ontario and go west on Ontario to the Medinah Temple.

Democratic ward and township committeemen met for a noon luncheon Tuesday to map final plans for the march and the state convention.

Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman John Morrissey said the leaders got encouragement to bring large groups to the parade.

The appearance by Carter is his first in the state since winning the party presidential nomination in July.

The Evergreen Park rally is aimed at helping freshman U.S. Rep. Martin A. Russo, D-3rd, who is locked in a touch election fight with Republican Ronald Buikema, an attorney from South Holland.

George Fruzyan, president of the Palatine Township Democratic Club, said he expects that organization to put between 35 and 50 marchers in to the torchlight parade.

Health plan agency OKd for suburbs by HEW

A comprehensive health planning agency that includes at least four Northwest suburban residents has been approved for the area by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency will be responsible for health planning and for approval of all federal health spending within its boundaries.

No federal grants for health, hospital expansion or major equipment purchase can go forward without approval of the health systems agency.

The health systems agency board represents health-care providers, consumers and public officials. The Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency was one of two groups competing for the planning power.

Area residents who are part of the agency include State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter; Naurice Nesset, Palatine, President of Lutheran General Hospital; and Rev. Leon A. Haring, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights.

The group selected by HEW had been recommended by Gov. Dan Walker. Walker said he recommended the agency for three major reasons. They are:

- Extensive public hearings were conducted by the agency on the composition of its board;
- The group drew from a broad base of community representation;
- An extensive review of applicants was made by the state comprehensive health planning advisory council which favorably endorsed the Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency.

There are now 10 federally designated health service areas in Illinois. The area still without an approved agency is Will, Grundy and Kankakee counties.

Continuing ed topic of program

"Concepts and Opportunities of Continuing Education" is the Focus: Northwest radio show topic at 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Sunday on station WWMM, 92.7FM.

M. Scott McMannis, chairman, Lifelong Learning Division, Harper College, moderates the program. Discussion guests include John Fish, coordinator, Continuing Education, High School Dist. 214; Harold Collins, assistant dean, College of Continuing Education, Northern Illinois University, DeKalb; and Dave Lieberman, director of education, Roth College, Northbrook.

Area residents who are part of the agency include State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights; Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter; Naurice Nesset, Palatine, President of Lutheran General Hospital; and Rev. Leon A. Haring, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights.

The group selected by HEW had been recommended by Gov. Dan Walker. Walker said he recommended the agency for three major reasons. They are:

- Extensive public hearings were conducted by the agency on the composition of its board;
- The group drew from a broad base of community representation;
- An extensive review of applicants was made by the state comprehensive health planning advisory council which favorably endorsed the Suburban Cook County-DuPage County Health Systems Agency.

There are now 10 federally designated health service areas in Illinois. The area still without an approved agency is Will, Grundy and Kankakee counties.

Continuing ed topic of program

A Sally Newcomb silhouette is forever...at Carsons Randhurst

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 13th through SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 18th you can have a collector's treasure of your own and see it done from life, in a tiny space of time. Snip, glance, snip: Sally Newcomb has the rare skill to cut the most spirited and striking likeness of man or beast...or (most specially) children. Her silhouettes are a very cherished gift for someone you love. An appointment is suggested: call 392-2000. And the prices, so modest; head of man or beast, 3.00: full figure, 7.50; pets (depending on size, behavior and hairiness), 5.00 to 7.50; all copies at half-price. Oval frames available at modest prices, too. Monday through Saturday, 10:00 to 5:00. CARSONS RANDHURST: Elmhurst and Rand Roads, Mt. Prospect.

Ask Andy

Homely aardvark unique animal

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Judi-Ann Sider, 7, of St. Catharines, Ont., Canada, for her question:

COULD YOU PLEASE TELL ME ABOUT THE AARDVARK?

The aardvark may be a homely animal, but he is unique in many ways. He is an order, family and genus all by himself. His features are a rather comical combination of donkey ears, long narrow muzzle, humped back, short legs and a long tapering tail. He measures from three to six feet long and weighs up to 140 pounds. His brownish skin is leathery thick and covered with a thin coat of hair.

To get at the juicy termites on his dinner menu, the aardvark first uses his strong toes and claws, four on the front legs and five on the back. After ripping apart a termite mound or nest, he inserts his long 18-inch tongue. As it darts here and there in the nest, hundreds of termites stick to it.

Home for the aardvark is a complex underground burrow dug with his sharp claws at amazing speed. The tunnels may be 10 feet deep, complete with many entrances and even dead-end rooms. This underground den is where the female gives birth to her single baby, who is pampered with loving care until ready to be on its own.

The aardvark's skill and speed in digging comes in handy when an enemy comes around. If he can't escape to his burrow or dig a new one fast enough, however, he will roll on his back and flail his short stubby legs, using his sharp claws as weapons.

The aardvark may not win a beauty prize, but he uses his bulky body well. While most animals sleep, he prowls the termite-or ant-infested territory in search of dinner. No one really knows how many termites fall victim to his long sticky tongue, but it must be an astronimical number. By limiting the growth of termite and ant populations, the aardvark contributes a valuable service in maintaining the ecological balance of the environment.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Jimmy Bleasdell, 12, of Enumclaw, Wash., for his question:

DO BIRDS HEAR?

Yes, birds can hear and they do quite well in this department. True, birds do not have outer ears like we do. But our outer ear is only part of our hearing system. The rest of it is inside our skull, which is where hearing really takes place.

Birds need to hear well for a number of reasons. They proclaim their territory and select mates with a series of chirps they weave into their own melodious songs. Excited squawks, screeches and clucks sound the alarm when some kind of danger threatens. Some birds, owls for example, hunt in the dark of night, and their keenness of hearing often means the difference between a meal and going hungry.

Proper contract takes finesse

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Today some experts play that the man who responds two-over-one promises a rebid. The Jacobys play that he promises a rebid except when opener merely rebids to two of his own suit. We strongly recommend this course of action.

In the old days the two-notrump rebid was supposed to show 16 or 17 high-card points. Modern experts and today's teachers have given this up and merely use it to show a hand that looks right for notrump play.

South has a minimum opening, but a proper two-notrump rebid. North is a trifle unhappy about the fact that his two-diamond response had scraped the bottom of the barrel, but since he had promised to rebid over anything but two spades he goes on to game.

East takes his ace of hearts and leads the suit back. South wins in his hand and goes after diamonds. West wins the second or third diamond with his ace and clears the heart suit.

South runs the diamonds to give him six tricks in and then considers the black suits. He has a two-way finesse for the queen of clubs. If he takes it against East, all will be sunshine and he will win the rubber. If he goes wrong, he will be set. But certainly the game contract turned out to be a good one.

Proper contract takes finesse

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Today some experts play that the man who responds two-over-one promises a rebid. The Jacobys play that he promises a rebid except when opener merely rebids to two of his own suit. We strongly recommend this course of action.

In the old days the two-notrump rebid was supposed to show 16 or 17 high-card points. Modern experts and today's teachers have given this up and merely use it to show a hand that looks right for notrump play.

South has a minimum opening, but a proper two-notrump rebid. North is a trifle unhappy about the fact that his two-diamond response had scraped the bottom of the barrel, but since he had promised to rebid over anything but two spades he goes on to game.

East takes his ace of hearts and leads the suit back. South wins in his hand and goes after diamonds. West wins the second or third diamond with his ace and clears the heart suit.

South runs the diamonds to give him six tricks in and then considers the black suits. He has a two-way finesse for the queen of clubs. If he takes it against East, all will be sunshine and he will win the rubber. If he goes wrong, he will be set. But certainly the game contract turned out to be a good one.

The lighter side

The once and future leak

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI) — Current news item:

Although the House ethics committee has spent $134,456 and labored like a mountain lion trying to find out who leaked a secret report to a television newsman, it has brought forth not even a mouse.

So now the committee is seeking an additional $100,000 to carry on the investigation.

Future news item:

The House Ethics Committee voted today to ask the House for an additional $10 million to continue its investigation into the leak of a secret document 40 years ago.

Rep. Fermus Crashbore, the third chairman the committee has had since the inquiry began in 1976, said the money was needed to pay the salaries of the 5,000 staff investigators who have been hired to track down the source of the leak.

"Unfortunately," he told the House, "we are no closer to solving the case. Without this additional funding, we would have to suspend the inquiry before it is completed and the $80 million already spent would be wasted."

The committee recently became involved in a controversy over whether to subpoena Sigmund Schorr, 12-year-old grandson of Daniel Schorr, the 100-year-old television newsman to whom the secret report was leaked.

Crashbore conceded that since young Schorr wasn't even born at the time there was little likelihood he had any first hand knowledge of the incident.

"But there's always a chance he might have heard his grandpappy say something that would cast some light on who did it," Crashbore said.

"Some of those other codgers become pretty garrulous when they are around their grandkids."

Apart from Schorr's grandson, the chairman said "there aren't any other prospective witnesses left to subpoena." He pointed out that everyone originally connected with the case was either dead or senile.

Further hampering the investigation is the fact that the CIA, which was the subject of the report, was abolished 25 years ago after revelations that its agents spent all their time spying on each other.

The elder Schorr has steadfastly refused for four decades to divulge the name of the person who gave him a copy of the report. Lately, according to committee sources, when anyone approaches him about the matter, Schorr swings at them with his cane.

These sources said there was a good chance that Schorr had forgotten who it was that leaked the report to him.

Asked why the ethics committee had persisted in trying to learn the source of the leak, Crashbore explained if it weren't for the Schorr investigation his group would have nothing to do.

"Congressmen nowadays are above reproach," he complained. "There hasn't been a mistress on the payroll in 30 years."

The way we see it

Stick to matters at hand

The Illinois General Assembly goes back to Springfield today for a rare preelection special session to deal with education funding in the state.

There was some question about the wisdom of such a special session in the midst of this election year, but Gov. Daniel Walker declared that school officials urged him to do it.

We believe the session is a good move, as we have said before. But when the lawmakers go back to Springfield, they should be prepared to work on only educational matters and approve Walker's accelerated tax collection plan.

Two months before an election is not the proper time to deal with other issues. State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said she plans to request a concurrent special session to attempt to restore funds trimmed from the appropriation for the Salt Creek Watershed project.

Mrs. Chapman is an able legislator and the Salt Creek project is worthwhile and should be funded. But we believe the legislature will have enough time to consider that project and others after the election.

Lawmakers, like Mrs. Chapman, must show restraint this time around. If they are able to act responsibly on the education matters, the state will be better off. If they choose to use the session to posture about other election issues and campaign for reelection, the people of this state will be the losers.

Health laws justified

High School Dist. 214 sent more than 20 students home the first day of school for failing to have proper medical forms completed.

More than 300 new students came to school the first day without the forms and the district, after warning students they could not attend school without the necessary inoculations, allowed those with scheduled doctor's appointments to remain while sending the rest home.

The reason behind the move is twofold: the county health department requires physicals and certain shots for all students new to a district, and rubella, or measles as it is commonly called — a disease that travels rapidly through schools and poses a serious threat to children.

The district had two reported cases of measles last year and the county insisted medical requirements be met this year. Dist. 214 took that warning seriously as well it should. Other districts should follow suit.

Schlikkman upset by editorial stand

In your editorial of Sept. 1, you recognized Sec. of State Michael Howlett for following through with the promise that a driver's licensing center would be located in the northwest suburbs and suggested that my criticism of Howlett's procrastination was political.

Here's the record:

• Prior to Howelett's term as Sec. of State more than four years ago, his predecessor authorized an engineering study that proved the feasibility and need for a full-service motor vehicle facility for the northwest suburbs to be financed through motor fuel funds.

• This study was implemented by a bill that I introduced, and which the legislature passed and former governor Richard B. Ogilvie approved in a bill-signing ceremony in Rolling Meadows.

• Howlett's predecessor immediately moved forward to locate a site that would have featured on-site driver's testing. A site northwest of Palatine was selected but because of an objection it was abandoned, unfortunately.

• Howlett's predecessor then appointed a citizen's committee, consisting of local officials, to locate and recommend a suitable site. The results of the committee's conclusions were conveyed to Mr. Howlett, but he vacillated.

• Two years later, Howlett decided that the long-promised facility for the northwest suburbs would be located south of the City of Elgin in a vacated state facility, farther removed from the northwest suburbs. In fact, his office represented that a lease had been signed, but it hadn't.

• Then, about a year ago, Howlett's office announced that it was abandoning this commitment to a full-service facility in favor of leased, limited service space at one of the busiest intersections in the area. There would be no one-site driver's testing and no sale of license plates.

• But even this breach of commitment wasn't honored by immediate action on Mr. Howlett's part. He continued to procrastinate.

In light of this record, can anyone be surprised or critical of my reaction (to an inquiry by one of your reportrs) that Howlett is "a fraud and a phoney?" Interestingly, only after my charge, did Howlett finally do something, albeit little.

For five years, I have worked in conjunction with The Herald and others in satisfying a dire need of the northwest suburbs. Until Mr. Howlett became Sec. of State, we almost had succeeded. Following his election, there was a string of broken promises. Finally, by his grace and blessing, we get a crumb.

In the meantime, I should add, I was re-districted out of a major portion of the northwest suburbs, and the constituency I now represent will find little use in what is provided, or what could have and should have been provided. But just because a majority of the citizens I now represent will not benefit is no reason in my mind not to keep faith with my past efforts and, more importantly, the need and right of the northwest suburbs. If this is "campaigning," as you stated, so be it. But I think The Herald has lost sight of the original goal and has been seduced by the public relations of a politician.

Today's topic: "All the Presidents' Ladies," is discussed by Letitia Baldridge, former social secretary to Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, and Gerry vander Heuvel, former executive assistant to Pat Nixon. Their remarks are excerpted from the National Town Meeting which is held each Wednesday in Washington, D.C. at the Kennedy Center.

LETITIA BALDRIDGE

Define the role of First Lady.

I would like to plead the case of the most underpaid woman in the world — the First Lady. If I were doing a government job description on her, I'd have six points. Number one, she has to oversee the health and welfare of the first gentleman of the land.

She has the power to defeat or re-elect him. Number two, she has the care and responsibility of the most important house in the world. How would you like to have from ten to twelve thousand people traipsing through your house every day? And also having to feed 180 people at small intimate dinners every night. Number three, she's in charge of the mothering of either shy or rambunctious, dumb or bright, pretty or ugly children under the most difficult possible circumstances in that goldfish bowl of a White House. Number four, her schedule — she's on the go from 9 a.m. to midnight, six days a week. That constitutes a 90-hour week. Number five, she has to be a super diplomat at all times, more so than Henry Kissinger. Number six, she has to have a cause, which started back in Jacqueline Kennedy's day when she turned the White House from a very nondescript, dust-catching house into a museum.

The job (of First Lady) has become molded in a very affirmative, strong direction. The American public now is used to a doer. I don't think a First Lady can be complacent and a stay-at-home any longer. A man isn't going to get elected anymore unless his wife is an activist. And so there has to be a cause.

Only a woman need apply for this job, so far, until we have a woman as president and then a man can apply for the job. There's no chief executive officer of a large corporation earning from three hundred to four hundred thousand dollars a year who has more responsibility or a tougher schedule than this woman.

So, since both parties have promised to clean up government and to change inequities in the wage and scale system, my premise is that we should definitely pay the First Lady a very big salary because she deserves it.

What's the worst thing that happened to you during your days in the White House?

One of the worst was when President Kennedy came by and saw that we weren't using the Marine band at a rehearsal for a performance of the New York City Ballet. We couldn't use the band because we had too many people coming so we had to use taped music. The President looked at the tape recorder and said, "What if it breaks?" And I said there are two tape recorders playing simultaneously and if one breaks down, the other picks it right up. That night, one of the boys put on a powerful spotlight which had not been used in rehearsal and every fuse in the White House blew right in the middle of Brigadoon. The Secret Service rushed to the doors, fearing the worst, and the President said to the King of Morocco, "Your Majesty, it's all part of the show." But I could just hear him saying "that Tish Baldridge."

GERRY VANDER HEUVEL

Define the role of First Lady.

Back when the Founding Fathers were struggling to design a new democratic government, they were walking a tightrope on the powers and responsibilities of the chief executive. The one position they found no need to define — or give official status to — was the responsibility of the President's wife.

They simply assumed that she would oversee the President's house and household, entertain his guests, and take a position in society that would reflect well on him and the country. The role of First Lady evolved within this framework of wifely duties, expanding as the role of women, in general, expanded. But from the beginning, the President's wife was established in the minds and hearts of the American people as a person to be set apart, to be accorded affection, respect and admiration. She is and was their substitute for the royal consort. Consequently, she was then and still is an anomaly in a democratic government. She has a high ranking, potentially powerful position, yet it is not an elective office or even an appointed one. It's not even a volunteer service, though that comes close. So does slave labor.

Actually, a First Lady is rather like the vestal virgin in ancient Rome. She's exalted on one hand and flogged on the other. It is little wonder that First Ladies, at least some, have approached the role with ambivalent thoughts and emotions. One woman fainted — and not from joy — when informed of the prospect. One stayed upstairs in the family quarters and another simply did not come to Washington. On the other hand, there were those who were the moving forces behind their husband's quest for the presidency. As women became educated and their role outside the home expanded, public expectations changed and First Ladies became involved in activities completely apart from domestic duties. They have lobbied for legislation, supported social causes, taken political stands and campaigned on their own. At the same time they have continued to carry out their domestic duties.

Considering the fact that the role is arbitrarily assigned without regard to age, talent, experience or an FBI check, there have been few outright failures in the job and a number of commendable successes.

What's the worst thing that happened to you at the White House?

I think I (should have trained) to be a veterinarian because I spent so much time in the dog house. The first thing that happened to me is I had just gone into this administration and there was great speculation whether I was indeed or wasn't really a Democrat. And the first thing I did at the first luncheon was to introduce Mrs. Nixon as Mrs. Johnson.

The once and future leak

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI) — Current news item:

Although the House ethics committee has spent $134,456 and labored like a mountain lion trying to find out who leaked a secret report to a television newsman, it has brought forth not even a mouse.

So now the committee is seeking an additional $100,000 to carry on the investigation.

Future news item:

The House Ethics Committee voted today to ask the House for an additional $10 million to continue its investigation into the leak of a secret document 40 years ago.

Rep. Fermus Crashbore, the third chairman the committee has had since the inquiry began in 1976, said the money was needed to pay the salaries of the 5,000 staff investigators who have been hired to track down the source of the leak.

"Unfortunately," he told the House, "we are no closer to solving the case. Without this additional funding, we would have to suspend the inquiry before it is completed and the $80 million already spent would be wasted."

The committee recently became involved in a controversy over whether to subpoena Sigmund Schorr, 12-year-old grandson of Daniel Schorr, the 100-year-old television newsman to whom the secret report was leaked.

Crashbore conceded that since young Schorr wasn't even born at the time there was little likelihood he had any first hand knowledge of the incident.

"But there's always a chance he might have heard his grandpappy say something that would cast some light on who did it," Crashbore said.

"Some of those other codgers become pretty garrulous when they are around their grandkids."

Apart from Schorr's grandson, the chairman said "there aren't any other prospective witnesses left to subpoena." He pointed out that everyone originally connected with the case was either dead or senile.

Further hampering the investigation is the fact that the CIA, which was the subject of the report, was abolished 25 years ago after revelations that its agents spent all their time spying on each other.

The elder Schorr has steadfastly refused for four decades to divulge the name of the person who gave him a copy of the report. Lately, according to committee sources, when anyone approaches him about the matter, Schorr swings at them with his cane.

These sources said there was a good chance that Schorr had forgotten who it was that leaked the report to him.

Asked why the ethics committee had persisted in trying to learn the source of the leak, Crashbore explained if it weren't for the Schorr investigation his group would have nothing to do.

"Congressmen nowadays are above reproach," he complained. "There hasn't been a mistress on the payroll in 30 years."

The way we see it

Stick to matters at hand

The Illinois General Assembly goes back to Springfield today for a rare preelection special session to deal with education funding in the state.

There was some question about the wisdom of such a special session in the midst of this election year, but Gov. Daniel Walker declared that school officials urged him to do it.

We believe the session is a good move, as we have said before. But when the lawmakers go back to Springfield, they should be prepared to work on only educational matters and approve Walker's accelerated tax collection plan.

Two months before an election is not the proper time to deal with other issues. State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said she plans to request a concurrent special session to attempt to restore funds trimmed from the appropriation for the Salt Creek Watershed project.

Mrs. Chapman is an able legislator and the Salt Creek project is worthwhile and should be funded. But we believe the legislature will have enough time to consider that project and others after the election.

Lawmakers, like Mrs. Chapman, must show restraint this time around. If they are able to act responsibly on the education matters, the state will be better off. If they choose to use the session to posture about other election issues and campaign for reelection, the people of this state will be the losers.

Health laws justified

High School Dist. 214 sent more than 20 students home the first day of school for failing to have proper medical forms completed.

More than 300 new students came to school the first day without the forms and the district, after warning students they could not attend school without the necessary inoculations, allowed those with scheduled doctor's appointments to remain while sending the rest home.

The reason behind the move is twofold: the county health department requires physicals and certain shots for all students new to a district, and rubella, or measles as it is commonly called — a disease that travels rapidly through schools and poses a serious threat to children.

The district had two reported cases of measles last year and the county insisted medical requirements be met this year. Dist. 214 took that warning seriously as well it should. Other districts should follow suit.

Insurance reduces lending risks

by Robert S. Rosefsky

Someone owes you money, and you have all the faith in the world that he'll repay you. But what if some unforeseen catastrophe prevents him from doing so? What can you do?

Case in point: A small merchant was selling his store to his nephew, in whom he had complete faith. The deal called for a 15-year payment plan. The merchant was counting on the payments to supplement his retirement income.

Two years into the deal, the nephew became critically ill, was unable to properly attend to the business, and payments to his uncle soon tapered off to nothing. The uncle had to come back out of retirement to run the business in order to maintain his lifestyle. A sad story all around.

Preventive medicine: Any situation involving the continuing performance of a key individual and/or a business enterprise contains elements of risk: death, disability, destruction of premises and so forth.

Aside from the seller-buyer relationship, these risks can be found between business associates, professional partner, manufacturer and retailer, employer and employee, debtor and creditor.

THERE ARE VARIOUS kinds of insurance that can protect you against the risks, and that can assure the expected flow of money come what may.

• Life insurance. In the above case a policy on the nephew could have protected both parties in the event of the nephew's premature death. A decreasing-term policy would be the cheapest, but an ordinary life policy could continue after the deal was paid off, thus giving the nephew a substantial personal nest egg.

• Income disability insurance can provide a cash flow in the event, as above, the debtor is unable to work due to accident or illness.

• Commercial lease insurance can guarantee at least the flow of rent payments to the landlord if a tenant defaults under certain conditions.

• Business interruption insurance, which protects the parties against a temporary closing due to outside forces.

For example, a fire might necessitate a closing for days or weeks. Your fire insurance pays for the physical damage. Your business interruption insurance can reimburse you for the loss of business you suffer.

• Casualty and public liability insurance, which most businesses have but which can always stand a review. Physical damage to the premises, or to a customer, can result in heavy expenses that can disrupt, if not destroy, the normal cash flow of the business.

Generally, all of this coverage should be set up as a business expense and therefore be tax deductible.

In the world of business and IOUs, nobody is giving away peace of mind. You have to invest in it, and if you do it right the returns can be most satisfying.

Dow up 7 pts. in late rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — A late afternoon surge pushed prices sharply higher Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange in what brokers hoped was the start of a fall rally.

Tuesday's rally was fairly widespread. The NYSE common share average increased 23 cents. Advances topped declines, 938 to 477, among the 1,860 issues traded.

The Dow Jones industrial average waffled much of the before it rose 7.48 points to 996.59. It was the Dow's sixth gain in the past seven sessions, which has carried it forward 36.15 points.

The rally has come after a slide in which it plunged nearly 39 points.

Volume totaled 16,310,000 shares, up from the 13,278,000 traded Friday.

Analysts said they anticipated some selected buying following the Labor Day holiday because of the strength of last week's rally. They noted the momentum from that surge carried over into this session and said it could be the beginning of a fall rally that sometimes happens after Labor Day. Analysts said a number of factors have raised hopes that capital spending is picking up and the economy is gaining from its two-month slowdown.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased 7 cents. Volume totaled 1,076,000 shares, compared with 1,660,000 traded Friday.

S&L branch unit to open Monday

St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Assn. will open its new Mount Prospect Office at Rand and Central roads Monday.

The first 100 visitors inside the office will have the opportunity to pick from a "wishing well" of savings accounts, each containing amounts of $1 to $100.

A balloon flying contest for children 12 and younger will be held. Helium-filled balloons containing a stamped postcard with the name of the sender will be released. The boy or girl whose card is returned from the greatest distance will win a bicycle.

A Dixieland band will play from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Ribbon cutting ceremonies will be at 11:15 a.m.

Visitors can register for a drawing for a free weekend trip and two new cars. The first 3,000 visitors will receive a house plant.

St. Paul Federal's Mount Prospect facility is the association's 10th and the first of three new branch offices opening this month.

Funds-guarantee plan initiated

Seven local banks belonging to the Suburban Bank Group now guarantee the availability of funds for customers enrolled in a Social Security check direct deposit program.

The new system went into effect throughout the Midwest this month. It enables recipients of Social Security Checks to have their money deposited directly by the federal government into the bank of their choice.

Gerald F. Fitzgerald, chairman of the Suburban Bank Group, said the seven banks are among the first financial institutions in the Northwest suburbs to guarantee the availability of Social Security funds in customer accounts by 9 a.m. on the third business day each month.

The deposits are recorded on computer tape in Washington, D.C., and sent to the bank group's computer center in Palatine.

"Every customer can be assured their check proceeds are avaiable to them right in their own accounts like clockwork. They do not have to come to the bank or even wait to receive a credit from us through the mail. If they are enrolled in the system and bank with us, we will guarantee those funds will be in their accounts as of 9 a.m. on the third business day of every month," Fitzgerald said.

Area banks that are members of the Suburban Bank Group are the Bank of Rolling Meadows, Gary State Bank, Palatine National Bank, Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates, Suburban National Bank of Palatine, Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove Village and Suburban National Bank of Woodfield.

Swine flu flier offered

A Massachusetts printing company has the latest entry in the national swine flu frenzy — a brochure designed for companies to tell employes about the swine flu and the government's vaccination program.

The Channing L. Bete Co., Greenfield, Mass., is advertising the brochure, entitled "About Swine Flu," at 7 cents each for quantities of 1,000 to 4,999. Larger orders cost slightly less.

"The enclosed folder can help persuade people to get their flu shots. The folder's style — a simple words and graphics combination — is effective. It appeals to a vast audience. It gets read. The message gets remembered," an advertising flier says.

The brochure cover has a caricature of Uncle Sam getting a flu shot. Inside, other cartoons are used to help answer questions about swine flu, such as "What is swine flu?", "Is it dangerous?" and "Should I consider being vaccinated?"

The back of the brochure is available to employers for a personal message that the company will print at no extra cost.

Executive protection topic

Executive protection will be discussed at the Sept. 15 meeting of the Northwest Industrial Council. John T. Lynch, president of the John T. Lynch Co., will discuss personal safety at the meeting in Lancer's Steak House, Schaumburg. "One of the horrible crimes increasing rapidly is hostage kidnaping of the business executive or a member of his family," Lynch said. "We could not properly cover executive protection without including guidelines for the executives — what each should do if threatened or kidnaped." A social hour will begin at 5:30 p.m. Dinner is at 6:30 p.m.

THERE ARE VARIOUS kinds of insurance that can protect you against the risks, and that can assure the expected flow of money come what may.

• Life insurance. In the above case a policy on the nephew could have protected both parties in the event of the nephew's premature death. A decreasing-term policy would be the cheapest, but an ordinary life policy could continue after the deal was paid off, thus giving the nephew a substantial personal nest egg.

• Income disability insurance can provide a cash flow in the event, as above, the debtor is unable to work due to accident or illness.

• Commercial lease insurance can guarantee at least the flow of rent payments to the landlord if a tenant defaults under certain conditions.

• Business interruption insurance, which protects the parties against a temporary closing due to outside forces.

For example, a fire might necessitate a closing for days or weeks. Your fire insurance pays for the physical damage. Your business interruption insurance can reimburse you for the loss of business you suffer.

• Casualty and public liability insurance, which most businesses have but which can always stand a review. Physical damage to the premises, or to a customer, can result in heavy expenses that can disrupt, if not destroy, the normal cash flow of the business.

Generally, all of this coverage should be set up as a business expense and therefore be tax deductible.

In the world of business and IOUs, nobody is giving away peace of mind. You have to invest in it, and if you do it right the returns can be most satisfying.

Dow up 7 pts. in late rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — A late afternoon surge pushed prices sharply higher Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange in what brokers hoped was the start of a fall rally.

Tuesday's rally was fairly widespread. The NYSE common share average increased 23 cents. Advances topped declines, 938 to 477, among the 1,860 issues traded.

The Dow Jones industrial average waffled much of the before it rose 7.48 points to 996.59. It was the Dow's sixth gain in the past seven sessions, which has carried it forward 36.15 points.

The rally has come after a slide in which it plunged nearly 39 points.

Volume totaled 16,310,000 shares, up from the 13,278,000 traded Friday.

Analysts said they anticipated some selected buying following the Labor Day holiday because of the strength of last week's rally. They noted the momentum from that surge carried over into this session and said it could be the beginning of a fall rally that sometimes happens after Labor Day. Analysts said a number of factors have raised hopes that capital spending is picking up and the economy is gaining from its two-month slowdown.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased 7 cents. Volume totaled 1,076,000 shares, compared with 1,660,000 traded Friday.

Business briefs

S&L branch unit to open Monday

St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Assn. will open its new Mount Prospect Office at Rand and Central roads Monday.

The first 100 visitors inside the office will have the opportunity to pick from a "wishing well" of savings accounts, each containing amounts of $1 to $100.

A balloon flying contest for children 12 and younger will be held. Helium-filled balloons containing a stamped postcard with the name of the sender will be released. The boy or girl whose card is returned from the greatest distance will win a bicycle.

A Dixieland band will play from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Ribbon cutting ceremonies will be at 11:15 a.m.

Visitors can register for a drawing for a free weekend trip and two new cars. The first 3,000 visitors will receive a house plant.

St. Paul Federal's Mount Prospect facility is the association's 10th and the first of three new branch offices opening this month.

Funds-guarantee plan initiated

Seven local banks belonging to the Suburban Bank Group now guarantee the availability of funds for customers enrolled in a Social Security check direct deposit program.

The new system went into effect throughout the Midwest this month. It enables recipients of Social Security Checks to have their money deposited directly by the federal government into the bank of their choice.

Gerald F. Fitzgerald, chairman of the Suburban Bank Group, said the seven banks are among the first financial institutions in the Northwest suburbs to guarantee the availability of Social Security funds in customer accounts by 9 a.m. on the third business day each month.

The deposits are recorded on computer tape in Washington, D.C., and sent to the bank group's computer center in Palatine.

"Every customer can be assured their check proceeds are avaiable to them right in their own accounts like clockwork. They do not have to come to the bank or even wait to receive a credit from us through the mail. If they are enrolled in the system and bank with us, we will guarantee those funds will be in their accounts as of 9 a.m. on the third business day of every month," Fitzgerald said.

Area banks that are members of the Suburban Bank Group are the Bank of Rolling Meadows, Gary State Bank, Palatine National Bank, Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates, Suburban National Bank of Palatine, Suburban National Bank of Elk Grove Village and Suburban National Bank of Woodfield.

Swine flu flier offered

A Massachusetts printing company has the latest entry in the national swine flu frenzy — a brochure designed for companies to tell employes about the swine flu and the government's vaccination program.

The Channing L. Bete Co., Greenfield, Mass., is advertising the brochure, entitled "About Swine Flu," at 7 cents each for quantities of 1,000 to 4,999. Larger orders cost slightly less.

"The enclosed folder can help persuade people to get their flu shots. The folder's style — a simple words and graphics combination — is effective. It appeals to a vast audience. It gets read. The message gets remembered," an advertising flier says.

The brochure cover has a caricature of Uncle Sam getting a flu shot. Inside, other cartoons are used to help answer questions about swine flu, such as "What is swine flu?", "Is it dangerous?" and "Should I consider being vaccinated?"

The back of the brochure is available to employers for a personal message that the company will print at no extra cost.

Executive protection topic

Executive protection will be discussed at the Sept. 15 meeting of the Northwest Industrial Council. John T. Lynch, president of the John T. Lynch Co., will discuss personal safety at the meeting in Lancer's Steak House, Schaumburg. "One of the horrible crimes increasing rapidly is hostage kidnaping of the business executive or a member of his family," Lynch said. "We could not properly cover executive protection without including guidelines for the executives — what each should do if threatened or kidnaped." A social hour will begin at 5:30 p.m. Dinner is at 6:30 p.m.

Ultrasound

New diagnostic technique uses sound waves to 'see' body

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

She was pregnant, but she didn't know when she had conceived. Her gynecologist knew she would need a Caesarean section, but couldn't determine exactly how far along she was.

So the young woman was lying on an examining table at Alexian Brothers Medical Center undergoing ultrasonography.

Though it may sound forbidding, this relatively new form of diagnosis is completely harmless and painless. Utilizing very high frequency sound waves, ultrasonography, unlike X-raying, is non-invasive. meaning nothing potentially harmful touches or enters the patient's body.

Used extensively in obstetrics and gynecology, ultrasonic equipment is also used in other abdominal diagnosis involving any of the organs and tissues in that area. It is not used much in bone areas of the body since bone interferes with the sound waves.

AN EVEN NEWER application of the technique, involving special, separate equipment, is cardiac diagnosis. Alexian Brothers is expecting delivery of this cardiac ultrasonic device in a few months.

The equipment works like this: an "arm" with a disk at the end extends from the machine and is glided over the part of the body to be examined. Mineral oil is applied to the skin first to aid contact.

As the arm is drawn in vertical and horizontal lines across the area, the high frequency sound waves pass into the body and back again to the machine, reflecting the varying densities of everything in their path: liquids, tissues, organs, etc.

The sound waves build a picture of a narrow cross-section of the anatomy, which appears on a video screen as gray and white shadings called "echograms" — visual echoes of the sound waves. The cross-sections can be photographed by the machine, and a series of these photos put together gives an overall picture of that part of the body.

ULTRASOUND CAN sometimes show things that won't show up on an X-ray. For example, according to Brian Holden, division director for professional services including diagnostic testing, a gall bladder that has ceased to function will not show up on X-ray. But it will on ultrasonography. In this way gall stones or other problems can be detected.

Holden describes ultrasound as "supplementary" to X-ray. Sometimes one is better, sometimes the other is. Together with nuclear medicine, the three techniques are providing more and more complete, detailed diagnostic pictures for physicians to work with.

And ultrasonography is still being developed, with greater potential ahead. It has been in general use in this country for only about five years, compared to 20 years in Europe.

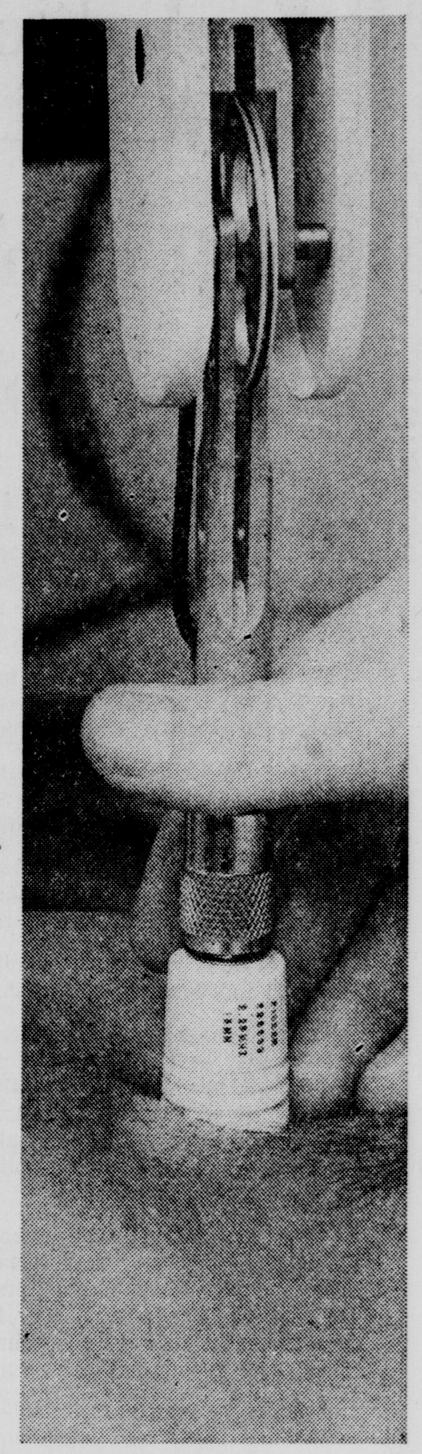
ULTRASONOGRAPHY originally was developed for military use during World War II and began to be applied medically in the 1950s. The first use was for therapy (see adjoining article); additional uses now are for surgery and dentistry as well as diagnosis, although each involves different frequencies and techniques.

Specially trained technicians are required to perform sonography. At Alexian the job is done by Bill Stangl. Likewise, radiologists and other physicians who read and interpret echograms attend special continuing education seminars to learn this new technique. Specializing in interpreting sonography at Alexian is radiologist Dr. M. Behinfar.

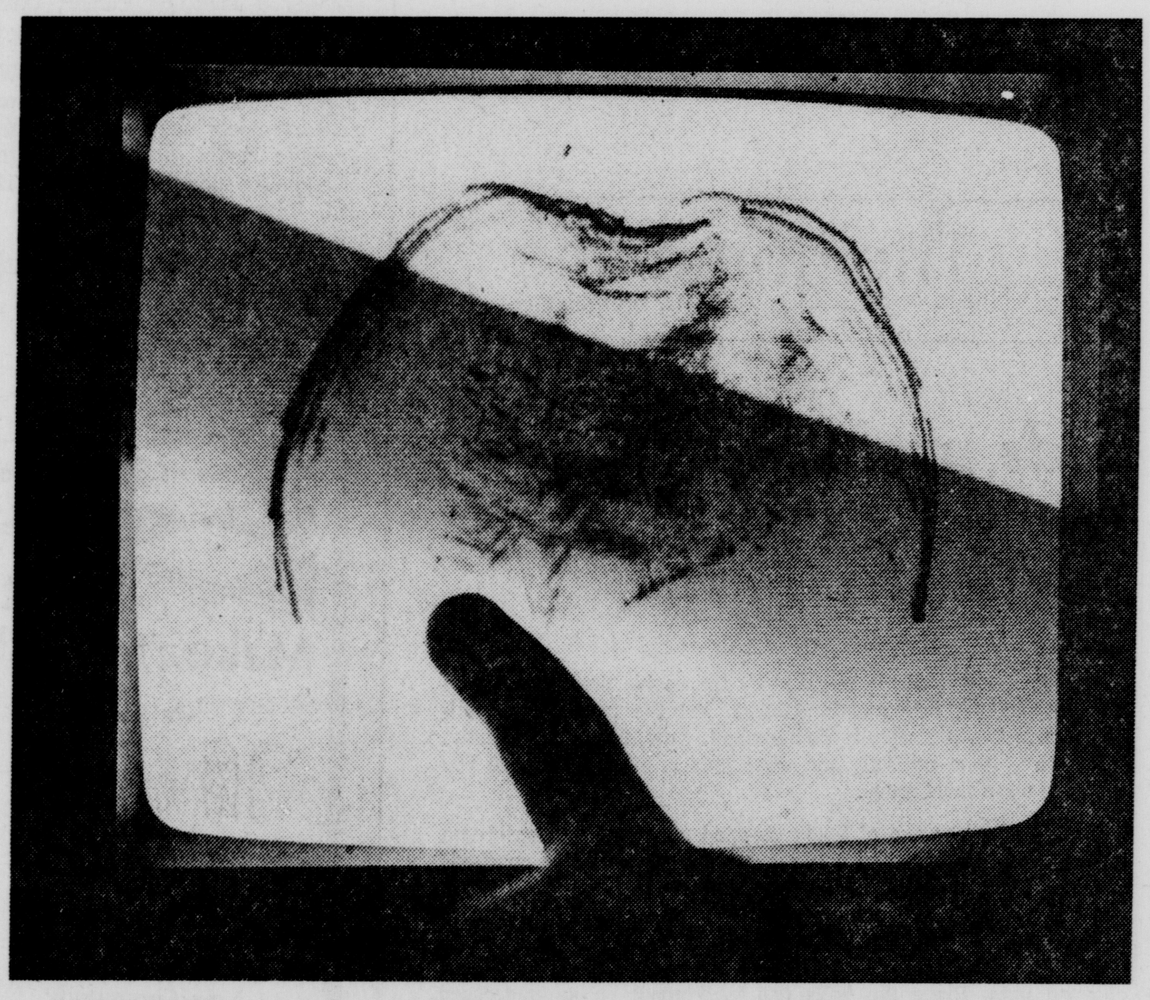
For all its mind-boggling appearance and capabilities, this new kind of medical technology costs only a fraction of the familiar X-ray. According to Holden, Alexian's ultrasound equipment cost the hospital $53,000, compared to $200,000 for comparable X-ray equipment. The newly ordered cardiac ultrasound machine is costing only $25,000, yet it will have incalculable value in helping patients.

FOR THE PREGNANT woman having a 45-minute ultrasonic examination, which produced more than a dozen Polaroid pictures showing her physician the size and position of her fetus, the cost would be around $60, Holden estimated.

Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has had ultrasonic diagnostic equipment since 1971. Lutheran General in Park Ridge just installed it this summer, and Holy Family in Des Plaines installed a unit in May.



MINERAL OIL is applied to patient's skin first to aid contact between ultrasonic "arm" and skin.



ECHOGRAMS, or visual echoes of sound waves from the machine, result in a picture of a cross-section of patient's anatomy. Ultrasound along with nuclear medicine and X-ray provides physicians with more complete diagnostic pictures.

FDA wants mandatory safety rules

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

The Food and Drug Administration has proposed a mandatory safety performance standard for ultrasonic therapy equipment.

The equipment, which is widely used in physical therapy in hospitals, clinics and nursing homes, operates on a relatively low sound frequency (though still above hearing level) and is capable of causing damage to tissues and cells and altering blood flow and metabolism.

Since the introduction of ultrasonic therapy equipment in the 1950s there have been only voluntary industry standards. But according to the FDA, no manufacturer of the equipment currently follows all of these safety recommendations.

In fact, a 1972 survey by the FDA of ultrasonic equipment in use in St. Petersburg, Fla., area revealed "wide discrepancies between claims made for equipment and their actual performance."

Eighty-five per cent of the units were producing at least 20 per cent more or less energy than the calibration indicated. One third of the timers on the units were in error by more than 10 per cent.

ONE MANUFACTURER'S unit overproduced energy by 909 per cent, while another manufacturer's underproduced by 97 per cent. (A unit can only underproduce by 100 per cent, at which point it is producing no energy at all.) Too little energy production may result in inadequate treatment.

The proposed standard is designed to insure that the equipment performs as it is supposed to and that therapists have accurate information as to the intensity and duration of energy output by any given ultrasonic device.

According to the FDA, about 37.5 million ultrasound treatments are administered each year in the U. S. They estimate about 50,000 ultrasonic units are in use, 35,000 of them in nursing homes and physicians' offices, the rest in hospitals. Nine manufacturers share the more than $8.5 million market.

According to J. Arthur Lazell, assistant director of the Bureau of Radiological Health in Washington, "nobody has checked on this equipment in the past." A spokesman for Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of public health in Illinois, confirmed that "no one in the state (government) inspects this equipment."

The FDA is also investigating the possibility of issuing a standard for ultrasonic diagnostic equipment, a relatively new development in medical technology which utilizes sound frequencies 2 million times higher than the therapy equipment and which has no known potential to cause harm. Court will judge if alien's behavior is adultery

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

A relative of mine is married and comes from a foreign country, but he's been living with a woman here while his wife is back in their native land. Last week he had a quarrel with the girl and she left threatening to "get even" with him. He wants to become an American citizen and he wouldn't listen when I told him that living with that girl might jeopardize his chances. What if she reports him to the immigration authorities? Can they deny him citizenship? He has no record and is a hard-working man.—S.S.

Dear S.S.

They can, but they may not. It all depends upon how the authorities look at your relative's relationship. But there's no assurance one way or the other because every alien is judged by his or her own individual qualifications.

The following information, though not conclusive, may be helpful in giving you some idea of how "adultery" has been defined in relation to naturalization.

ACCORDING TO THE law, among other conditions, an alien must demonstrate good moral character. His or her behavior must also fit into the "social norms of the community."

Here are several examples:

One case involved an alien whose wife returned to her native country and started divorce proceedings. Meanwhile, before the divorce took place, her husband started a live-in arrangement with a woman friend. Two months after the divorce, he married his roommate. Technically, under Illinois law, he was guilty of adultery. Did he then fit into the "social norms of the community?" The courts said he did, that his actions did not amount to "adultery" as they defined it and granted him citizenship.

In a more recent case the same question came up before the U. S. Court of Appeals involving a Korean. He was a student here and although the case did not center directly upon the question of qualifications for citizenship at that particular time, it was necessary to decide it in order for him to return to the U.S. and become a citizen.

The Korean had a mistress in Chicago while he was attending school, but his wife joined him here and the girl left. When the rejected girl friend reported him, the question whether this was "adultery" was pondered by the U. S. District Court. Because adultery was defined in different ways by state laws, the court adopted a definition from a federal case and applied it.

ADULTERY, THE court said, is "extramarital intercourse which tends to destroy an existing, viable marriage and which would represent a threat to public morality" and because he and his wife had lived apart for some time and in different countries, it did not "tend to destroy his marriage."

Your relative will have to keep his fingers crossed and say a few prayers that, if he is reported, the court will continue to apply this definition.

(Readers are invited to submit questions reguarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Small stomach causes problem

Recently I had a glucose tolerance test. Three hours after drinking the sweet solution my sugar count dropped to the upper 20s. I fainted or just went to sleep. I don't know which. The doctor in pathology asked me if I had ever had such spells with diabetes before. To my knowledge I have never been bothered with diabetes.

My doctor has me on a high protein diet of six small meals a day. he will not commit himself as to whether I have a high or low blood sugar condition. I am convinced that I have hypoglycemia.

I have symptoms such as extreme weakness for 20 to 30 minutes, hunger about two hours after eating, nervousness, headaches, some depression and absolutely no stamina at any time.

I would like to know if anything can be done for this condition other than dieting. I want to add that I had 40 per cent of my stomach removed because of ulcers. This was 10 years ago.

That is a fairly important addition. The removal of part of your stomach may have a lot to do with your present symptoms.

When the stomach is made very small because of surgery, the patient may develop the dumping syndrome. The small stomach cannot hold much food in it and the food you eat is rapidly dumped into the small intestine. Ordinarily the stomach retains food for two to four hours and lets a small amount of liquid or semi-liquid material out into the small intestine at a time. This way the small intestine is never overloaded.

When you drank all that glucose water for your test, it all went immediately into your small intestine. The high concentration triggered off your insulin-forming mechanisms and you had an attack of reactive hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). Patients with the dumping syndrome get the same reaction after eating a sweet meal, such as pancakes with syrup.

Your docot may be reluctant to label your problems because sometimes faulty mechanisms in releasing insulin cause hypoglycemia for a time and later the insulin production is decreased to the point the patinet develops diabetes. That doesn't always happen. At present it sounds as if you have reactive hypoglycemia. That differs from fasting low blood sugar. Your response was directly related to the glucose solution — hence a reaction. You may also get a similar reaction from eating and drinking sweet or starchy foods and liquids.

Diet is the best approach to these problems. Small meals are more compatible with the probability that you have a small stomach and the emphasis on proteins, but less or no sweets and starches helps avoid the reaction.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia, to give you more information on such problems. Others who want this issue can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Kids prefer homemade cookies so try these

Few of us aren't sorely tempted by the cookie displays at good bakeries and not infrequently splurge. Yet the fact is that children's favorites are usually home-baked, done simply and easily. If you have some red jelly and some nuts around, here's one you can whip up in short order.

Get three-fourths cup of finely chopped nuts ready. Then cream one-half cup margarine with one-fourth cup brown sugar (packed) and blend in one egg yolk and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Beat the egg white slightly and put to one side. Then stir into the mixture one cup flour, sifted with one-fourth teaspoon salt. Roll the dough into one-inch balls, dip them in the egg white and then roll in the chopped nuts. Place the balls one inch apart on an ungreased cookie sheet and bake for five minutes at 375 degrees. At this point remove them from the oven and quickly press your thumb gently into the top of each cookie. Return the batch to the oven and bake eight minutes longer (or until lightly brown). As soon as they are cool, put a dab of jelly in each depression. Lo, fancy cookies.

Dear Dorothy: One of our youngsters spilled a few drops of lemonade on my white marble coffee table. Wiped it off right then, but there's a dull stain. What can be done?—Lesley Gemmell

Lemon and marble: Instant stain. However, it's an easy one to remove. Wet the surface and sprinkle on tin oxide powder. Rub with a damp cloth until the stain is gone and the surface shines.

Dear Dorothy: Here may be a useful hint for all those who still have heavy suitcases around — who switched to the lightweight ones and now wonder what value the old. Well, we've found they make great containers for woolens and any other clothes subject to moth damage. Just sprinkle moth crystals into the cases with the garments.—Henry Stone

Memories of yesteryear recounted for 50th anniversary celebration

Sledding parties on the hills of Dubuque and skating parties on the Mississippi River are among the memories of years ago for Leon and Ada Beckius, Mount Prospect, who marked their golden wedding anniversary last month.

Both born and reared in the Dubuque area, Leon and Ada were married in Rockford Aug. 16, 1926, before settling in Chicago where they lived until last year. Leon was a pressman with the Chicago American until his retirement in 1966. He and Ada, who was in charge of bookkeeplng at Belmont Community Hospital, have three children: Jane A. Behrens, Arlington Heights; John T., Libertyville; and Ronald L., San Antonio, Texas.

They celebrated their 50 years of marriage with a dinner for 84 relatives and friends Aug. 21 at The Flaming Torch in Mount Prospect, and at a brunch Aug. 12 for out-of-town relatives hosted by their children, their son-in-law, George Behrens, and their two daughters-in-law, Joanne Beckius and Evelyne Beckius.

The anniversary pair also has seven grandchildren.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

The Concerned Parents Organization for High Risk Infants will hold a baby boutique Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 9-11, at 1214 W. Noyes. Sales hours will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sale items, many almost new, will feature infant and children's clothing, maternity clothes, children's furnishings and toys. Also on sale will be craft items made by members. Proceeds will benefit Lutheran General Hospital's high risk nursery.

PALATINE

Holy Resurrection Orthodox Women's Club will hold its annual garage sale from 9:30 a.m. til dusk Friday and Saturday, Sept. 10 and 11. The sale will be at the parish house, 1449 N. Quentin Rd. Furniture will be included in the sale items.

A pirogi and bake sale will be held Saturday by the Ladies of the Apostleship of Prayer at the Immaculate Conception Ukranian Catholic Church. Advanced orders may be made by calling 253-4849 or 358-4533.

NILES

The West Valley Section of the National Council of Jewish Women, which includes Des Plaines, will hold its second annual garage sale Sept. 16-18 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads, Niles.

All proceeds will help finance West Valley's education, service, and social action projects including Safety Town, Juvenile Justice, and a new program of activities for seniors at Henry Hart JCC. Information, 251-5859.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Fund-raising groups in the Hoffman Estates area are invited to sell their wares at the annual Charity Bazaar at Barrington Square Mall, 2300 Higgins Rd. Saturday, Sept. 11, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Groups are invited to sell bakery goods or crafts.

Because the Great London Circus is coming to the mall Sept. 15-16, the committee would like the booths decorated in a circus mood and cash prizes will be awarded for the most "circus-y" displays. Interested groups may call Karen Strachta, 286-8373 for information and reservations.

SCHAUMBURG

Sheffield Chapter of Women's American ORT, a non-profit Jewish organization, is having a bake sale on Saturday, Sept. 11, starting at 9:00 a.m. It will be held at the Jewel supermarket, Schaumburg and Springinsguth roads, Schaumburg.

Proceeds from the bake sale will go to the ORT Scholarship Program which enables ORT school graduates to further their education and become teachers.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Small stomach causes problem

Recently I had a glucose tolerance test. Three hours after drinking the sweet solution my sugar count dropped to the upper 20s. I fainted or just went to sleep. I don't know which. The doctor in pathology asked me if I had ever had such spells with diabetes before. To my knowledge I have never been bothered with diabetes.

My doctor has me on a high protein diet of six small meals a day. he will not commit himself as to whether I have a high or low blood sugar condition. I am convinced that I have hypoglycemia.

I have symptoms such as extreme weakness for 20 to 30 minutes, hunger about two hours after eating, nervousness, headaches, some depression and absolutely no stamina at any time.

I would like to know if anything can be done for this condition other than dieting. I want to add that I had 40 per cent of my stomach removed because of ulcers. This was 10 years ago.

That is a fairly important addition. The removal of part of your stomach may have a lot to do with your present symptoms.

When the stomach is made very small because of surgery, the patient may develop the dumping syndrome. The small stomach cannot hold much food in it and the food you eat is rapidly dumped into the small intestine. Ordinarily the stomach retains food for two to four hours and lets a small amount of liquid or semi-liquid material out into the small intestine at a time. This way the small intestine is never overloaded.

When you drank all that glucose water for your test, it all went immediately into your small intestine. The high concentration triggered off your insulin-forming mechanisms and you had an attack of reactive hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). Patients with the dumping syndrome get the same reaction after eating a sweet meal, such as pancakes with syrup.

Your docot may be reluctant to label your problems because sometimes faulty mechanisms in releasing insulin cause hypoglycemia for a time and later the insulin production is decreased to the point the patinet develops diabetes. That doesn't always happen. At present it sounds as if you have reactive hypoglycemia. That differs from fasting low blood sugar. Your response was directly related to the glucose solution — hence a reaction. You may also get a similar reaction from eating and drinking sweet or starchy foods and liquids.

Diet is the best approach to these problems. Small meals are more compatible with the probability that you have a small stomach and the emphasis on proteins, but less or no sweets and starches helps avoid the reaction.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia, to give you more information on such problems. Others who want this issue can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Kids prefer homemade cookies so try these

Few of us aren't sorely tempted by the cookie displays at good bakeries and not infrequently splurge. Yet the fact is that children's favorites are usually home-baked, done simply and easily. If you have some red jelly and some nuts around, here's one you can whip up in short order.

Get three-fourths cup of finely chopped nuts ready. Then cream one-half cup margarine with one-fourth cup brown sugar (packed) and blend in one egg yolk and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Beat the egg white slightly and put to one side. Then stir into the mixture one cup flour, sifted with one-fourth teaspoon salt. Roll the dough into one-inch balls, dip them in the egg white and then roll in the chopped nuts. Place the balls one inch apart on an ungreased cookie sheet and bake for five minutes at 375 degrees. At this point remove them from the oven and quickly press your thumb gently into the top of each cookie. Return the batch to the oven and bake eight minutes longer (or until lightly brown). As soon as they are cool, put a dab of jelly in each depression. Lo, fancy cookies.

Dear Dorothy: One of our youngsters spilled a few drops of lemonade on my white marble coffee table. Wiped it off right then, but there's a dull stain. What can be done?—Lesley Gemmell

Lemon and marble: Instant stain. However, it's an easy one to remove. Wet the surface and sprinkle on tin oxide powder. Rub with a damp cloth until the stain is gone and the surface shines.

Dear Dorothy: Here may be a useful hint for all those who still have heavy suitcases around — who switched to the lightweight ones and now wonder what value the old. Well, we've found they make great containers for woolens and any other clothes subject to moth damage. Just sprinkle moth crystals into the cases with the garments.—Henry Stone

Memories of yesteryear recounted for 50th anniversary celebration

Sledding parties on the hills of Dubuque and skating parties on the Mississippi River are among the memories of years ago for Leon and Ada Beckius, Mount Prospect, who marked their golden wedding anniversary last month.

Both born and reared in the Dubuque area, Leon and Ada were married in Rockford Aug. 16, 1926, before settling in Chicago where they lived until last year. Leon was a pressman with the Chicago American until his retirement in 1966. He and Ada, who was in charge of bookkeeplng at Belmont Community Hospital, have three children: Jane A. Behrens, Arlington Heights; John T., Libertyville; and Ronald L., San Antonio, Texas.

They celebrated their 50 years of marriage with a dinner for 84 relatives and friends Aug. 21 at The Flaming Torch in Mount Prospect, and at a brunch Aug. 12 for out-of-town relatives hosted by their children, their son-in-law, George Behrens, and their two daughters-in-law, Joanne Beckius and Evelyne Beckius.

The anniversary pair also has seven grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Beckius

Bargain mart

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

The Concerned Parents Organization for High Risk Infants will hold a baby boutique Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 9-11, at 1214 W. Noyes. Sales hours will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sale items, many almost new, will feature infant and children's clothing, maternity clothes, children's furnishings and toys. Also on sale will be craft items made by members. Proceeds will benefit Lutheran General Hospital's high risk nursery.

PALATINE

Holy Resurrection Orthodox Women's Club will hold its annual garage sale from 9:30 a.m. til dusk Friday and Saturday, Sept. 10 and 11. The sale will be at the parish house, 1449 N. Quentin Rd. Furniture will be included in the sale items.

A pirogi and bake sale will be held Saturday by the Ladies of the Apostleship of Prayer at the Immaculate Conception Ukranian Catholic Church. Advanced orders may be made by calling 253-4849 or 358-4533.

NILES

The West Valley Section of the National Council of Jewish Women, which includes Des Plaines, will hold its second annual garage sale Sept. 16-18 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads, Niles.

All proceeds will help finance West Valley's education, service, and social action projects including Safety Town, Juvenile Justice, and a new program of activities for seniors at Henry Hart JCC. Information, 251-5859.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Fund-raising groups in the Hoffman Estates area are invited to sell their wares at the annual Charity Bazaar at Barrington Square Mall, 2300 Higgins Rd. Saturday, Sept. 11, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Groups are invited to sell bakery goods or crafts.

Because the Great London Circus is coming to the mall Sept. 15-16, the committee would like the booths decorated in a circus mood and cash prizes will be awarded for the most "circus-y" displays. Interested groups may call Karen Strachta, 286-8373 for information and reservations.

SCHAUMBURG

Sheffield Chapter of Women's American ORT, a non-profit Jewish organization, is having a bake sale on Saturday, Sept. 11, starting at 9:00 a.m. It will be held at the Jewel supermarket, Schaumburg and Springinsguth roads, Schaumburg.

Proceeds from the bake sale will go to the ORT Scholarship Program which enables ORT school graduates to further their education and become teachers.

Northwest conference gets $10,000 state grant

The Northwest Municipal Conference has received a $10,000 grant from the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs.

Director Frank A. Kirk said Tuesday the grant will be used for comprehensive planning programs by the conference, which represents 16 Northwest suburban communities.

William Muhlenfeld, executive director of the conference, said the state grant is among about $200,000 in grant requests the conference has made to state and federal agencies.

The grant will be used to provide coordinated land-use planning in solid waste and water supply and to provide member communities with assistance in improving the management capabilities and upgrading services, Kirk said.

Muhlenfeld said the conference will discuss a number of grant applications at its meeting at 8 p.m. today in Hanover Park.

Republican guvernatorial candidate James R. Thompson is expectef to address the group.

WWMM sold; new format told

Radio station WWMM (92.7 FM), Arlington Heights, has been purchased by Northwest Community Broadcasting Inc. and will be headed by Bennett Trapani of Mount Prospect, and Jack Whisler of Arlington Heights.

"Radio for the Great Northwest" will be the station's theme. The emphasis will be on the suburban listener replacing the present program policy which is aimed at a metropolitan audience, the new owners said.

Stronger area news, information, public affairs and community interest programs are planned. Announcers will replace the automated operation and the station will move away from its present all-jazz format.

John Schaller, 35, is WWMM's new general manager. Schaller formerly managed an AM and FM station in Rochester, Minn. He is a native of Milwaukee, Wis. He is a graduate of Marquette University and has been working in radio for 16 years.

"I cannot imagine not writing. It's the basic drive in my life and nearly all that I ever think about. I hope someday that whoever evaluates me decides that I tried and gave a damn."

It's this kind of commitment that keeps Mike Klein absorbed in his assignment as "People" columnist and feature writer at The Herald. His "People" beat takes him into the homes of all types of Northwest suburbanites, or in Mike's words, "people big and small, celebrities and people like ourselves, regular people." Started as a twice weekly column in December, 1975, "People" now runs four issues a week. When Mike isn't working on a column, he writes features for The Herald.

A 1972 graduate of Southern Illinois University, Mike was a sports stringer for Chicago Today and the Southern Illinoisan during his college years. He also contributed to Southern's campus newspaper, The Daily Egyptian, in posts of sports writer and editor, photographer and news editor.

His special interests include working with the deaf. He is public relations director of the American Hearing Impaired Hockey Association which sponsors the annual Stan Mikita Hockey School, and manager of the U.S. Deaf Olympic Hockey Team.

Already the winner of several awards from professional groups, Mike claims among his most outstanding a first place in United Press International sports writing and a first in the country in sports writing from the Suburban Newspapers of America. Mike has been with The Herald since 1972, when he joined the sports staff.

Mike enjoys travel in big cities and, as a contrast, the Rocky Mountains, as well as photography and music. He is single and lives in Roselle.

Hawks tackle top schedule

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The Harper Hawks had better do their breathing during the week, becuase they won't have time on the weekends.

With a little better depth than last year (when they had none), size, speed and experience, the Hawks will need all that and more as they enter their most ambitious campaign ever.

The ball gets rolling against the Northwestern junior varsity Sunday, Sept. 12. The Wildcats admit they will suit every kid who doesn't play in the varsity game Saturday. That will mean a lot of major college prospects working their frustrations off on the Hawks.

Later on DuPage and Joliet come to town. Harper coach John Eliasik says Joliet "could be the best junior college team I've ever seen. And DuPage is just as good."

Sound like a replay of 1975, when the Hawks went 4-5 but put 10 players on assorted all-conference and all-state teams?

Eliasik isn't buying that.

"Everybody we play has improved," Eliasik aaid. "But so have we. We can compete with every team on our schedule."

Harper got off on the right foot, avoiding the injuries that removed their entire starting backfield before the season began last year.

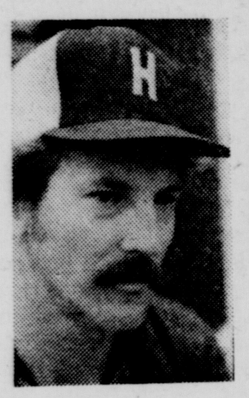
Gary Mueller, who threw for 546 yards and eight touchdowns last year despite playing only part of the season, is gone from the quarterback post.

Eliasik has three to choose from this year. Dennis Drinan (6-4), 200) and Jeff Dilgen (6-0, 185) shared the job in a practice game Saturday and Jim Atkinson (6-1, 216) will be ready when he gets a brace for his knee.

Butch Allen (5-11, 175) the Hawks' leading rusher last year with 481 yards. will be in the backfield and could see duty as a cornerback.

Jim Hoevel, who sat out the 1975 season with academic troubles, was the leading rusher in 1974 with 652 yards and will join Allen this year.

The Hawks are also counting on some yardage from Roger Nowak (6-3, 215) and Joe Litwin (6-1, 190).



John Eliasik

The Hawks' leading receiver of 1975, DuWayne Mill (5-7, 160, returns, hoping to add to the 24 catches for 287 yards he totaled last year. He will also be the Hawks' punter.

Allen also caught 15 passes for 144 yards and line-backing standout Kevin Kristick grabbed nine for 140.

Barry VanDelinder (6-3, 185) is a candidate for tight end.

The offensive line will be held down by returnees Jerry Parker (6-3, 240) at tackle and Barry Conatser (6-1, 210) at center.

Dan Rizzado (6-3, 235), Steve Getty (5-11, 185) and Greg Marek (5-10, 185) are battling for the guard positions.

The tackle opposite Parker will be either Terry Freeman (6-4, 205), who is also a tight end prospect, or Chuck Nagle (6-0, 210).

Arlington and Hoffman Estates opened their Mid-Suburban League soccer campaigns with impressive victories Tuesday as the league began an ambitious 1976 schedule.

Arlington came from two goals behind to defeat Prospect, 6-4, as Paul Wei scored twice in the third quarter and Frank Adame tallied the go-ahead marker at 6:10 of the final stanza.

Hoffman Estates, playing its second game of the young season, bumped Buffalo Grove, 4-1, behind the steady goaltending of John Gambora and Don Gay.

Scoring goals for Hoffman Estates were Mike Chalmers, Joe Rausch, John Partlow, and Frank Mueller.

In another game, Hersey topped Wheeling 3-2.

In the Arlington victory over Prospect, Mike Jacobs of Prospect opened the scoring at 5:00 of the first period. Goals by Santiago Bustamante and Dave Evanston gave Prospect a 3-1 lead after one half.

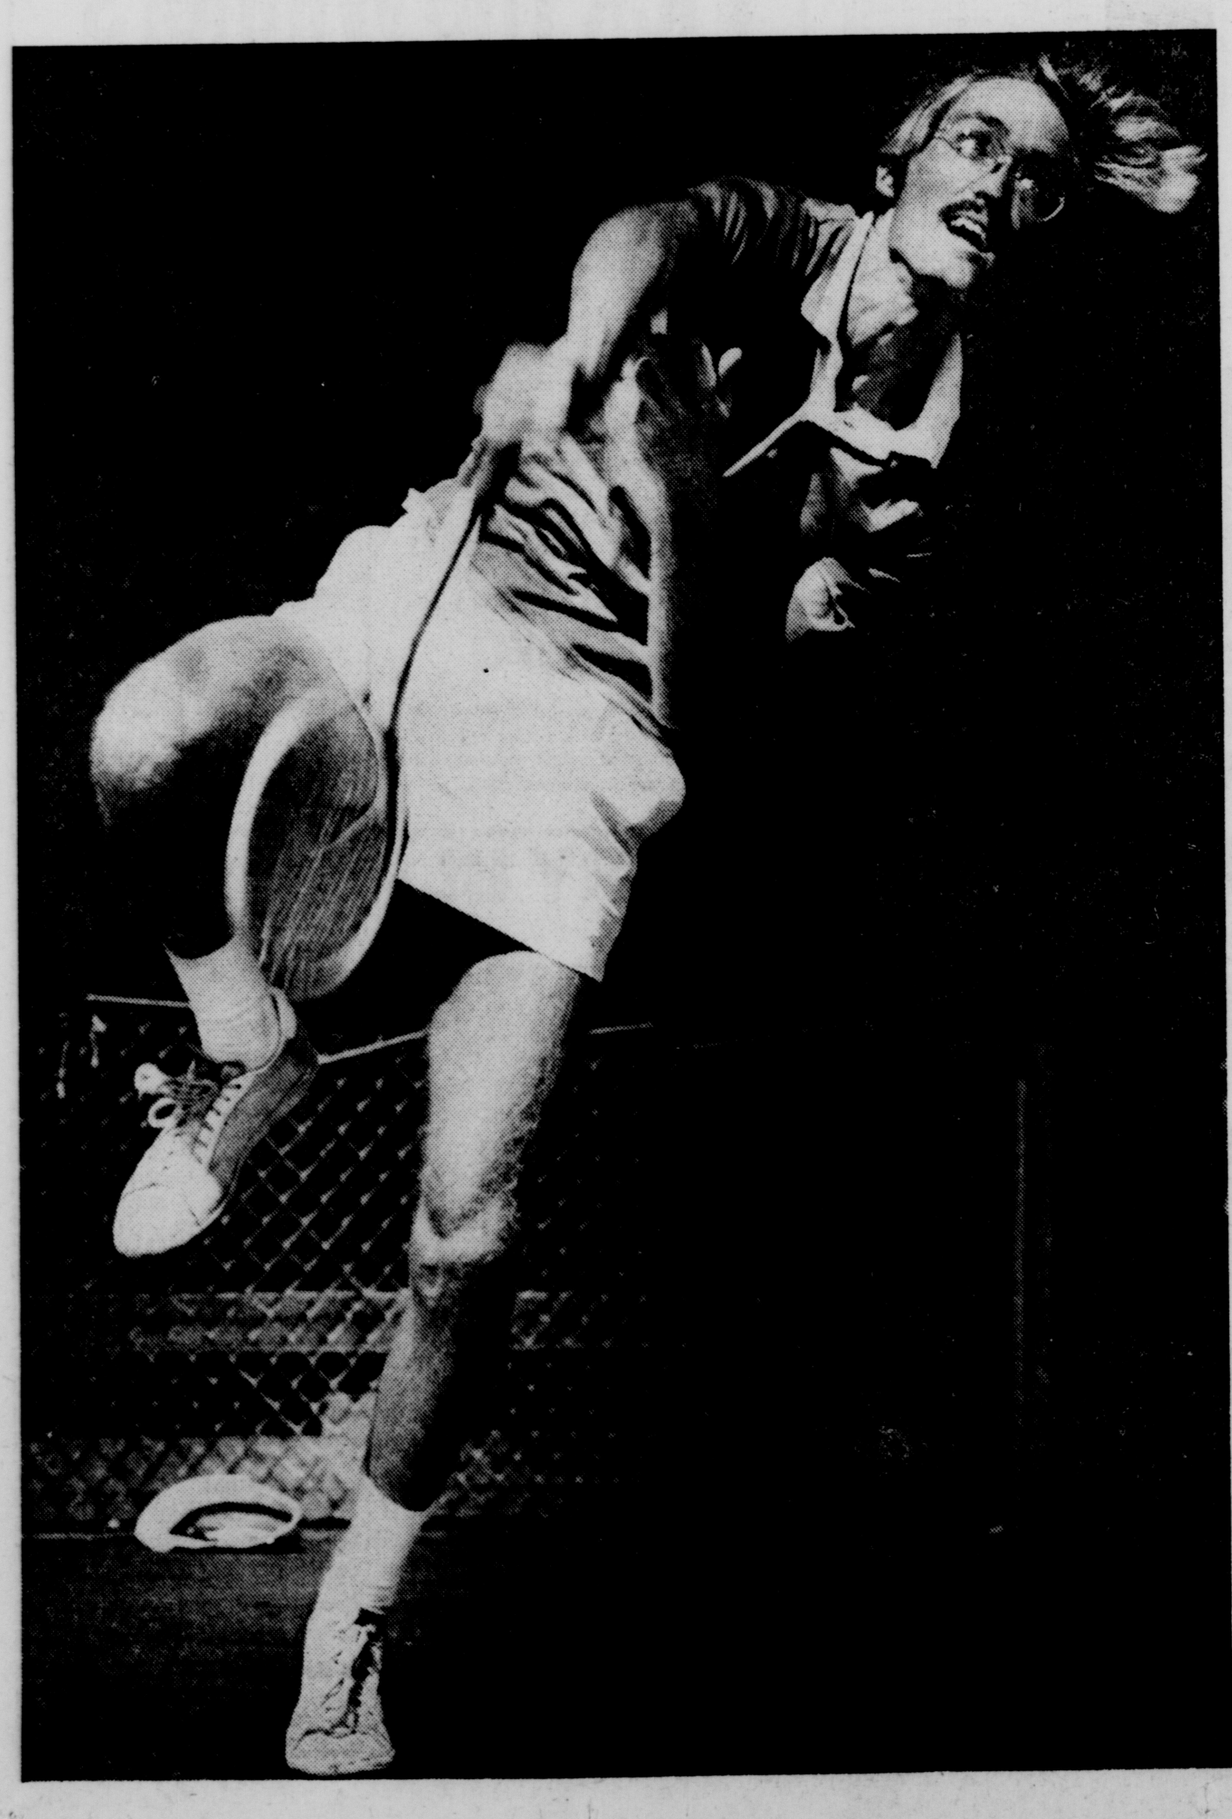
Wei scored the first of his two goals at 1:55 of the third period, but Prospect's Tony Anast restored his team's two-goal lead six minutes later on an assist by Bustamante. Wei scored again on an assist by Curt Wiebe before the quarter ended to make it 4-3.

Wiebe then booted in the tying goal near the end of the third quarter, and Adame pushed home the winner six minutes into the fourth stanza. Dan Weber tallied an insurance goal for Arlington at 9:50.

Hoffman Estates played to a 0-0 tie with West Leyden last Saturday.

In sophomore action, Hoffman downed Buffalo Grove, 6-0, and Prospect dumped Arlington, 5-2.

ALL SMILES. It was time to celebrate Tuesday when Lloyd Meyer (left) and his Arlington Heights American Legion team came home from their second-place finish in Legion World Series in Manchester, N.H.



MIXING 'EM UP. Serving up a boomer is Mark Schmidt, who teamed with Mary Laser to reach the finals of the mixed doubles event in the Paddock Tennis Tourney. Schmidt and Laser dropped a three-setter to Lance and Donna Laverty, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, for the title.

Mets mop up with Cubs again, 11-0

The Chicago Cubs played "Welcome Home" to the New York Mets again Tuesday afternoon in Wrigley Field, dropping an 11-0 decision to Jon Matlack as light-hitting Leo Foster rapped out three hits including his second major league home run.

It was the second time in three days that the Cubs had been blanked after gong two months without suffering a shutout. Matlack scattered eight hits to pick up his sixth shutout of the season.

The Mets, who seem to thrive on the Friendly Confines, were led by Foster's five runs-batted-in.

Foster singled in John Milner in the first inning and drove in Ed Kranepool with a hit in the fifth. He singled home Bud Harrelson in the fourth and hit his second major league homer in the ninth with a man on.

Bruce Boisclair and Mike Phillips also drove in two runs each to pace a 16-hit attack. Phillips hit his fourth home run, all in Wrigley Field, in the first and had a run-scoring single in the fifth.

Matlack gained his 15th victory against eight losses. He struck out five and walked one. Cubs starter Ray Burris was pounded for eight hits and six runs in 3-2/3 innings as he fell to 12-13.

In a waiver deal announced late Tuesday, the Cubs picked up lefty Ramon Hernandez from Pittsburgh. Hernandez, 2-2 this year, pitched briefly for the Cubs in 1968.

A's top Sox; just 5 back

OAKLAND — Oakland moved toward closing the gap with Kansas City even further Tuesday by taking a 2-0 lead over the Chicago White Sox after six innings of play.

The A's won 4-0 to move within five games of Kansas City.

Mike Torrez was on the mound for the A's as they jumped ahead in the second frame on Gene Tenace's solo circuit shot, his 17th homer of the season.

Oakland tapped Sox starter Terry Forster for another run in the fifth. Bill North slapped out his second double and third hit of the game with one away and was moved around to third on a pair of walks.

North scored on a wild pitch.

A California triumph over the Royals earlier Tuesday evening offered Oakland an opportunity to move within five games of West Division-leading Kansas City.

Going into the seventh, Chicago had been limited to three hits and Torrez had retired the last eight batters he faced.

Forster meanwhile yielded one hit in each of the first six frames he worked. He was seeking to go the distance for only the second time this season, having lost previously to Vida Blue, 2-0, in this same park in his only previous complete effort.

Hawks tackle top schedule

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The Harper Hawks had better do their breathing during the week, becuase they won't have time on the weekends.

With a little better depth than last year (when they had none), size, speed and experience, the Hawks will need all that and more as they enter their most ambitious campaign ever.

The ball gets rolling against the Northwestern junior varsity Sunday, Sept. 12. The Wildcats admit they will suit every kid who doesn't play in the varsity game Saturday. That will mean a lot of major college prospects working their frustrations off on the Hawks.

Later on DuPage and Joliet come to town. Harper coach John Eliasik says Joliet "could be the best junior college team I've ever seen. And DuPage is just as good."

Sound like a replay of 1975, when the Hawks went 4-5 but put 10 players on assorted all-conference and all-state teams?

Eliasik isn't buying that.

"Everybody we play has improved," Eliasik aaid. "But so have we. We can compete with every team on our schedule."

Harper got off on the right foot, avoiding the injuries that removed their entire starting backfield before the season began last year.

Gary Mueller, who threw for 546 yards and eight touchdowns last year despite playing only part of the season, is gone from the quarterback post.

Eliasik has three to choose from this year. Dennis Drinan (6-4), 200) and Jeff Dilgen (6-0, 185) shared the job in a practice game Saturday and Jim Atkinson (6-1, 216) will be ready when he gets a brace for his knee.

Butch Allen (5-11, 175) the Hawks' leading rusher last year with 481 yards. will be in the backfield and could see duty as a cornerback.

Jim Hoevel, who sat out the 1975 season with academic troubles, was the leading rusher in 1974 with 652 yards and will join Allen this year.

The Hawks are also counting on some yardage from Roger Nowak (6-3, 215) and Joe Litwin (6-1, 190).

Borg, Orantes rally

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Defending champion Manual Orantes and Bjorn Borg, one of the men favored to succeed him as U.S. Open title-holder, both came back from two set deficits Tuesday to survive nerve-tingling five-set tennis matches and set up a quarter-final meeting at the $416,600 championship.

Orantes, who seems to reserve his very best for the center court at the West Side Tennis Club, beat Stan Smith, the 1971 champion, 3-6, 1-6, 6-2, 7-6, 6-1, and Borg, the reigning Wimbledon, WCT and U.S. Pro Champion, defeated Brian Gottfried, 6-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

Earlier, Dick Stockton made the quarters for the first time in 10 attempts by defeating Colombia's Jairo Velasco, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

Stockton became the third U.S. player into the last eight of the men's bracket, joining top-seeded Jimmy Connors and Eddie Dibbs, the ninth seed, who qualified Monday in the top half of the draw.

Defending champion Chris Evert became the third American to reach the quarters of the women's bracket when she defeated Sue Barker of Britain, the reigning French Open titleholder, 6-1, 6-0. Earlier, Zenda Liess of Daytona Beach, Calif., advanced to the quarters with a 6-3, 6-4, win over Wendy Overton, and sixth-seeded Rosie Casals defeated Terry Holladay of La Jolla, Calif., 7-5, 6-1, in an All-American matchup.

Bears ready for opener, waive 3

The Chicago Bears will be at full strength Sunday when they meet the Detroit Lions in Soldier Field for the regular season opener, a club spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The only players hurting, defensive ends Gary Hrivnak, and Roger Stillwell, were listed as probable for the game, she said. Hrivnak has a calf muscle pull and Stillwell a knee strain.

The Bears announced it has waived three players and obtained cornerback Terry Schmidt, a three-year veteran, on waivers from the New Orleans Saints.

The three players waived were among several cut from the squad Monday in order for the Bears to get its roster size down to the National Football League limit of 43.

Waived were defensive tackle Richard Harris, a six-year veteran; defensive end Jerry Meyers, a rookie from Northern Illinois University, and quarterback Jerry Tagge, a four-year veteran.

Tight end Bob Parsons, who sprained a neck muscle in practice Tuesday, was examined and announced probable for Sunday's game.

The spokeswoman said 4,558 tickets remained for Sunday's game as of 1 p.m. Tuesday. If the contest is a sellout within 72 hours of the game, the local television blackout will be lifted.

Marchibroda returns with new pact

BALTIMORE — Ted Marchibroda, who resigned Sunday as coach of the Baltimore Colts because of front office interference, returned to the club Tuesday, apparently in full command of field operations and with an extended contract.

"By mutual agreement of all parties, I will be returning as head coach of the Baltimore Colts," Marchibroda said. "I will have full control of football matters and one additional year added to my contract.

"The most important factor is not that Ted Marchibroda is returning but that the players remain together," he said at a news conference at the team's St. Mary's Seminary practice field.

"My first purpose at hand is to have a good practice today and to get ready for New England on Sunday."

The Colt players, who told General Manager Joe Thomas on Monday they wanted Marchibroda reinstated, showed up at training camp at 2 p.m.

Marchibroda's resignation was prompted last Thursday night when owner Robert Irsay stormed into the locker room after the Colts' fourth preseason loss in a row and tongue-lashed the players for their 24-9 performance against the Detroit Lions.

Thomas defended Irsay's actions, saying, "An owner is allowed to do whatever he wants to do." He said Irsay will not be banned from the sidelines or the locker room.

Judge sets Nov. 8 for Finley trial

U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr Tuesday dismissed three of seven counts in Charles O. Finley's $10.5 million suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and organized baseball and set Nov. 8 for trial on the other four counts.

The judge dismissed the antitrust charges filed by Finley, who had sought triple damages bringing the total amount to $10.5 million, and two counts under which Finley charged he had been denied due process of legal treatment and given unequal protection by Kuhn.

McGarr's action left three counts in which the commissioner is involved and one count against the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

The suit by Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, stemmed from Kuhn's decision in June that Finley could not sell pitcher Vida Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to the Red Sox for $2 million. Kuhn voided the sale on the grounds it was not in the best interest of baseball.

Kuhn's attorneys were pleased with the dismissal of the antitrust charge, pointing out it had reduced the total amount of damages which could be claimed as well as any chance of claiming attorneys' fees and court costs.

Finley's attorneys, in conference in chambers with McGarr, withdrew Finley's request for preliminary injunctions which would have forced Kuhn to allow the sale of the players to be completed. Thus, the request for injunctions will be combined with the Nov. 8 trial on the merits of the case — whether Kuhn has the authority to void such sales.

It was believed Finley withdrew the request for preliminary injunctions because all three players have become major factors in the A's bid for another Western Division championship in the American League and to lose the three in the final month of the season could have a destructive effect on the morale of the team.

Vikings get Rashad from Seattle

SEATTLE — The Seattle Seahawks traded veteran wide receiver Ahmad Rashad to the Minnesota Vikings Tuesday for a 1977 draft choice and future considerations.

The Seahawks also placed wide receiver Cornelius Greene and defensive end Bob Martin on waivers, cutting their roster to 48, one under the NFL limit for expansion squads.

Rashad, the former Bobby Moore, signed with Seattle as a free agent after playing out his option with Buffalo. He missed all of the 1975 season recovering from a serious leg injury.

Don Anderson, Seattle public relations director, indicated the "future considerations" coming from Minnesota probably would be a player or players rather than cash.

"The Seahawks have strength at the wide receiver position." Anderson said. "There were six to seven players and Coach (Jack) Patera was very high on all of them."

Rashad, starting his fifth year in the pros, was "coveted by many teams," Anderson said.

Rashad led Buffalo in receiving in 1974 with 36 catches for 433 yards and four touchdowns. That was his first year with the Bills after two years at St. Louis, which drafted him in the first round in 1972 from Oregon, where he set 14 school records.

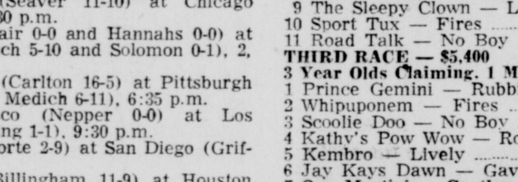
'76 Dodge Year-End CLEARANCE

DODGE PICKUP



1. LOWEST PRICE. The manufacturer's suggested retail price for this 115-inch WB Dodge D100 conventional cab is only $3,677, excluding taxes, optional equipment, destination charges, and license and title fees.

2. BEST GAS MILEAGE. According to EPA estimates, this Dodge D100 with a 225 six-cylinder engine with a manual transmission got 25 miles per gallon on the highway and 18 in the city. Your actual mileage may differ depending on the type of driving you do, your truck's condition and its optional equipment.

3. BIG PAYLOAD. Dodge has a payload that can make small work of the biggest jobs. Without beefing it up one bit, you can haul up to 1,505 pounds. That's bigger than Ford or Chevy.

Borg, Orantes rally

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Defending champion Manual Orantes and Bjorn Borg, one of the men favored to succeed him as U.S. Open title-holder, both came back from two set deficits Tuesday to survive nerve-tingling five-set tennis matches and set up a quarter-final meeting at the $416,600 championship.

Orantes, who seems to reserve his very best for the center court at the West Side Tennis Club, beat Stan Smith, the 1971 champion, 3-6, 1-6, 6-2, 7-6, 6-1, and Borg, the reigning Wimbledon, WCT and U.S. Pro Champion, defeated Brian Gottfried, 6-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

Earlier, Dick Stockton made the quarters for the first time in 10 attempts by defeating Colombia's Jairo Velasco, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4.

Stockton became the third U.S. player into the last eight of the men's bracket, joining top-seeded Jimmy Connors and Eddie Dibbs, the ninth seed, who qualified Monday in the top half of the draw.

Defending champion Chris Evert became the third American to reach the quarters of the women's bracket when she defeated Sue Barker of Britain, the reigning French Open titleholder, 6-1, 6-0. Earlier, Zenda Liess of Daytona Beach, Calif., advanced to the quarters with a 6-3, 6-4, win over Wendy Overton, and sixth-seeded Rosie Casals defeated Terry Holladay of La Jolla, Calif., 7-5, 6-1, in an All-American matchup.

Bears ready for opener, waive 3

The Chicago Bears will be at full strength Sunday when they meet the Detroit Lions in Soldier Field for the regular season opener, a club spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The only players hurting, defensive ends Gary Hrivnak, and Roger Stillwell, were listed as probable for the game, she said. Hrivnak has a calf muscle pull and Stillwell a knee strain.

The Bears announced it has waived three players and obtained cornerback Terry Schmidt, a three-year veteran, on waivers from the New Orleans Saints.

The three players waived were among several cut from the squad Monday in order for the Bears to get its roster size down to the National Football League limit of 43.

Waived were defensive tackle Richard Harris, a six-year veteran; defensive end Jerry Meyers, a rookie from Northern Illinois University, and quarterback Jerry Tagge, a four-year veteran.

Tight end Bob Parsons, who sprained a neck muscle in practice Tuesday, was examined and announced probable for Sunday's game.

The spokeswoman said 4,558 tickets remained for Sunday's game as of 1 p.m. Tuesday. If the contest is a sellout within 72 hours of the game, the local television blackout will be lifted.

Marchibroda returns with new pact

BALTIMORE — Ted Marchibroda, who resigned Sunday as coach of the Baltimore Colts because of front office interference, returned to the club Tuesday, apparently in full command of field operations and with an extended contract.

"By mutual agreement of all parties, I will be returning as head coach of the Baltimore Colts," Marchibroda said. "I will have full control of football matters and one additional year added to my contract.

"The most important factor is not that Ted Marchibroda is returning but that the players remain together," he said at a news conference at the team's St. Mary's Seminary practice field.

"My first purpose at hand is to have a good practice today and to get ready for New England on Sunday."

The Colt players, who told General Manager Joe Thomas on Monday they wanted Marchibroda reinstated, showed up at training camp at 2 p.m.

Marchibroda's resignation was prompted last Thursday night when owner Robert Irsay stormed into the locker room after the Colts' fourth preseason loss in a row and tongue-lashed the players for their 24-9 performance against the Detroit Lions.

Thomas defended Irsay's actions, saying, "An owner is allowed to do whatever he wants to do." He said Irsay will not be banned from the sidelines or the locker room.

Judge sets Nov. 8 for Finley trial

U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr Tuesday dismissed three of seven counts in Charles O. Finley's $10.5 million suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and organized baseball and set Nov. 8 for trial on the other four counts.

The judge dismissed the antitrust charges filed by Finley, who had sought triple damages bringing the total amount to $10.5 million, and two counts under which Finley charged he had been denied due process of legal treatment and given unequal protection by Kuhn.

McGarr's action left three counts in which the commissioner is involved and one count against the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

The suit by Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, stemmed from Kuhn's decision in June that Finley could not sell pitcher Vida Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to the Red Sox for $2 million. Kuhn voided the sale on the grounds it was not in the best interest of baseball.

Kuhn's attorneys were pleased with the dismissal of the antitrust charge, pointing out it had reduced the total amount of damages which could be claimed as well as any chance of claiming attorneys' fees and court costs.

Finley's attorneys, in conference in chambers with McGarr, withdrew Finley's request for preliminary injunctions which would have forced Kuhn to allow the sale of the players to be completed. Thus, the request for injunctions will be combined with the Nov. 8 trial on the merits of the case — whether Kuhn has the authority to void such sales.

It was believed Finley withdrew the request for preliminary injunctions because all three players have become major factors in the A's bid for another Western Division championship in the American League and to lose the three in the final month of the season could have a destructive effect on the morale of the team.

Vikings get Rashad from Seattle

SEATTLE — The Seattle Seahawks traded veteran wide receiver Ahmad Rashad to the Minnesota Vikings Tuesday for a 1977 draft choice and future considerations.

The Seahawks also placed wide receiver Cornelius Greene and defensive end Bob Martin on waivers, cutting their roster to 48, one under the NFL limit for expansion squads.

Rashad, the former Bobby Moore, signed with Seattle as a free agent after playing out his option with Buffalo. He missed all of the 1975 season recovering from a serious leg injury.

Don Anderson, Seattle public relations director, indicated the "future considerations" coming from Minnesota probably would be a player or players rather than cash.

"The Seahawks have strength at the wide receiver position." Anderson said. "There were six to seven players and Coach (Jack) Patera was very high on all of them."

Rashad, starting his fifth year in the pros, was "coveted by many teams," Anderson said.

Rashad led Buffalo in receiving in 1974 with 36 catches for 433 yards and four touchdowns. That was his first year with the Bills after two years at St. Louis, which drafted him in the first round in 1972 from Oregon, where he set 14 school records.

Defense strong, offense doubtful at Forest View

John Ayres

by KEITH REINHARD

A couple of symbols would seem to best sum up the football situation at Forest View this fall as preparations begin for a tough opener with St. Viator Sept. 10.

Next to the Falcon defense, mark up a big plus.

Next to the offense scribble in a question mark.

"Right now we're just hoping some of the experience that our defensive unit can claim will flow on over to the offfense," explained Fred Lussow, who is now in his fourth year at the Forest View helm.

Lussow welcomed over 50 candidates into camp, divided almost equally into senior and junior contingents. Back to bolster his 1976 entry into the Mid-Suburban's South Division race are a host of defensive veterans, seniors all, who can spread out to form an entire unit with spares.

"Our offense on the other hand will have to be built back up almost from scratch," Lussow offered. "With the exception of several lettermen who can be pressed into duty both ways, we have a lot of holes to fill on offense and our success this year will be largely determined by the personnel earning jbs there and the progress they make."

The Falcons in 1975 finished with a 4-5 overall slate and they tied with two other clubs in the South, fashioning 3-3 marks to tie for third place. Last year offense was the View's long suit, paced by southpaw slinger Jim Petran, and they went on to rank fourth of 13 teams in terms of total offense.

Forest View's defense in '75 was the inexperienced side of the squad, however, and they finished 12th in the conference ratings in yards allowed.

So 1976, if anything, promises to be an entirely different kind of season. Lussow doesn't foresee a lot of explosive offensive antics but he isn't ruling them out. And, in the meantime, the defense promises to keep the Falcons in all of the contests over a very rugged nine-weekend slate.

Key returnees on that defensive unit are 5-11, 170-pound safety John Lind, linebackers Jim Peterson (6-0, 185) and Kevin Kronforst (5-10, 195), tackles Lane LeBrun (5-10, 215), Jim Brown (6-2, 180) and Dave Herrold (6-0, 190), end Mike Murray (5-11, 170), and middle guard Steve Chromik (5-8) 215).

There is also Scott Stevens (6-2, 195) who can be utilized at tackle or linebacker and Jim Kennedy (6-3, 195), an end who also figures prominently in Lussow's offensive plans at center.

Jim Curley, a 5-11, 165-pound defensive back rounds out the nucleus of Forest View's defensive unit. A couple of juniors who might also work their way into the defensive backfield are Rick Gardner (6-0, 185), also a potential inebacker, and John Miscevich (5-10, 165).

Flanking Kennedy in the offensive line will probably be guards Lon Reitz (6-2, 195) and Pat Sidorchuk (6-2, 180). Stevens is another possibility here.

At tackle the players in the running include Brown, Herrold and Kurt Jung (6-1, 245) another returning vet. junior Joe Forssander (6-0, 175) is a front-runner for the tight end spot while Lind and Steve Miskovetz (6-2, 180) are under consideration for wide receiver.

In the offensive backfield Kronforst, Gardner, Peterson and Miscevich are all possibilities. There is also slotback Tim Dixon (5-10, 165) and tailback Bob Jenovai (5-10, 170), who showed some impressive running toward the end of last season.

The quarterback job is still up for grabs between Bill Payne (5-10, 165) and Craig Chuipek, a 6-0, 165-pound junior.

"Our first game will be an important test," Lussow summarized. "I like the idea of playing a strong ream right under the gun and St. Viator certainly fills the bill. It should give us an opportunity to find out a lot about ourselves."

Lussow will be assisted this fall by Ted Wissen, Bob Anderson and Dave Theesfeld.

Conant's Ayres anticipates start of winning tradition

by ART MUGALIAN

John Ayres has been coaching football at Conant High School for little more than a year, but his sense of Cougar grid history is sharp and firmly ingrained.

"Out of 12 years we've had just one winning season," said Ayres, who was responsible only for last year's 0-9 performance. "We want to do something about that situation."

Ayres' rebuilding job began in 1975 and, though the slate showed nine straight losses, the coach saw improvement.

"To live through a season like we had last year wasn't a whole lot of fun," said Ayres. "But the kids progressed through the season to the point where we felt we could have beaten some of the teams we lost to earlier. You could see the improvement."

The Cougars closed out the season with a tough loss to Elk Grove after holding a halftime lead and an overtime loss at Oswego. It was a season Ayres would like to forget. He'd rather look ahead.

"It's going to be different this year," he said. "We have kids who are familiar with what we are trying to accomplish. We have kids who have made a commitment to hard work.

"Last year's kids were eager but inexperienced. This is a whole different atmosphere."

Only nine returning lettermen and a handful of starters are around this year. Ayres will play several juniors on offense, including flanker Mike Walston (5-foot-7, 140 pounds), tight end Dan O'Malley (5-11, 170), center Ray Hagen (5-9, 170), and tackles Steve Herring (6-3, 230) and Paul Beckman (6-0, 190).

But the offense will be guided by the steady and experienced hand of senior Scott Schafer (6-1, 185).

"Scott has won the job," said Ayres, who indicated that junior Rocky Pugliese would be a capable backup. "Schafer is good-sized and has that year of experience under his belt. He throws the ball pretty well and he can run the option."

In the backfield with Schafer will be fullback Jeff Johnson (6-0, 192), an all-conference selection at linebacker last year and Conant's most versatile performer. Johnson, who averaged 3.7 yards per carry in 1975, will again go both ways for the Cougars.

At I-back will be a pair of hurdlers from the track team — Sam Assil (5-11, 160), and Tony Stompanato (5-9, 158). "Both of them have looked good in practice," said Ayres. "Tony is more the reading-type runner and Sam is the slashing type."

Ayres hopes to develop an attack that will exploit Schafer's passing abilities, but the coach emphasized his desire for a balanced offense.

"We want a controlled passing

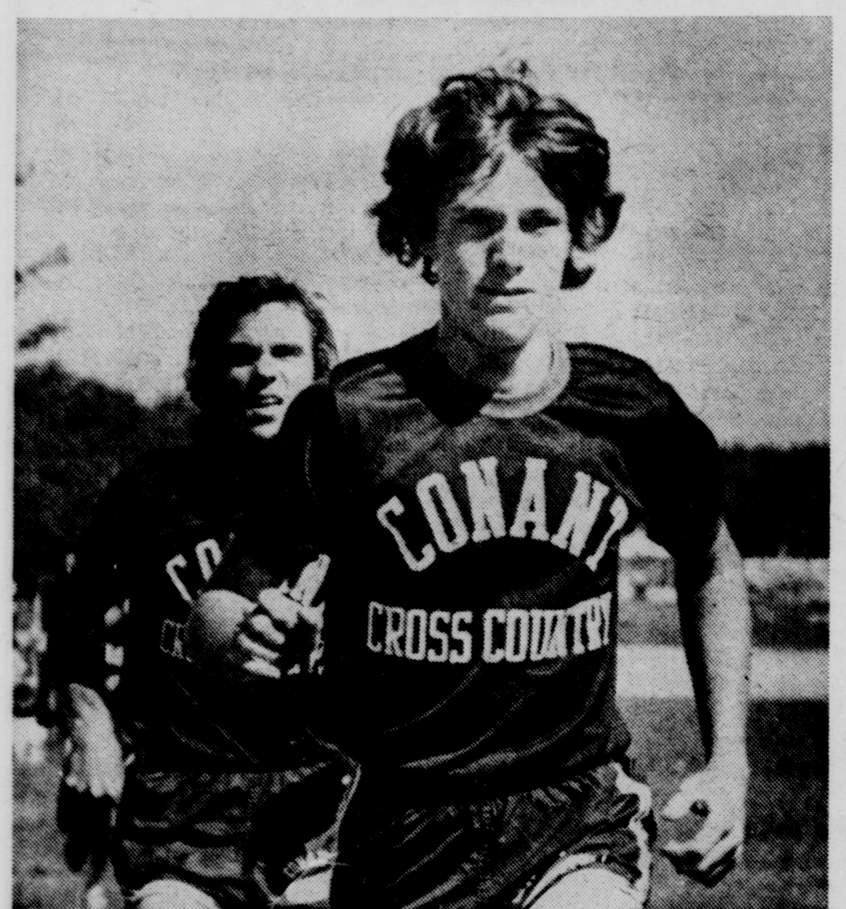
Transfers should help Harper

Hawk runners set to go

Harper College's best cross country runners usually transfer to other schools, so it's a pleasure for coach Bob Nolan to welcome some incoming transfers.

They're good ones, too.



The best is probably former Fremd state qualifier Wilson Fieldhouse, who came home from Florida State to lead the Harper Hawks into today's first meet of the season at Lake County at 3:30 p.m.

"Fieldhouse is running well," said Nolan. "He's probably right now our No. 1 man, but we've got three runners who are all pretty close to each other."

The other two Hawk harriers are transfers, too, having made the switch in time for track last spring.

Conant grad Mark Kaufman and ex-Wheeling standout Augie Ziccarelli will team with Fieldhouse to give Harper a formidable trio of scorers when the N4C conference schedule begins. Today's meet against Lake County is a nonleague meet.

"I'm kind of optimistic about the season," said Nolan. "We have 11 guys out running — it's a good nucleus and they're all eager."

After the top three, Nolan's team includes several former area prep. sters, among them Mike Fischer (Arlington), Chuck Squires (Hoffman Estates), Jeff Siemon and Rick Scholl (Palatine), Bruce Messinger (Wheeling), John Fabbrini (Elk Grove), and Mike Ham and Tim Blechl (Forest View).

Nolan hopes at least his three transfers will be able to run with Lake County's Kevin Walpole and Richard Kraph, 13th and 22nd, respectively, in the region meet last year.

LOOKING SMOOTH. Conant senior Dan Cummings strides effortlessly and holds the lead in middle stretch of season's first cross country meet at Union Oil grounds Saturday. Trailing Cummings is teammate Brian Foss. Cummings eventually took second behind East Peoria's Fred Brown and Foss was third as Conant won the dual meet, 20-43.

Defense strong, offense doubtful at Forest View

John Ayres

by KEITH REINHARD

A couple of symbols would seem to best sum up the football situation at Forest View this fall as preparations begin for a tough opener with St. Viator Sept. 10.

Next to the Falcon defense, mark up a big plus.

Next to the offense scribble in a question mark.

"Right now we're just hoping some of the experience that our defensive unit can claim will flow on over to the offfense," explained Fred Lussow, who is now in his fourth year at the Forest View helm.

Lussow welcomed over 50 candidates into camp, divided almost equally into senior and junior contingents. Back to bolster his 1976 entry into the Mid-Suburban's South Division race are a host of defensive veterans, seniors all, who can spread out to form an entire unit with spares.

"Our offense on the other hand will have to be built back up almost from scratch," Lussow offered. "With the exception of several lettermen who can be pressed into duty both ways, we have a lot of holes to fill on offense and our success this year will be largely determined by the personnel earning jbs there and the progress they make."

The Falcons in 1975 finished with a 4-5 overall slate and they tied with two other clubs in the South, fashioning 3-3 marks to tie for third place. Last year offense was the View's long suit, paced by southpaw slinger Jim Petran, and they went on to rank fourth of 13 teams in terms of total offense.

Forest View's defense in '75 was the inexperienced side of the squad, however, and they finished 12th in the conference ratings in yards allowed.

So 1976, if anything, promises to be an entirely different kind of season. Lussow doesn't foresee a lot of explosive offensive antics but he isn't ruling them out. And, in the meantime, the defense promises to keep the Falcons in all of the contests over a very rugged nine-weekend slate.

Key returnees on that defensive unit are 5-11, 170-pound safety John Lind, linebackers Jim Peterson (6-0, 185) and Kevin Kronforst (5-10, 195), tackles Lane LeBrun (5-10, 215), Jim Brown (6-2, 180) and Dave Herrold (6-0, 190), end Mike Murray (5-11, 170), and middle guard Steve Chromik (5-8) 215).

There is also Scott Stevens (6-2, 195) who can be utilized at tackle or linebacker and Jim Kennedy (6-3, 195), an end who also figures prominently in Lussow's offensive plans at center.

Jim Curley, a 5-11, 165-pound defensive back rounds out the nucleus of Forest View's defensive unit. A couple of juniors who might also work their way into the defensive backfield are Rick Gardner (6-0, 185), also a potential inebacker, and John Miscevich (5-10, 165).

Flanking Kennedy in the offensive line will probably be guards Lon Reitz (6-2, 195) and Pat Sidorchuk (6-2, 180). Stevens is another possibility here.

At tackle the players in the running include Brown, Herrold and Kurt Jung (6-1, 245) another returning vet. junior Joe Forssander (6-0, 175) is a front-runner for the tight end spot while Lind and Steve Miskovetz (6-2, 180) are under consideration for wide receiver.

In the offensive backfield Kronforst, Gardner, Peterson and Miscevich are all possibilities. There is also slotback Tim Dixon (5-10, 165) and tailback Bob Jenovai (5-10, 170), who showed some impressive running toward the end of last season.

The quarterback job is still up for grabs between Bill Payne (5-10, 165) and Craig Chuipek, a 6-0, 165-pound junior.

"Our first game will be an important test," Lussow summarized. "I like the idea of playing a strong ream right under the gun and St. Viator certainly fills the bill. It should give us an opportunity to find out a lot about ourselves."

Lussow will be assisted this fall by Ted Wissen, Bob Anderson and Dave Theesfeld.

Conant's Ayres anticipates start of winning tradition

by ART MUGALIAN

John Ayres has been coaching football at Conant High School for little more than a year, but his sense of Cougar grid history is sharp and firmly ingrained.

"Out of 12 years we've had just one winning season," said Ayres, who was responsible only for last year's 0-9 performance. "We want to do something about that situation."

Ayres' rebuilding job began in 1975 and, though the slate showed nine straight losses, the coach saw improvement.

"To live through a season like we had last year wasn't a whole lot of fun," said Ayres. "But the kids progressed through the season to the point where we felt we could have beaten some of the teams we lost to earlier. You could see the improvement."

The Cougars closed out the season with a tough loss to Elk Grove after holding a halftime lead and an overtime loss at Oswego. It was a season Ayres would like to forget. He'd rather look ahead.

"It's going to be different this year," he said. "We have kids who are familiar with what we are trying to accomplish. We have kids who have made a commitment to hard work.

"Last year's kids were eager but inexperienced. This is a whole different atmosphere."

Only nine returning lettermen and a handful of starters are around this year. Ayres will play several juniors on offense, including flanker Mike Walston (5-foot-7, 140 pounds), tight end Dan O'Malley (5-11, 170), center Ray Hagen (5-9, 170), and tackles Steve Herring (6-3, 230) and Paul Beckman (6-0, 190).

But the offense will be guided by the steady and experienced hand of senior Scott Schafer (6-1, 185).

"Scott has won the job," said Ayres, who indicated that junior Rocky Pugliese would be a capable backup. "Schafer is good-sized and has that year of experience under his belt. He throws the ball pretty well and he can run the option."

In the backfield with Schafer will be fullback Jeff Johnson (6-0, 192), an all-conference selection at linebacker last year and Conant's most versatile performer. Johnson, who averaged 3.7 yards per carry in 1975, will again go both ways for the Cougars.

At I-back will be a pair of hurdlers from the track team — Sam Assil (5-11, 160), and Tony Stompanato (5-9, 158). "Both of them have looked good in practice," said Ayres. "Tony is more the reading-type runner and Sam is the slashing type."

Ayres hopes to develop an attack that will exploit Schafer's passing abilities, but the coach emphasized his desire for a balanced offense.

"We want a controlled passing

Transfers should help Harper

Hawk runners set to go

Harper College's best cross country runners usually transfer to other schools, so it's a pleasure for coach Bob Nolan to welcome some incoming transfers.

They're good ones, too.

The best is probably former Fremd state qualifier Wilson Fieldhouse, who came home from Florida State to lead the Harper Hawks into today's first meet of the season at Lake County at 3:30 p.m.

"Fieldhouse is running well," said Nolan. "He's probably right now our No. 1 man, but we've got three runners who are all pretty close to each other."

The other two Hawk harriers are transfers, too, having made the switch in time for track last spring.

Conant grad Mark Kaufman and ex-Wheeling standout Augie Ziccarelli will team with Fieldhouse to give Harper a formidable trio of scorers when the N4C conference schedule begins. Today's meet against Lake County is a nonleague meet.

"I'm kind of optimistic about the season," said Nolan. "We have 11 guys out running — it's a good nucleus and they're all eager."

After the top three, Nolan's team includes several former area prep. sters, among them Mike Fischer (Arlington), Chuck Squires (Hoffman Estates), Jeff Siemon and Rick Scholl (Palatine), Bruce Messinger (Wheeling), John Fabbrini (Elk Grove), and Mike Ham and Tim Blechl (Forest View).

Nolan hopes at least his three transfers will be able to run with Lake County's Kevin Walpole and Richard Kraph, 13th and 22nd, respectively, in the region meet last year.

LOOKING SMOOTH. Conant senior Dan Cummings strides effortlessly and holds the lead in middle stretch of season's first cross country meet at Union Oil grounds Saturday. Trailing Cummings is teammate Brian Foss. Cummings eventually took second behind East Peoria's Fred Brown and Foss was third as Conant won the dual meet, 20-43.

'We'll be aggressive' promises Prospect's new coach

by PAUL LOGAN

Tragedy and graduation have made Prospect's football team an unknown quantity this season.

Cancer took the life of popular head coach Dave Keefe in December. In June, most of the varsity starters received diplomas.

Into this tough situation stepped Gary Grouwinkel. A veteran of both collegiate and prep coaching, Grouwinkel has been faced with the challenge of reorganizing the school's football program.

Since Grouwinkel is Prospect's third coach in four years, Knight players have had to adjust to several coaching philosophies. Although Grouwinkel admits that his offense is "a little more complicated, I don't think that it's been too bad because of our summer program . . . They've got a pretty good idea what I'm doing."

Prospect's coach brings a wealth of experience from jobs at four colleges and two high schools. In his most recent assignment at Florida State, he supervised the offense.

The offense has been a major concern of Grouwinkel and his staff (Larry Pohlmann, Bill Hansen, Jim Dufelmeier and Darryl Phillips) as they prepare the Knights for their home opener against highly regarded Maine West Friday night. The 1975 starting backfield (almost 2,000 yards of total offense) had to be replaced.

"If the fans come, they're not going to see three yards and a cloud of dust because that's not my style," says Grouwinkel, referring to last year's rugged ground game.

"It's a wide open, here we come, look out for anything style. We'll be aggressive . . . and I think we'll be exciting."

Two of the five lettermen returning are halfbacks — Terry Reed (5-foot-9, 165 pounds) and Jeff Carlson (6-0, 165). Reed, a senior co-captain, only carried the ball 17 times for 143 yards and an impressive 8.4 average.

Also in the starting lineup are letter winners Pat Higgins (6-1, 235), Doug Scott (6-0, 212) and Dave Horwath (6-0, 215). Higgins and Scott are offensive tackles; Horwath is defensive nose guard.

Pat Murphy (5-11, 185) has earned a start at fullback. He'll be joined in the backfield at quarterback by either senior Tom Franson (5-11, 180) or junior Andy Loos (5-11, 185).

"We'll be a little flexible with our offense," says Grouwinkel. "We may have to throw a little bit to move the football because we're not as big as some of the teams that we'll play."

Handling the pass-catching duties are tight end Erik Wilkins (5-11, 175)

and wide receiver Brad Millar (6-4, 190). Furnishing the protection for the quarterback along with the aforementioned tackles are guards John Mason (5-10, 175) and Mike Skogg (5-11, 212) and center Doug Clark (6-0, 180).

All but three positions are certain on defense. Joining Horwath on the line are tackle Gary McCammon (5-10, 230) and end Dan Keller (5-10, 185), the other co-captain. Three players are competing at each of the other tackle and end spots.

The linebackers are Paul Izban (6-1, 190) and Brian DeValk (6-0, 190). Grouwinkel is especially pleased with these two strong and quick juniors.

Three sure starters in the secondary are Steve Savage (5-10, 165), a speedy free safety, and cornerbacks Mike Frushour (5-10, 165) and Dave Peterson (5-10, 170).

Grouwinkel is a big believer in two-platoon football. "I want to play a number of kids and instill the fact that there's something there for everyone," he says. "My selling point is that they're going to have to work real hard NOT to like my program."

So far 56 players — an increase of 18 over last year — are on the varsity team. The sophomore team is the biggest ever and the freshman team is also very large.

It looks like Prospect's coach is off to a good start.

His gas was $20,000 a gallon

Worried about the rising cost of gasoline? Do you have nightmares about fuel going to $1 a gallon? Two dollars?

How would you like to pay $20,000 a gallon?

That's what race driver Jerry Grant figured the seven or eight gallons pumped into his car one day in May of 1972 cost him. The circumstances would have been comical if they weren't caked in deficits for Jerry.

The situation was this: Jerry Grant, a little-known driver out of Seattle, was, of all things, leading the Indianapolis 500 that year by a comfortable two laps over Mark Donohue when his car began to wobble. Pretty soon, chunks of rubber began bouncing off his helmet. Jerry knew what the trouble was: A front tire.

His radio communication with his pit crew was knocked out. So, he began to point frantically to his front tires. On the pit wall, car owner Dan Gurney got the message. He signaled Grant to pit.

Now, Gurney had two cars in the race that year. But Bobby Unser's had long since been knocked out of the race. This meant that Unser's pit still had plenty of fuel left. Also, a less-fatigued pit crew. Gurney directed Grant to the Unser pit which adjoined the Grant pit.

Changing a tire in the wrong pit at Indy is a minor infraction. Taking on fuel in the wrong pit is catastrophic. For one thing, it renders meaningless the fuel maximum of 280 gallons allowed a car. So, Dan Gurney screamed for the gas pumpers not to refuel the car as they got the hoses out. "He's got plenty of fuel!" he shouted. They tried to jerk the hose out. Too late. Seven or eight gallons too late.

Grant shot back onto the track. He still thought he had a lap lead. But he watched Donohue get the checkered flag. He was shocked. He was even more shocked the next day when he found he had not even finished second.

USAC (United States Automobile Club, which sanctions the race) penalized him 12 laps for pitting in the wrong area and taking on fuel from another driver's tank. Jerry Grant finished 12th. He received $28,000. He would have received $100,000 for finishing second, and $250,000 for finishing first.

"Twenty-six out of 33 scorers had us winning the race," he still insists. "We found that USAC had credited Mark Donohue with one lap that was almost impossible — a 230-mile-an-hour lap. We feel they mixed his car up with that of his teammate, Gary Bettenhausen, which was exactly the same color and silhouette."

It all became academic with the penalty, anyway. Jerry Grant became the Roy Riegels of auto racing. He joined the great fraternity of "Oops! Sorry about that!" of sports.

Although he is generally credited with suffering only a $72,000 loss for those two seconds or seven or eight gallons of fuel, or the difference between 2nd and 12th, Jerry insists the figure is more like $222,000.

"Beofre we knew about the penalty, we stayed up all night studying films and we — and the ABC crew we were working with — were positive we had won the race."

Two cars showing up in Victory Lane at Indy is not uncommon. In 1966, Graham Hill and Jimmy Clark almost collided under the winner's trophy. There are those who still insist Clark, and not the official winner, Hill, really won. Charting 33 cars going around a 2½-mile oval 200 times at peak speeds in excess of 210 m.p.h. is like charting comets.

For Jerry Grant, the "wrong pit" incident was particularly frustrating. Jerry, as usual, was in hock up to his helmet that year to stay in racing — a profession which requires an outlay of $250,000 to put a competitive car on the tracks. Jerry's biggest trouble in some races was that someone might repossess the car on the backstretch. He should have driven under the IOU label.

One win at Indy puts all that behind you. But Jerry Grant has always been a hard-luck driver. In 1972, at the California 500 at Ontario where he drives next week, Jerry became the first driver in USAC history to run an official lap over 200 m.p.h. when he won the pole. But his car never even made the parade lap. It blew an engine immediately.

The next year, at Ontario, Grant qualified second, but, as the flag dropped, Gordon Johncock's car blew up in front of him, and he slipped and slid in Johncock's oil spill, and hung it on the wall. "At that rate, I figured it would be the year 2000 before I made the 20th lap. I began to tell the guys, 'Don't fill 'er up, I'll be back in a minute.' "

Jerry Grant had hoped to make it all the way to the winner's circle at Ontario last Sunday. He had a lot of encouragement. "Every gill collector in the county will be rooting for me."

Unfortunately for old Jer, he finished 10th . . . but he stopped at the right pit and used the right pump.

Maybe his luck is beginning to change.

Junior tight end Ed MacDonald (6-5, 210) and split end Ed Hill (5-9, 145) will be two of Schafer's prime receivers, although MacDonald will probably miss a couple of games due to injury. Mike Wendt (5-10, 166) and Rob Totten (5-11, 180) are also candidates at split end.

Key men on defense are veteran linemen Dean Tuma (6-0, 198), Jim Heisen (6-1, 176), and Mike Weston (6-2, 195), plus linebacker Johnson and defensive backs Wendt, Assil and Stompanato. Juniors who will see a lot of defenisvely action are Tim Glascott (6-3, 175), Jack Kerr (6-1, 185), Dave Brumm (6-1, 183) and Pugliese (6-0, 165).

Lasting Service

by Ed Landwehr

To be a good auto mechanic you must have the appropriate tools and, most important, know where to use them. It's expensive to repair the carburetor when the engine only needs spark plugs. This is even more true with electronic servicing, particularly with color TV.

Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center has a small fortune in electronic meters and testers to analyze any problem in electronics. And more than with mechanical, electronic maintenance men must have a wide understanding in circuit procedures. We do this and guarantee our skill. We'll explain your TV problem so you can understand it and know what you're paying for. Sometimes our estimates are higher than the part-timers and the tube selling firms, but you have service that lasts longer and gives you better picture viewing. Pone 255-0700 next time and let us show you what we mean. Or stop in at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

'We'll be aggressive' promises Prospect's new coach

by PAUL LOGAN

Tragedy and graduation have made Prospect's football team an unknown quantity this season.

Cancer took the life of popular head coach Dave Keefe in December. In June, most of the varsity starters received diplomas.

Into this tough situation stepped Gary Grouwinkel. A veteran of both collegiate and prep coaching, Grouwinkel has been faced with the challenge of reorganizing the school's football program.

Since Grouwinkel is Prospect's third coach in four years, Knight players have had to adjust to several coaching philosophies. Although Grouwinkel admits that his offense is "a little more complicated, I don't think that it's been too bad because of our summer program . . . They've got a pretty good idea what I'm doing."

Prospect's coach brings a wealth of experience from jobs at four colleges and two high schools. In his most recent assignment at Florida State, he supervised the offense.

The offense has been a major concern of Grouwinkel and his staff (Larry Pohlmann, Bill Hansen, Jim Dufelmeier and Darryl Phillips) as they prepare the Knights for their home opener against highly regarded Maine West Friday night. The 1975 starting backfield (almost 2,000 yards of total offense) had to be replaced.

"If the fans come, they're not going to see three yards and a cloud of dust because that's not my style," says Grouwinkel, referring to last year's rugged ground game.

"It's a wide open, here we come, look out for anything style. We'll be aggressive . . . and I think we'll be exciting."

Two of the five lettermen returning are halfbacks — Terry Reed (5-foot-9, 165 pounds) and Jeff Carlson (6-0, 165). Reed, a senior co-captain, only carried the ball 17 times for 143 yards and an impressive 8.4 average.

Also in the starting lineup are letter winners Pat Higgins (6-1, 235), Doug Scott (6-0, 212) and Dave Horwath (6-0, 215). Higgins and Scott are offensive tackles; Horwath is defensive nose guard.

Pat Murphy (5-11, 185) has earned a start at fullback. He'll be joined in the backfield at quarterback by either senior Tom Franson (5-11, 180) or junior Andy Loos (5-11, 185).

"We'll be a little flexible with our offense," says Grouwinkel. "We may have to throw a little bit to move the football because we're not as big as some of the teams that we'll play."

Handling the pass-catching duties are tight end Erik Wilkins (5-11, 175)

and wide receiver Brad Millar (6-4, 190). Furnishing the protection for the quarterback along with the aforementioned tackles are guards John Mason (5-10, 175) and Mike Skogg (5-11, 212) and center Doug Clark (6-0, 180).

All but three positions are certain on defense. Joining Horwath on the line are tackle Gary McCammon (5-10, 230) and end Dan Keller (5-10, 185), the other co-captain. Three players are competing at each of the other tackle and end spots.

The linebackers are Paul Izban (6-1, 190) and Brian DeValk (6-0, 190). Grouwinkel is especially pleased with these two strong and quick juniors.

Three sure starters in the secondary are Steve Savage (5-10, 165), a speedy free safety, and cornerbacks Mike Frushour (5-10, 165) and Dave Peterson (5-10, 170).

Grouwinkel is a big believer in two-platoon football. "I want to play a number of kids and instill the fact that there's something there for everyone," he says. "My selling point is that they're going to have to work real hard NOT to like my program."

So far 56 players — an increase of 18 over last year — are on the varsity team. The sophomore team is the biggest ever and the freshman team is also very large.

It looks like Prospect's coach is off to a good start.

Lasting Service

by Ed Landwehr

To be a good auto mechanic you must have the appropriate tools and, most important, know where to use them. It's expensive to repair the carburetor when the engine only needs spark plugs. This is even more true with electronic servicing, particularly with color TV.

Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center has a small fortune in electronic meters and testers to analyze any problem in electronics. And more than with mechanical, electronic maintenance men must have a wide understanding in circuit procedures. We do this and guarantee our skill. We'll explain your TV problem so you can understand it and know what you're paying for. Sometimes our estimates are higher than the part-timers and the tube selling firms, but you have service that lasts longer and gives you better picture viewing. Pone 255-0700 next time and let us show you what we mean. Or stop in at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

tice game Saturday but he admitted, "there was some good hitting out there.

"Our strength is at linebacker," Eliasik said. "And we've got a good pair."

Kevin Koppari (6-3, 225) has been switched from defensive end to join Kristick (6-2, 200) as the spine of Harper's 5-2 defensive set.

There are four players working for the defensive end jobs. Joe Lange (6-2, 205) and Jon Campbell (6-3, 190) played last year while newcomers John Lipp (6-3, 200) and Jim Broderick (6-1, 185) will be pushing them.

Marek may be counted on to replace Bill Nash at nose guard.

Flanking him will be defensive tackles Greg Goldman (6-3, 230) and Steve Long (6-6, 240). Guy Miller (6-3, 230) is also in line for a tackle job.

Ted Tyk, (6-1, 185) a freshman from Rolling Meadows, is being tried at defensive end, linebacker and defensive halfback.

John Spores (5-9, 160) is the only regular returning from last year and he is in a 7-day battle for the four defensive backfield slots.

Other candidates are Vince Hall (6-0, 180), Chet DeKing (5-9, 155), Mike Dickerson (5-8, 153), John Martin (5-8, 155) and Allen.

Pete Passaglia, a freshman from Fremd, will handle the Hawks' kicking.

Mid-Suburban girls open archery competition today

Defending MSL champion Arlington will be at Rolling Meadows with Prospect at Schaumburg, Fremd at Palatine, Hersey at Forest View and Elk Grove at Buffalo Grove.

Conant will host Fenton in a non-league meet, also starting at 4:30 p.m.

Rolling Meaoows is taking Wheeling's place in the MSL. Wheeling dropped out of competition this season.

Arlington has dominated the league over the past three years under the guidance of Coach Linda Swanson. However, she left Arlington at the end of last year. Linda Angeloff is the new head coach.

For the first time ever, girls will be able to compete in a state tournament. The week after the MSL championship, district meets will be held throughout the state on Oct. 16. The state finals will be the following weekend, Oct. 22-23.

Battle of brothers

Henry and Eddie Johnson are brothers and they bowl together in an ABC sanctioned league in Fort Payne, Ala. In a 1975-76 session each rolled the following games in identical order — 177, 176, and 223.

Romans ignore fall of their empire

ROME (UPI) — Romans were too busy recovering from their summer vacations today to take note of a milestone in the history of their city and the Western World — the 1,500th anniversary of the fall of the Roman Empire.

Although historians dispute the exact date of that momentous event, most of them agree that by Sept. 7, 476 A.D., the last of the Roman emperors, an inexperienced youngster known as Romulus Augustulus, had been deposed by the barbarian chieftain Odoacer.

And although the Eastern emperors at Constantinople held on to power almost another 1,000 years, the insurrection of Odoacer ended 499 years of Roman rule in the West.

It was the eclipse of an era whose law and culture shape the map and languages of Europe to this day.

IN A CITY whose residents are continually exposed to the marble and brick ruins of an imperial past, contemporary Romans are marking the 1,500th anniversary of their lost glory with no special memorials.

There is none of the hoopla Americans displayed two months ago on the 200th anniversary of their independence.

There were no parades, no concerts, no picnics in the park, and most of all, no rounds of speeches by politicians seeking to draw ponderous moral and social conclusions from what 18th century historian Edward Gibbon called "the greatest, perhaps, and most awful scene in the history of mankind."

Only one major Italian newspaper even bothered to note that the 1,500th anniversary of the Roman Empire's fall was at hand. The Turin daily La Stampa ran a four-part series on the fall by historian Lidia Storoni.

Somewhat belatedly, the national radio and television network, RAI, has scheduled a program on the event for Sept. 17.

THOSE WERE the only exceptions to the general "couldn't care less" attitude.

It was the same in 1957 when the 2,000th anniversary of the assassination of Julius Caesar passed almost unnoticed.

Perhaps assassinations and the loss of empires are not the stuff of celebrations, or even memorials.

Whatever the reasons, Romans were more concerned about he deluge of post-vacation automobile traffic and a new increase in the price of pasta.

They also were wondering what their new Communist mayor, sitting in his office overlooking the melancholy ruins of the Roman Forum, was going to do about the traffic, the prices and other present-day civic woes.

And if there are any lessons to be drawn from the Roman Empire's fall, they cannot be comfortable to modern ears.

GIBBON, A meticulous Englishman who worked 22 years on his monumental history of Rome, concluded that the empire was just too good to last.

"The decline of Rome was the natural and inevitable effect of immoderate greatness," Gibbon wrote in 1787.

"Prosperity ripened the principle of decay, the causes of destruction multiplied with the extent of conquest and as soon as time or accident had removed the artificial supports, the stupendous fabric yielded to the pressure of its own weight."

Historians agree, however, that the imperial fabric did not come crashing down one fateful day 1,500 years ago. It was a gradual process of decay and neglect spread over 200 years.

AND ALTHOUGH historians still dispute the causes of the Roman Empire's fall, none dispute its greatness.

At its height in the 2nd century, the empire spread Rome's language, its culture, law and order from what is now Scotland to the banks of the Gigris and Euphrates rivers in modern day Iraq.

I would have fired Kelley: Carter

by United Press International

Jimmy Carter, stressing that the head of the FBI must be "pure," Tuesday said he would have fired agency Director Clarence Kelley for accepting gifts and services from subordinates.

Following the official opening of his campaign Monday in Warm Springs, Ga., Carter stumped the Northeast Tuesday. President Ford remained in Washington, preparing for the start of his campaign next week in Ann Arbor, Mich.

A new Harris survey, released Tuesday, found that most voters feel Ford's views are closer to their own than those of Carter. In the poll, 72 per cent said Ford was either conservative or middle of the road. Seventy-two per cent put themselves in one of the two categories.

Carter said during a question and answer session at Brooklyn College in New York that "There has been a great contribution to the rise in crime in our country because of Watergate, the CIA revelations and the disgraceful activities of the FBI."

"I think the director of the FBI ought to be as pure as Caeser's wife," he said. "We shouldn't have federal funds given to decorate his house."

When asked by a reporter whether he would have dismissed Kelley, Carter replied "Knowing what I know now, yes, I would have fired him."

Kelley has admitted accepting gifts from other agency officials and that FBI carpenters built two window valences in his home a short time after he became director in 1973. Last week he wrote the government a check for $335 to cover the carpentry costs.

Ford, after studying a Justice Department report, announced Saturday that there was "no adequate justification" for firing Kelley.

Later, in Groton, Conn., Carter kept his position on Kelley but admitted "Mr. Ford may have information that I don't have." When asked about replacing Kelley if elected, he replied, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Romans ignore fall of their empire

ROME (UPI) — Romans were too busy recovering from their summer vacations today to take note of a milestone in the history of their city and the Western World — the 1,500th anniversary of the fall of the Roman Empire.

Although historians dispute the exact date of that momentous event, most of them agree that by Sept. 7, 476 A.D., the last of the Roman emperors, an inexperienced youngster known as Romulus Augustulus, had been deposed by the barbarian chieftain Odoacer.

And although the Eastern emperors at Constantinople held on to power almost another 1,000 years, the insurrection of Odoacer ended 499 years of Roman rule in the West.

It was the eclipse of an era whose law and culture shape the map and languages of Europe to this day.

Present-day Romans seem singularly unimpressed.

IN A CITY whose residents are continually exposed to the marble and brick ruins of an imperial past, contemporary Romans are marking the 1,500th anniversary of their lost glory with no special memorials.

There is none of the hoopla Americans displayed two months ago on the 200th anniversary of their independence.

There were no parades, no concerts, no picnics in the park, and most of all, no rounds of speeches by politicians seeking to draw ponderous moral and social conclusions from what 18th century historian Edward Gibbon called "the greatest, perhaps, and most awful scene in the history of mankind."

Only one major Italian newspaper even bothered to note that the 1,500th anniversary of the Roman Empire's fall was at hand. The Turin daily La Stampa ran a four-part series on the fall by historian Lidia Storoni.

Somewhat belatedly, the national radio and television network, RAI, has scheduled a program on the event for Sept. 17.

THOSE WERE the only exceptions to the general "couldn't care less" attitude.

It was the same in 1957 when the 2,000th anniversary of the assassination of Julius Caesar passed almost unnoticed.

Perhaps assassinations and the loss of empires are not the stuff of celebrations, or even memorials.

Whatever the reasons, Romans were more concerned about he deluge of post-vacation automobile traffic and a new increase in the price of pasta.

They also were wondering what their new Communist mayor, sitting in his office overlooking the melancholy ruins of the Roman Forum, was going to do about the traffic, the prices and other present-day civic woes.

And if there are any lessons to be drawn from the Roman Empire's fall, they cannot be comfortable to modern ears.

GIBBON, A meticulous Englishman who worked 22 years on his monumental history of Rome, concluded that the empire was just too good to last.

"The decline of Rome was the natural and inevitable effect of immoderate greatness," Gibbon wrote in 1787.

"Prosperity ripened the principle of decay, the causes of destruction multiplied with the extent of conquest and as soon as time or accident had removed the artificial supports, the stupendous fabric yielded to the pressure of its own weight."

Historians agree, however, that the imperial fabric did not come crashing down one fateful day 1,500 years ago. It was a gradual process of decay and neglect spread over 200 years.

AND ALTHOUGH historians still dispute the causes of the Roman Empire's fall, none dispute its greatness.

At its height in the 2nd century, the empire spread Rome's language, its culture, law and order from what is now Scotland to the banks of the Gigris and Euphrates rivers in modern day Iraq.

I would have fired Kelley: Carter

by United Press International

Jimmy Carter, stressing that the head of the FBI must be "pure," Tuesday said he would have fired agency Director Clarence Kelley for accepting gifts and services from subordinates.

Following the official opening of his campaign Monday in Warm Springs, Ga., Carter stumped the Northeast Tuesday. President Ford remained in Washington, preparing for the start of his campaign next week in Ann Arbor, Mich.

A new Harris survey, released Tuesday, found that most voters feel Ford's views are closer to their own than those of Carter. In the poll, 72 per cent said Ford was either conservative or middle of the road. Seventy-two per cent put themselves in one of the two categories.

Carter said during a question and answer session at Brooklyn College in New York that "There has been a great contribution to the rise in crime in our country because of Watergate, the CIA revelations and the disgraceful activities of the FBI."

"I think the director of the FBI ought to be as pure as Caeser's wife," he said. "We shouldn't have federal funds given to decorate his house."

When asked by a reporter whether he would have dismissed Kelley, Carter replied "Knowing what I know now, yes, I would have fired him."

Kelley has admitted accepting gifts from other agency officials and that FBI carpenters built two window valences in his home a short time after he became director in 1973. Last week he wrote the government a check for $335 to cover the carpentry costs.

Ford, after studying a Justice Department report, announced Saturday that there was "no adequate justification" for firing Kelley.

Later, in Groton, Conn., Carter kept his position on Kelley but admitted "Mr. Ford may have information that I don't have." When asked about replacing Kelley if elected, he replied, "We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Labor threatened by GOP: Howlett

Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, warned Tuesday night that the legislative gains made by organized labor can be maintained only if the Democrats retain control of the Illinois General Assembly.

Howlett made his remarks during a Democratic rally in Bethalto. He charged that progressive legislation, passed since the Democrats gained majorities in the legislature in 1975, could be negated if Republicans win control in November.

"My opponent told a Republican audience he would create an alliance between business and the governor's office. If he were elected, you can be sure the Republicans would help business try to turn back the clock on worker benefits," Howlett said.

Candidate fundraisers scheduled

A number of candidates announced fund-raising events for the coming weeks as their campaigns swing into high gear.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, will be honored at a cocktail party sponsored by organized labor leaders Sept. 26 at the Sheraton Walden Inn.

Republican Roger Stanley of Hanover Park, a candidate for the Illinois House from the 2nd Legislative District, will have a spaghetti dinner Sept. 25 at the Elgin VFW Hall. The dinner will cost $5 per family.

"The days of $50 and $100 a plate dinners are over. We want to give the voters a chance to know local and state legislators, without straining their pocketbooks," Stanley said.

Illinois Senate Pres. Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, a candidate for attorney general, will feature comedian George Kirby and U.S. Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., at a $100 per plate fund-raising dinner Saturday at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago.

Backers of former State Rep. Richard Walsh will host a reception for him Sept. 16 at the Mar-Lac House in Oak Park.

Walsh is running for the Illinois Senate from the 5th Legislative District.

Palatine GOP backs Ford-Dole

The Palatine Township Republican Organization recently gave its full support for the presidential ticket of President Gerald Ford and U.S. Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Earlier this year, the organization had endorsed the presidential bid of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, who was defeated at the GOP convention.

Legislators honored for work

Several public officials have been honored by groups for their legislative activities. U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, was endorsed by the Nurses Coalition for Political Action. The congressman's endorsement came after he received a 100 per cent voting record rating from the group.

Mikva, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, has supported legislation to provide federal funds for nursing services.

State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, was cited by the Illinois chapter of Common Cause, a citizens' lobby group, with a special award for his efforts to develop a "sunset law" for Illinois.

The Katz legislation is modeled after a new Colorado law, which calls for state agencies to be reviewed and eliminated if it is determined that the agencies are not serving the people.

Young hits jobless pay law

Republican congressional candidate Samuel H. Young of Glenview has criticized a bill that would revise unemployment compensation laws.

Young attacked the legislation because he believes the new law would put a huge financial burden on states and cities.

The House-passed version of the bill contains a provision extending unemployment compensation provisions to 8.3 million state and local government workers, Young said.

"If state and local government are required to join the unemployment system, they would be forced to pay in as much as $2 billion," Young said.

Pullen seeks limit on state taxes

Illinois House candidate Penny Pullen of Park Ridge has called for a constitutional amendment to limit the amount of taxes the state can levy.

The limit being proposed would tie the tax limit to a percentage of the total personal income statewide, Pullen said.

Ms. Pullen, a Republican, is running for the Illinois House from the 4th Legislative District.

Keats lauds citizen's patrol group

Republican Roger Keats has commended a group of Wilmette residents for forming a citizens' patrol group aimed at cutting vandalism and burglaries in their neighborhoods.

The residents are working with local police during peak times for vandalism and burglaries, Keats said.

He commended the residents for having "the initiative to act to help solve their own problems, rather than waiting for someone else to do it for them."

Smith backs change in electric rates

Democrat Michael Smith of Elk Grove Village, a candidate for the Illinois Senate from the 3rd Legislative District, has announced his support for legislation changing the rate system for electricity.

Smith said the "lifeline" system would help encourage energy conservation by charging small electricity users less for reducing consumption. He charged the current rate system, which reduces the amount charged for electricity as the volume increases, discourages conservation efforts.

Crane criticizes pay-hike backers

Crane has opposed current and past attempts to hike Congressional salaries.

"Last summer when the election was far away they felt they could safely provide themselves with a built-in, permanent safeguard against the result of their own reckless spending. Now that the representatives face election in less than nine weeks, they conveniently seize the opportunity to atone for their sins against the taxpayers by voting to halt the cost of living increase scheduled for Oct. 1," Crane said.

Crane noted that 118 congressmen, including 16 members of the Illinois delegation, had favored the pay hike but voted against the cost-of-living increase.

Crane also criticized the $1 billion subsidy given to the U.S. Postal Service. He predicted the subsidies will increase to between $4.5 billion and $5 billion by the end of fiscal 1978.

He also commended the Civil Aeronautics Board for relaxing regulations on charter airline flights.

The new CAB rules will drop a number of restrictions relating to charter flights.

Kids do more than 'bum around'

Today

Mike Klein's people

Kids. That's what most of them were. They might have spent one final day sunning at the beach.

Or the kids might have struggled with a cruel reality that September means brown leaves, cool night air and pretty cheerleaders, but it also means school.

For the greatest majority of these kids, it probably was their final day of summer vacation before that annual nine-month misery known as "the educational process."

The others already had begun their sentence last week as school calendars inch backward into August.

You can still hear it most any day. Somebody will cynically chastise youth by asking, "Why don't those kids ever do anything except bum around and cause trouble?"

NO MAN OR WOMAN who thinks like that could be found between Sunday afternoon and Labor Day evening inside the Hyatt-Regency Chicago Hotel's grand ballroom.

That's where the kids, approximately 2,000 in number, gathered to help fight muscular dystrophy.

Some kids worked just a single five- or six-hour shift during the 11th annual nationwide Jerry Lewis Telethon, and the fifth held in Chicago.

Others volunteered for two or three shifts. Only the grittiest, despite their youth and enthusiasm, had the mustard to endure all 24 hours, even with a little nap.

The kids volunteered for as many reasons as there were volunteers. Some kids had friends who were interested. Others came because the disease might have taken the life of a friend Perhaps even a brother or sister.

A very few volunteers were crippled. They walked to their chairs with help from their friends.

BUT MOST WORKED for the very simplest reason. They are good people, not too big or too proud to dig down deep into themselves and offer a few hours of kindness to people who they might never even know.

The young people came together at one dozen Jerry Lewis Telethon centers across northern Illinois and Indiana.

That's where the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. headquartered its Chicago, suburban Cook County and DuPage County telephone network.

Telephones did not ring. A red light blinked. The caller heard, "Jerry Lewis Telethon." Then the offer was made, a dollars and cents pledge to help support muscular dystrophy research and patient services.

THESE ARE CYNICAL times. A person can easily become pessimistic when he is surrounded by uneasy vibrations and outright bad news most every waking moment of most every single day.

"The standard motto goes something like, "Who gives a damn for you? I've got myself to worry about."

You want to know who gives a damn? Ask the kids who answered telephones. Ask talk show hosts Steve Edwards or Sandi Freeman who guided the Chicago effort from WSNS-TV studios.

Ask the dozens of newspaper, radio and television celebrities, if you think they are celebrities, who gave their time not for profit, but for people.

Then go find Jerry Lewis, who never has revealed to anyone, not even his wife, the motivation behind his excessive desire to eliminate the dreaded killer and crippler that is muscular dystrophy.

Ask Jerry, "Who gives a damn?"

AND WHEN HE HAS finished running you up and down with bloodshot eyes, Jerry Lewis will tell you about the volunteers. He'll tell you about staffers at the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. nationwide offices.

And Jerry Lewis will tell you about the people who he never sees, the little people sitting at home. They don't have $1,000, $500 or even $100 to contribute to any cause, regardless of its worth.

But they have got $10, $5 or $1. They contribute those dollars willingly. These are the real people.

ITEM: This past weekend's 11th annual nationally televised Jerry Lewis Telethon raised $21,732,812 in dollars pledged against muscular dystrophy. The amount was a record.

ITEM: Chicago's fifth annual portion of that telethon raised $907,690 in pledges, a vast increase beyond last Labor Day's $753,000. And yes, that was a record, too.

But it's one thing to say "I'll pledge . . ." and quite another to write the check.

Many fund raisers are happy with a 70 or 80 per cent return. They consider that a successful drive.

Last year's 10th annual Jerry Lewis Telethone netted 103 per cent of the dollar amount pledged.

And that takes into account the very few persons who use their pledge envelopes to line wastebaskets.

THE JERRY Lewis Telethon. It was a thing of beauty. To think, that first telethon many years ago raised just $1,002,114 nationwide, an amount almost equaled this year just in Chicago.

From Las Vegas to Chicago and all surrounding points nationwide, the Jerry Lewis Telethon was a labor of love.

And the vast majority of those people were kids.

Baby-adoption scheme brings 7 indictments

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — A county grand jury Tuesday indicted seven persons, including five attorneys, on charges of arranging the sale of babies to adoptive parents in a five-state network.

Bergen County Prosecutor Joseph Woodcock said the indictments were the result of a 10-month investigation by authorities in New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Michigan and California.

Edward Terner, an attorney in West Orange, N.J., was named in four of the indictments, which allege eight white babies were sold between August 1972, and January 1975, to couples paying fees of up to $9,100 for the adoption.

Other attorneys named were Harry D. Cohen, Chicago; J. George Ivler, Paterson, N.J.; Bernard Lampear, Southfield, Mich.; and Harold Rosenstein, New York.

IVLER'S WIFE, Enid, and Robert Ackerman, a landlord in Port Murray, N.J. were also named in a two-count indictment.

The indictments charge that Cohen and Turner unlawfully assisted in the placement of infant children, contrary to statutes of New Jersey which prohibit placing a child into the home of anyone but a brother, or sister of the natural mother.

"All I'm prepared to say is that these people know each other and do business," Woodcock said.

"I won't characterize this as a ring. In some cases the adoptive parents were New Yorkers and in others they were New Jersey residents," he said.

THE FIRST COUNT of the indictment charges Cohen and Terner with arranging the sale of three babies for $4,800, $5,550 and $8,000 to adoptive parents. Another count charges they received $9,100 for placement of another child.

None of the adoptive parents is named in the indictment.

The Terner-Rosenstein team allegedly acquired two children from unnamed California attorneys for prices of $8,400 and $9,100.

Terner and Lampar are alleged to have arranged placement of two children for $3,500 and $5,500.

WOODCOCK SAID the adoptive parents would go to an attorney and ask for help in adopting a baby without going through a regular adoption agency.

The attorney would then contact another attorney in Chicago or Michigan and arrange for the adoptive parents to fly to the Midwest, pay the money and take the baby home.

"In one case, the parents in New Jersey went to Chicago Aug. 11, 1972, and in another they went on Jan. 31, 1975," Woodcock said.

Ivler was charged with helping Ackerman and his wife arrange in 1975 the sale of an infant whose natural mother lived at Ackerman's apartment house. The indictment alleged the infant changed hands at the Children's Home Society in Trenton.

Rosenstein, reached for comment, admitted he had helped arrange private adoptions up until 1974 but said, "They were strictly legitimate."

"I didn't think I was that deeply involved. All I handled was the legal end of it for the people," he said.

He refused to name any of his clients.

Young attacked the legislation because he believes the new law would put a huge financial burden on states and cities.

The House-passed version of the bill contains a provision extending unemployment compensation provisions to 8.3 million state and local government workers, Young said.

"If state and local government are required to join the unemployment system, they would be forced to pay in as much as $2 billion," Young said.

Pullen seeks limit on state taxes

Illinois House candidate Penny Pullen of Park Ridge has called for a constitutional amendment to limit the amount of taxes the state can levy.

The limit being proposed would tie the tax limit to a percentage of the total personal income statewide, Pullen said.

Ms. Pullen, a Republican, is running for the Illinois House from the 4th Legislative District.

Keats lauds citizen's patrol group

Republican Roger Keats has commended a group of Wilmette residents for forming a citizens' patrol group aimed at cutting vandalism and burglaries in their neighborhoods.

The residents are working with local police during peak times for vandalism and burglaries, Keats said.

He commended the residents for having "the initiative to act to help solve their own problems, rather than waiting for someone else to do it for them."

Smith backs change in electric rates

Democrat Michael Smith of Elk Grove Village, a candidate for the Illinois Senate from the 3rd Legislative District, has announced his support for legislation changing the rate system for electricity.

Smith said the "lifeline" system would help encourage energy conservation by charging small electricity users less for reducing consumption. He charged the current rate system, which reduces the amount charged for electricity as the volume increases, discourages conservation efforts.

Crane criticizes pay-hike backers

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, criticized a number of his Congressional colleagues for voting against salary increases just before an election when they supported the measures in the past.

Crane has opposed current and past attempts to hike Congressional salaries.

"Last summer when the election was far away they felt they could safely provide themselves with a built-in, permanent safeguard against the result of their own reckless spending. Now that the representatives face election in less than nine weeks, they conveniently seize the opportunity to atone for their sins against the taxpayers by voting to halt the cost of living increase scheduled for Oct. 1," Crane said.

Crane noted that 118 congressmen, including 16 members of the Illinois delegation, had favored the pay hike but voted against the cost-of-living increase.

Crane also criticized the $1 billion subsidy given to the U.S. Postal Service. He predicted the subsidies will increase to between $4.5 billion and $5 billion by the end of fiscal 1978.

He also commended the Civil Aeronautics Board for relaxing regulations on charter airline flights.

The new CAB rules will drop a number of restrictions relating to charter flights.

Aid muscular dystrophy fight

Kids do more than 'bum around'

Today

Mike Klein's people

Kids. That's what most of them were. They might have spent one final day sunning at the beach.

Or the kids might have struggled with a cruel reality that September means brown leaves, cool night air and pretty cheerleaders, but it also means school.

For the greatest majority of these kids, it probably was their final day of summer vacation before that annual nine-month misery known as "the educational process."

The others already had begun their sentence last week as school calendars inch backward into August.

You can still hear it most any day. Somebody will cynically chastise youth by asking, "Why don't those kids ever do anything except bum around and cause trouble?"

NO MAN OR WOMAN who thinks like that could be found between Sunday afternoon and Labor Day evening inside the Hyatt-Regency Chicago Hotel's grand ballroom.

That's where the kids, approximately 2,000 in number, gathered to help fight muscular dystrophy.

Some kids worked just a single five- or six-hour shift during the 11th annual nationwide Jerry Lewis Telethon, and the fifth held in Chicago.

Others volunteered for two or three shifts. Only the grittiest, despite their youth and enthusiasm, had the mustard to endure all 24 hours, even with a little nap.

The kids volunteered for as many reasons as there were volunteers. Some kids had friends who were interested. Others came because the disease might have taken the life of a friend Perhaps even a brother or sister.

A very few volunteers were crippled. They walked to their chairs with help from their friends.

BUT MOST WORKED for the very simplest reason. They are good people, not too big or too proud to dig down deep into themselves and offer a few hours of kindness to people who they might never even know.

The young people came together at one dozen Jerry Lewis Telethon centers across northern Illinois and Indiana.

They worked in their greatest numbers in the Hyatt-Regency's sectioned-off grand ballroom, where a maze of telephones, shoe boxes that contained pledge envelops, adding machines and televisions was augmented by tired but happy people.

That's where the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. headquartered its Chicago, suburban Cook County and DuPage County telephone network.

Telephones did not ring. A red light blinked. The caller heard, "Jerry Lewis Telethon." Then the offer was made, a dollars and cents pledge to help support muscular dystrophy research and patient services.

THESE ARE CYNICAL times. A person can easily become pessimistic when he is surrounded by uneasy vibrations and outright bad news most every waking moment of most every single day.

"The standard motto goes something like, "Who gives a damn for you? I've got myself to worry about."

You want to know who gives a damn? Ask the kids who answered telephones. Ask talk show hosts Steve Edwards or Sandi Freeman who guided the Chicago effort from WSNS-TV studios.

Ask the dozens of newspaper, radio and television celebrities, if you think they are celebrities, who gave their time not for profit, but for people.

Then go find Jerry Lewis, who never has revealed to anyone, not even his wife, the motivation behind his excessive desire to eliminate the dreaded killer and crippler that is muscular dystrophy.

Ask Jerry, "Who gives a damn?"

AND WHEN HE HAS finished running you up and down with bloodshot eyes, Jerry Lewis will tell you about the volunteers. He'll tell you about staffers at the Muscular Dystrophy Assn. nationwide offices.

And Jerry Lewis will tell you about the people who he never sees, the little people sitting at home. They don't have $1,000, $500 or even $100 to contribute to any cause, regardless of its worth.

But they have got $10, $5 or $1. They contribute those dollars willingly. These are the real people.

ITEM: This past weekend's 11th annual nationally televised Jerry Lewis Telethon raised $21,732,812 in dollars pledged against muscular dystrophy. The amount was a record.

ITEM: Chicago's fifth annual portion of that telethon raised $907,690 in pledges, a vast increase beyond last Labor Day's $753,000. And yes, that was a record, too.

But it's one thing to say "I'll pledge . . ." and quite another to write the check.

Many fund raisers are happy with a 70 or 80 per cent return. They consider that a successful drive.

Last year's 10th annual Jerry Lewis Telethone netted 103 per cent of the dollar amount pledged.

And that takes into account the very few persons who use their pledge envelopes to line wastebaskets.

THE JERRY Lewis Telethon. It was a thing of beauty. To think, that first telethon many years ago raised just $1,002,114 nationwide, an amount almost equaled this year just in Chicago.

From Las Vegas to Chicago and all surrounding points nationwide, the Jerry Lewis Telethon was a labor of love.

And the vast majority of those people were kids.

Baby-adoption scheme brings 7 indictments

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — A county grand jury Tuesday indicted seven persons, including five attorneys, on charges of arranging the sale of babies to adoptive parents in a five-state network.

Bergen County Prosecutor Joseph Woodcock said the indictments were the result of a 10-month investigation by authorities in New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Michigan and California.

Edward Terner, an attorney in West Orange, N.J., was named in four of the indictments, which allege eight white babies were sold between August 1972, and January 1975, to couples paying fees of up to $9,100 for the adoption.

Other attorneys named were Harry D. Cohen, Chicago; J. George Ivler, Paterson, N.J.; Bernard Lampear, Southfield, Mich.; and Harold Rosenstein, New York.

IVLER'S WIFE, Enid, and Robert Ackerman, a landlord in Port Murray, N.J. were also named in a two-count indictment.

The indictments charge that Cohen and Turner unlawfully assisted in the placement of infant children, contrary to statutes of New Jersey which prohibit placing a child into the home of anyone but a brother, or sister of the natural mother.

"All I'm prepared to say is that these people know each other and do business," Woodcock said.

"I won't characterize this as a ring. In some cases the adoptive parents were New Yorkers and in others they were New Jersey residents," he said.

THE FIRST COUNT of the indictment charges Cohen and Terner with arranging the sale of three babies for $4,800, $5,550 and $8,000 to adoptive parents. Another count charges they received $9,100 for placement of another child.

None of the adoptive parents is named in the indictment.

The Terner-Rosenstein team allegedly acquired two children from unnamed California attorneys for prices of $8,400 and $9,100.

Terner and Lampar are alleged to have arranged placement of two children for $3,500 and $5,500.

WOODCOCK SAID the adoptive parents would go to an attorney and ask for help in adopting a baby without going through a regular adoption agency.

The attorney would then contact another attorney in Chicago or Michigan and arrange for the adoptive parents to fly to the Midwest, pay the money and take the baby home.

"In one case, the parents in New Jersey went to Chicago Aug. 11, 1972, and in another they went on Jan. 31, 1975," Woodcock said.

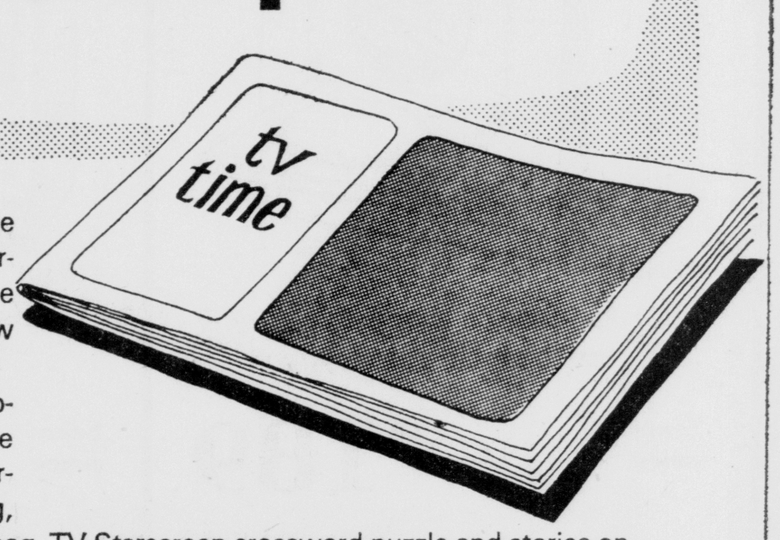
Ivler was charged with helping Ackerman and his wife arrange in 1975 the sale of an infant whose natural mother lived at Ackerman's apartment house. The indictment alleged the infant changed hands at the Children's Home Society in Trenton.

Rosenstein, reached for comment, admitted he had helped arrange private adoptions up until 1974 but said, "They were strictly legitimate."

"I didn't think I was that deeply involved. All I handled was the legal end of it for the people," he said.

He refused to name any of his clients.

Tune in the new look of TV Time Sat., Sept. 11



You'll want to be in the viewing audience Saturday, Sept. 11, when The Herald premieres its new TV listings magazine.
TV Time becomes a separate, pullout magazine which will include hour-by-hour programming, daily highlights, TV Mailbag, TV Starscreen crossword puzzle and stories on your favorite stars.

Its colorful and attractive cover and new size make TV Time perfect for keeping all week long — close to your TV where it's handy and most useful.

At the same time, Leisure magazine will be changing, too. Our Travel section will move from Tuesday to Saturday and join Leisure to give you a complete package of leisure and travel ideas. Book reviews will also shift to Leisure from Friday's Medley section.

All channels are go for these new features Saturday, Sept. 11, so tune in The Herald with TV Time and Leisure/Travel. We think you'll enjoy the view.

Viking biology instruments appear set for search

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 2's vital biology instruments have passed their first test hurdle and appeared ready Tuesday to begin man's second search for life on Mars Saturday.

The first answers to the tantalizing yes-and-no life puzzle posed by Viking 1 should start coming in about 10 days, but biologists say it may take much longer before any definite conclusions can be reached.

The three life-detection instruments had been idle for months before word came in early Tuesday showing that activation procedures and checks were going well.

Valves that had been closed since April, 1975 were opened, radioactivity detectors turned on, a gas analyzer checked and temperatures taken. Dr. Fred Brown, a project scientist, said everything appeared normal.

"LAST NIGHT the only thing we cared about was does the instrument work? Now we're over that and the instrument is doing what it's supposed to and we say, let's get some soil and get on with it," Brown said.

The robot's digging arm will scoop up a spoonful of soil Saturday and dump it into the biology assembly to start the incubation procedures designed to stimulate life processes that the instrument can detect.

Another experiment important to the life question also was being activated. It is the organic chemical analyzer aboard Viking 2 and its job is to search the Martian soil for evidence of organic molecules that are considered the building blocks of life.

Viking 1 found no organics in the soil and that dampened the enthusiasm of biologists that was stirred by the suggestions from the life detection instruments aboard the first lander that there might be organisms in the soil. Scientists said the life signs also could have been produced by strange inorganic chemical reactions.

Dr. Harold Klein, head of the Viking biology team, said the Viking 1 life studies point in two possible directions.

"One possibility is that some of the measurements would lead us to conclude that there is life on the planet Mars, and the same measurements or other interpretations could lead us to conclude that what we are seeing is some sort of active chemical process, but of non-biological origin."

Dr. Richard Young, chief program scientist and head of the space agency's biologists, said if Viking 2 finds organic matter in appreciable amounts in the soil, "then the picture gets much more exciting."

"If there is a fairly complex mixture of organics there, that would at least help us in thinking biological. It wouldn't prove it, but it would help."

Young said in an interview that on the basis of Viking 1, "I haven't changed my overall assessment in the likelihood of life on Mars. I've always felt that it's unlikely.

"The thing that bothers me a little bit is that people sort of want us to say is life there or isn't life there. We don't know yet. We haven't done the experiment. Let's face it, we've done less than one quarter of the intended experiment on the first mission and you can't expect us to answer the question until we've done the experiment."

Nuclear waste management 'faulty'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government management of hazardous nuclear waste is faulty and "a cause for concern," a report prepared for the U.S. energy research agency warned Tuesday.

The report urged more administrative and policy reforms, saying many problems can be solved but that the last chance for such corrective action may be at hand.

Radioactive wastes that must be sealed away from mankind and the environment for thousands or even millions of years are "an unavoidable consequence of our nuclear age," the report said.

It said approximately half a million tons of highly radioactive waste and millions of cubic feet of less dangerous "low level" atomic debris — all but a fraction of it produced during three decades of nuclear weapon programs — must be dealt with immediately.

The report was prepared for the Energy Research and Development Administration by Mason Willrich, a University of Virginia law professor who worked on it this summer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's energy laboratory. A Sept. 1 draft of the report was obtained and released Tuesday by consumer activist Ralph Nader.

"We are concerned about radioactive waste because it is a potential radiological hazard to man and other forms of life," the report said.

"If a human being is exposed to excessive amounts of radiation, depending on the circumstances, the harmful effects may be immediate death, life shortened by radiation-induced cancer, radiation-induced genetic change which may affect subsequent generations, or temporary ill health followed by complete recovery."

That, the report said, is why it is so important to find effective ways of storing such wastes as plutonium, which loses only half its radioactivity in 24,000 years.

"Thus far, the U.S. government's record of management has been marred in a sufficient number of instances to be a cause of concern," the report said.

It said 18 leaks from high level waste storage tanks at Hanford, Wash., have poured more than 430,000 gallons of waste into the ground. The hazard there "will remain for hundreds of thousands of years," it said, even though no deaths or injuries have been reported so far.

The report's key recommendation was that a national radioactive waste authority be established to take over all management of nuclear garbage.

It urged that NRC establish a comprehensive waste management regulatory policy, and said ERDA should continue research on the best storage methods.

"Thus, we have an opportunity — perhaps our last clear chance — for institutional development."

High court clerk releases upcoming case schedule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court opens its 1976-77 term next month by tackling some of its toughest and most noteworthy appeals in the first two weeks, the court clerk's office announced Tuesday.

The clerk's office released a schedule of the cases set for the first two weeks of argument in the new term which begins Oct. 4. The list includes:

• An appeal by Iowa police officials asking that penalties for violating the Miranda rule on obtaining criminal confessions be relaxed. Lower federal courts ordered a new trial for a convicted slayer of a 10-year-old girl. Iowa police contend the confession was voluntary and that Miranda rules are applied too technically.

• Two sex discrimination cases, both seeking to benefit men. One appeal seeks to overturn an Oklahoma law allowing women to purchase alcohol at 18 but barring sales to men under 21. The second is a sweeping challenge to sex-based Social Security regulations, most of which favor women.

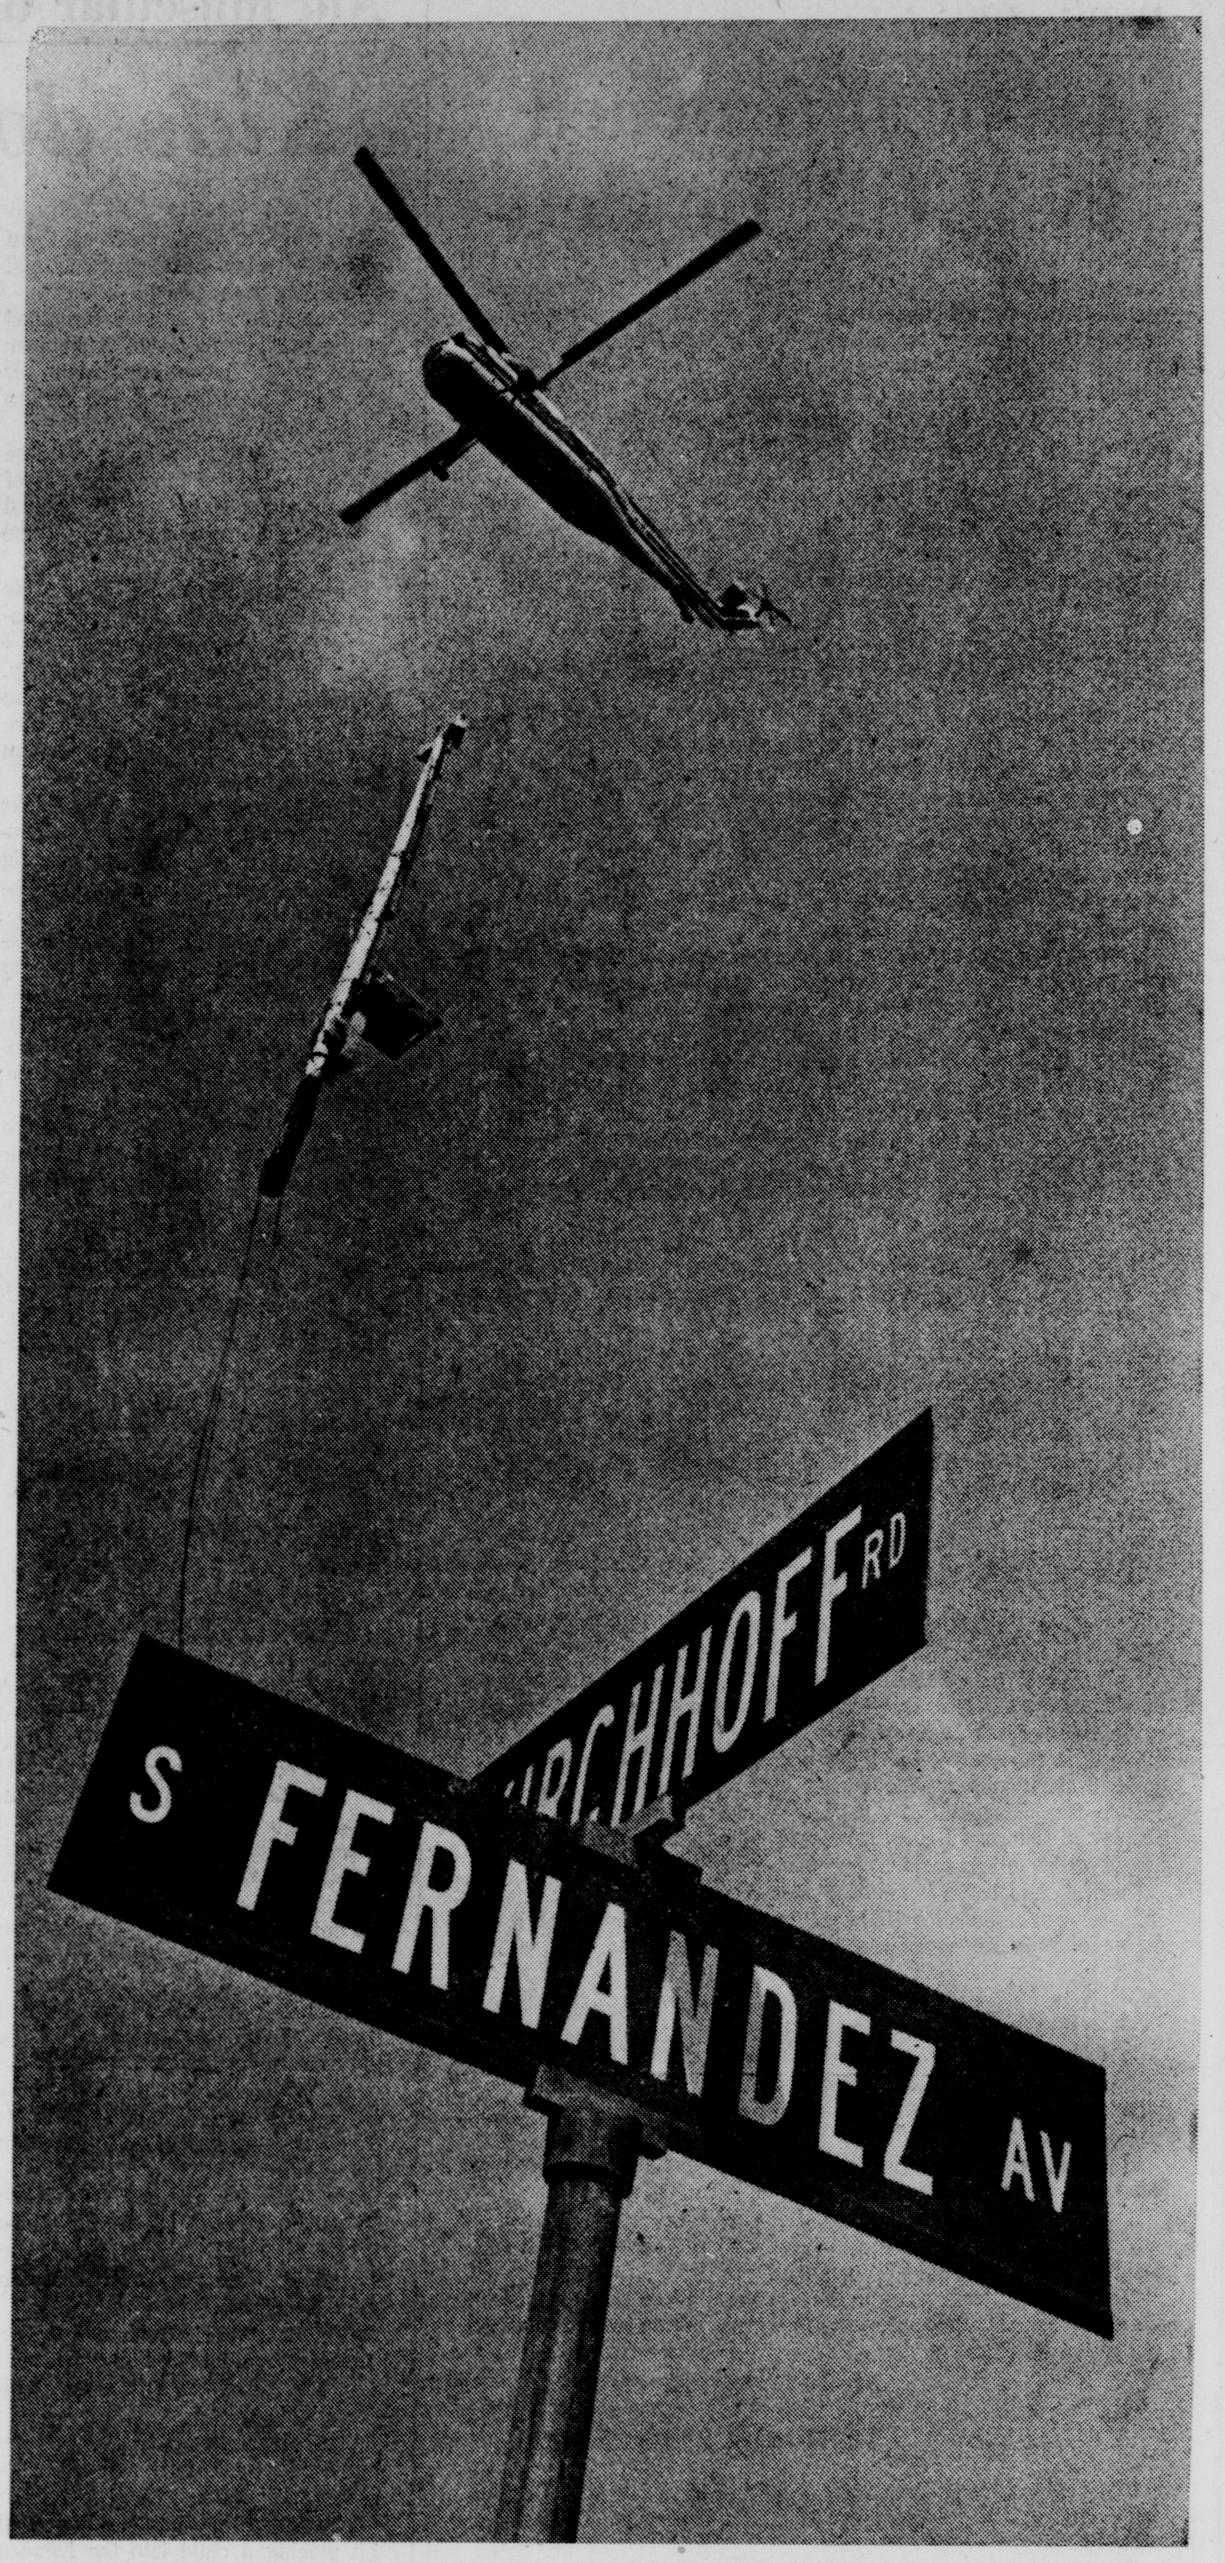
• Reargument on whether employers can constitutionally exclude pregnancy from disability insurance plans. The court heard arguments last term but failed to hand down a ruling.

• A novel appeal by Hasidic Jews in Brooklyn, contending a 1974 redistricting plan which divided their community was based on an unconstitutional quota system for minorities.

• How far must an employer go to accommodate the religious preferences of his employes? The case comes from Berea, Ky., where a member of the World Wide Church of God was fired because his religion barred Saturday work.

• Review of a $36 million damage suit won by Chris-Craft Industries, Inc., against Bangor Punta Corp. for violation of federal securities law in making a tender offer. It is the largest judgment in the history of securities law in this country.

• Whether low and moderate income housing can be forced on a suburban community to help relieve segregation although a comprehensive zoning plan exists to maintain the economic character of the suburb. The appeal was brought by Arlington Heights, a Chicago suburb, which lower courts said must grant zoning changes for low income apartments.



IT'S NOT AS EXCITING as rescuing people from dangerous situations, but another use has been found for helicopters. In Arlington Heights last week, a whirlybird was used to move a utility pole with a Civil Defense siren mounted on it. Village engineers theorized it would be faster and more economical. A 5-day project was finished in just four hours.

By Bangladesh standards, resettlement plan works

A MAN-MADE MIRACLE HAS occurred at the Demra, Bangladesh resettlement camp. Where last year 50 children were dying a month from malnutrition and disease, now the U.N. has moved in with a "food for work" program. These women make jute mats in exchange for two meals a day. Children who are severely malnourished are fed hourly.

DEMRA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Children laugh and sing now where last year their brothers and sisters were dying at the rate of 50 per month.

New lavatories have replaced the latrines that 18 months ago were filled to overflowing. The water pumps work. Infants and mothers are being fed.

By the standards of Bangladesh, a man-made miracle has occurred at this resettlement camp on a river island 14 miles from Dacca.

The government of the late Sheikh Mujibur Rahman established this camp and two others like it as dumping grounds for some 250,000 residents rousted from the "Bustees," or slums, of Dacca, Chittagong and Khulna. Nearly 175,000 of them were driven from Dacca alone.

The government said the slums were breeding grounds for crime. They also were where visitors could watch Bangladeshis die before their eyes in the streets. Of the 40,000 families evicted, about 12,000 were given tiny plots of land in the camps; the rest were sent back to their villages.

The slum dwellers were given no building materials. Most dwellings consisted of tattered rags draped over frail bamboo frames. The government said each camp would have schools, a health center, playgrounds and movie theaters, a mosque and a graveyard. There were to be small-scale industrial plots, too.

Last August Mujib was assassinated and a military-backed government took control. The next month voluntary agencies moved in to help make the camps more than a breeding ground for cholera, smallpox and death.

The Ireland-based volunteer group Concern saw to it the hungry were fed and put up housing for some 20,000 people in little more than three months. Now there are rows of bamboo housing, with roofs of two layers of bamboo and a sheet of cellophane in between, to keep out the rain.

Some mistakes were made. The housing is built flush to the ground, so when the monsoon rains come the water floods into the 12-by-10-foot plots housing a family and turns the hard dirt floor to mud. Little of the government's grandoise plan has progressed beyond the press release stage, but thanks to the voluntary agencies there is a school, a dispensary, a two-swing playground. And people are not starving.

More than 500 women take part in the U.N. "Food for Work" program, making jute mats, fishing nets or other small handicrafts. For their efforts they are given two meals a day — wheat chapattis in the morning and soy-enriched sorghum grits in the afternoon.

Sirin Rahman, a worker for UNICEF — the U.N. Children's Fund, said "children who are severely malnourished are fed hourly."

In a small cleared area, women stirred huge cauldrons placed over wood fires. In some, milk powder was being mixed with water. In others were vegetable oil and the grits — taken from 50-pound bags imprinted with a pair of hands clasped in a handshake and the lettering, "Furnished by the People of the United States of America."

There is medical care available in another room nearby, where nurses keep a constant watch on the seriously ill.

The main complaint of camp residents, as it has been since the day of their eviction, is lack of work.

"Dacca was better," said a woman named Hazera. "We were much better off there. All the older boys were domestics (servants) and so was I. My husband is a rickshaw puller and it now costs 3 taka (about 15 cents) to get to work. I have no work."

Other women clustered around her, agreeing and complaining about the necessity of taking a boat from the island and then a bus into Dacca, never knowing if there would be work for them or their husbands.

Since the relocations began in January, 1975, the families have made certain adaptations, knowing that the camps are permanent fixtures.

"Now the camps have taken on the appearance of villages, with the same pattern as villages," a U.N. official said. "The men come home for a night, then go away for two weeks or so, come back with money and go away again, back to town."

A woman employe of the Concern agency guided a visitor into a room where dozens of children 6 years old and younger were about to be fed.

"Thus, we have an opportunity — perhaps our last clear chance — for institutional development."

High court clerk releases upcoming case schedule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court opens its 1976-77 term next month by tackling some of its toughest and most noteworthy appeals in the first two weeks, the court clerk's office announced Tuesday.

The clerk's office released a schedule of the cases set for the first two weeks of argument in the new term which begins Oct. 4. The list includes:

• An appeal by Iowa police officials asking that penalties for violating the Miranda rule on obtaining criminal confessions be relaxed. Lower federal courts ordered a new trial for a convicted slayer of a 10-year-old girl. Iowa police contend the confession was voluntary and that Miranda rules are applied too technically.

• Two sex discrimination cases, both seeking to benefit men. One appeal seeks to overturn an Oklahoma law allowing women to purchase alcohol at 18 but barring sales to men under 21. The second is a sweeping challenge to sex-based Social Security regulations, most of which favor women.

• Reargument on whether employers can constitutionally exclude pregnancy from disability insurance plans. The court heard arguments last term but failed to hand down a ruling.

• A novel appeal by Hasidic Jews in Brooklyn, contending a 1974 redistricting plan which divided their community was based on an unconstitutional quota system for minorities.

• How far must an employer go to accommodate the religious preferences of his employes? The case comes from Berea, Ky., where a member of the World Wide Church of God was fired because his religion barred Saturday work.

• Review of a $36 million damage suit won by Chris-Craft Industries, Inc., against Bangor Punta Corp. for violation of federal securities law in making a tender offer. It is the largest judgment in the history of securities law in this country.

• Whether low and moderate income housing can be forced on a suburban community to help relieve segregation although a comprehensive zoning plan exists to maintain the economic character of the suburb. The appeal was brought by Arlington Heights, a Chicago suburb, which lower courts said must grant zoning changes for low income apartments.

IT'S NOT AS EXCITING as rescuing people from dangerous situations, but another use has been found for helicopters. In Arlington Heights last week, a whirlybird was used to move a utility pole with a Civil Defense siren mounted on it. Village engineers theorized it would be faster and more economical. A 5-day project was finished in just four hours.

By Bangladesh standards, resettlement plan works

A MAN-MADE MIRACLE HAS occurred at the Demra, Bangladesh resettlement camp. Where last year 50 children were dying a month from malnutrition and disease, now the U.N. has moved in with a "food for work" program. These women make jute mats in exchange for two meals a day. Children who are severely malnourished are fed hourly.

DEMRA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Children laugh and sing now where last year their brothers and sisters were dying at the rate of 50 per month.

New lavatories have replaced the latrines that 18 months ago were filled to overflowing. The water pumps work. Infants and mothers are being fed.

By the standards of Bangladesh, a man-made miracle has occurred at this resettlement camp on a river island 14 miles from Dacca.

The government of the late Sheikh Mujibur Rahman established this camp and two others like it as dumping grounds for some 250,000 residents rousted from the "Bustees," or slums, of Dacca, Chittagong and Khulna. Nearly 175,000 of them were driven from Dacca alone.

The government said the slums were breeding grounds for crime. They also were where visitors could watch Bangladeshis die before their eyes in the streets. Of the 40,000 families evicted, about 12,000 were given tiny plots of land in the camps; the rest were sent back to their villages.

The slum dwellers were given no building materials. Most dwellings consisted of tattered rags draped over frail bamboo frames. The government said each camp would have schools, a health center, playgrounds and movie theaters, a mosque and a graveyard. There were to be small-scale industrial plots, too.

Last August Mujib was assassinated and a military-backed government took control. The next month voluntary agencies moved in to help make the camps more than a breeding ground for cholera, smallpox and death.

The Ireland-based volunteer group Concern saw to it the hungry were fed and put up housing for some 20,000 people in little more than three months. Now there are rows of bamboo housing, with roofs of two layers of bamboo and a sheet of cellophane in between, to keep out the rain.

Some mistakes were made. The housing is built flush to the ground, so when the monsoon rains come the water floods into the 12-by-10-foot plots housing a family and turns the hard dirt floor to mud. Little of the government's grandoise plan has progressed beyond the press release stage, but thanks to the voluntary agencies there is a school, a dispensary, a two-swing playground. And people are not starving.

More than 500 women take part in the U.N. "Food for Work" program, making jute mats, fishing nets or other small handicrafts. For their efforts they are given two meals a day — wheat chapattis in the morning and soy-enriched sorghum grits in the afternoon.

Sirin Rahman, a worker for UNICEF — the U.N. Children's Fund, said "children who are severely malnourished are fed hourly."

In a small cleared area, women stirred huge cauldrons placed over wood fires. In some, milk powder was being mixed with water. In others were vegetable oil and the grits — taken from 50-pound bags imprinted with a pair of hands clasped in a handshake and the lettering, "Furnished by the People of the United States of America."

There is medical care available in another room nearby, where nurses keep a constant watch on the seriously ill.

The main complaint of camp residents, as it has been since the day of their eviction, is lack of work.

"Dacca was better," said a woman named Hazera. "We were much better off there. All the older boys were domestics (servants) and so was I. My husband is a rickshaw puller and it now costs 3 taka (about 15 cents) to get to work. I have no work."

Other women clustered around her, agreeing and complaining about the necessity of taking a boat from the island and then a bus into Dacca, never knowing if there would be work for them or their husbands.

Since the relocations began in January, 1975, the families have made certain adaptations, knowing that the camps are permanent fixtures.

"Now the camps have taken on the appearance of villages, with the same pattern as villages," a U.N. official said. "The men come home for a night, then go away for two weeks or so, come back with money and go away again, back to town."

A woman employe of the Concern agency guided a visitor into a room where dozens of children 6 years old and younger were about to be fed.
